

Flag Day

O beautiful for spacious skies
For amber waves of grain,
For purple mountained majesties
America! America!
God shed his grace on thee,
And crown thy good
with brotherhood
From sea to shining sea!

Cowboys, Indians, Pioneers Recreate Old-Western Frontier History

Today—"Buffalo Bill Day" in Lincoln—will continue a tradition that started nearly one hundred years ago in Nebraska, a tradition that for this week is being recreated and reproduced in true life form.

Appearances of cowboys, Indians, and pioneers on the streets of Lincoln and other Nebraska towns have come to be vivid proof that Nebraska—where the West begins—has retained the tradition that all America once had in its possession. Its Old West history has stepped out of the pictures of books to tell its own story of Nebraska's tourism, vacation, outdoor recreation, and most of all, its genuine existence during NEBRASKALAND DAYS.

Buffalo Bill Day
Today is being devoted to the pioneers, Indians, and cowboys who first walked the grasses of Nebraska. Early Western determinism will be displayed in the "Buffalo Bill Day" parade featuring the Omaha Tribe of Yessir and the Lincoln Sowers at 11 a.m. Rip-roaring Western capers will climax the day on the North Steps of the State Capitol tonight at the Wild West Show, beginning at 8.

The Wild West Show will pay tribute to "Buffalo Bill" by honoring movie star Charlton Heston for his outstanding contribution in promoting the West through quality family entertainment. Heston will receive the second annual Buffalo Bill Award during Wednesday's Oregon Trail Day parade. Emcees for tonight's Wild West Show are Dick Perry and Bill Wood.

Oregon Trail Day

Tomorrow's NEBRASKALAND festivities will salute the pioneer tradition as a covered wagon train from Fairbury thunders through downtown Lincoln at noon. Fairbury's Rock Creek Station, a one-time stage station on the Oregon Trail, will be the starting point for the covered wagons in tomorrow's "Oregon Trail Day".

Nebraskans in their pioneer best are expected to be on hand for the 90-minute spectacular NEBRASKALAND Parade beginning at 5 p.m. The parade will be led by Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson as Grand Marshall. At the Grand Marshall's reviewing stand, the Buffalo Bill Award will be presented to Charlton Heston.

Before arriving in Lincoln for the NEBRASKALAND Parade, Mrs. Johnson will spend the morning in Omaha on a tri-purpose visit. Her Omaha visit involves a tour of Offutt Air Force Base where she will plant a tree near the Minuteman missile, a tour and speaking engagement at Boys Town, and a beautification talk at the City Auditorium Assembly Hall.

All the action of the NEBRASKALAND Parade will be captured on videotape and telecast over KUON-TV, Channel 12, at 6:30 tomorrow night.

4-Day Rodeo

Old West activities will continue to thrive through Sunday with rodeos, pancake feeds, kids' day, and camp-arees.

University of Nebraska students and faculty members are preparing for the third series of two-day summer orientation programs for entering students and their parents which begin tomorrow and continue through August 5.

Last year 4,500 parents and entering students participated in the program which has two main purposes:

—To give each student a maximum of individual attention so that all questions about academic work and student life can be answered before beginning the fall term;

—To give parents an opportunity to understand the aims of the University, what the University expects of its students, to ask questions about costs, clothing, rules and procedures, and to become personally acquainted with University staff members and students.

Each entering student and his parents will be invited to participate in the two-day orientation programs which will include separate sessions for parents and new students. Those attending will have an opportunity to stay in the University's newest residence hall, named in honor of Mari Sandoz, at 17th and Vine Streets.

This year's summer program is being coordinated by Gerald Bowker, member of the Junior Division and counseling service, with University faculty members and 16 students.

Summer Students Welcomed

All-Staters Stress Fine Arts Abilities

Fine Arts festivities are beginning to take form as the 457 high school students of the All-State High School Fine Arts Course rush from their dorms to their class rooms.

The Nebraska high school students will receive laboratory experiences as well as class work from University professors. Their talents in arts, drama, music, and journalism and speech will be put to use in various ways. Many of their projects will be open for public viewing.

