

New Guide Expands On NU Policies

An expanded section outlining the University's expectations of student conduct and the exclusion of AWS rules constitute the only major alterations in the 1966-67 edition of the Campus Handbook.

The handbook's preface states that its purpose is to "serve as a reference book during the time a student is attending the University."

All incoming freshmen receive a Campus Handbook, which explains in detail administrative and academic functions, student housing, campus organizations and athletics.

G. Robert Ross, vice chancellor for student affairs, said the reason for the handbook's exclusion of AWS rules is that the AWS Board has established a handbook specifically for the purpose of defining University women's rules.

Ross stated the purpose for the section on student conduct is to "provide a more clearly defined and more usable handbook."

The segment should illustrate the University's stand on illegal drug usage, demonstrations and picketing and proper utilization of fire alarms and equipment, he noted.

Registration Revamped

Next semester a student may not have to send in a registration form. Instead, a form with his personal information will be sent to him.

Ted Pfeifer, systems coordinator for student affairs, said that by next semester, it is hoped that electronic computers can be used to fill out registration forms.

The forms will contain all the personal information previously supplied, he added. The student will check the