Tomorrow night will be the first big event scheduled for the All-staters as they participate in the NEBRASKALAND Parade. Thursday the group will present a Sinfonia Jazz Band Concert in the Union Ballroom. Another feature event of the All-Staters' stay on the University campus will be a conference with Lt. Governor Phil Sorenson and a tour of the statehouse, Saturday.

The purpose of the All-State program is to provide the students with a college atmosphere in which they are given the opportunity to broaden their educational and cultural experiences under the guidance of University scholars. The events of the All-State program will be a part of the campus life during the three weeks of their stay.

Summer session students will have an opportunity to critique the accomplishments of the All-State representatives at such events as the Outdoor "Pops" Concert to be held at Sheldon Art Gallery, the All-State Art Exhibit and the Journalism Display to be held at the Union Gallery.

All-State students participating in the speech program will present three plays to the public. The first two plays, "Thurber Carnival" and "Miss Jaius" will be given at the Temple Building. As a finale the All-Staters will present "Dr. Faustus" in Howell Theatre June 30.

Math Professor Serving in India

Edwin Halfar, professor of mathematics at the University of Nebraska, is serving as consultant and teacher in an institute for high school teachers in India this summer. The program brings together 1,600 teachers from 39 university campuses in India. The program is made possible through financial assistance of the National Science Foundation and is sponsored by the U.S. Agency for International Development.

Whether your enrollment for summer work is a completely new experience or a resumption of study you began earlier, I am pleased to join Dr. Sorenson in saying, "Welcome to the University of Nebraska!"

You may be surprised to learn that planning for the summer sessions is a year-round occupation at the University. Dr. Sorenson and his staff began planning this summer's program last September in order to make it a valuable and memorable one for you.

You also will be interested to learn that the enrollment this summer is at a record-high level. When the final figures are in, the total probably will be close to 6,000. This reflects the continuing growth in the demand for higher education, and it also reflects the maturity of the Summer Session as an integral part of the total program of the University.

We are pleased to have you with us. It is our hope that you will enjoy your work and will take full advantage of the special events which have been planned for you.

Paper To Face Challenges

Enrollment for this summer session is a reflection of the continuing growth in the demand for higher education, according to Chancellor Clifford M. Hardin.

The Summer Nebraskan also is striving to be a reflection of such a demand. The challenges of the Summer Nebraskan are as unlimited as are the challenges of a higher education.

In meeting the challenges of continuing growth, the Summer Nebraskan will emphasize what Dr. Frank Sorenson, Director of Summer Sessions, has termed at the "extensive resources" of the University and its personnel, both faculty and students.

Many of the various resources available on the University of Nebraska campus will be featured in a regular column, the Golden Kernel. Each week the column will spotlight a University feature.

As well as portraying campus life during the summer session, the Summer Nebraskan will display the opportunities of cultural and recreational activities in Lincoln and the surrounding areas. The newspaper hopes to maintain the maturity of a summer session program that is designed to stimulate thought and to supplement the backgrounds of the students involved with its activities.

While attending the summer session is an educational experience, so too, is the publication of the Summer Nebraskan. The newspaper will experiment with page designs, headline styles, and picture presentations as well as story content.

The Summer Nebraskan invites the comments and criticisms of its readers.

It is expected that 6,000 students will enroll for undergraduate and graduate courses in the 1966 Summer Sessions. This will be the largest summer enrollment ever achieved at the University of Nebraska; in fact only a few years ago the fall and spring enrollment was no larger than 6,000 students.

The University is proud to be able to offer air-conditioned dormitory space and food services to all students interested. In addition, the Nebraska Union is prepared to offer its many recreational and informal educational facilities for the convenience of the University's summer family.

The Summer Nebraskan is your best source of information regarding the many opportunities open to students enrolled for summer classes. A supplementary source of information will be the special bulletin boards located in the halls of the campus buildings. Programs listed, we believe, will contribute in a significant way to enriched opportunities for learning.
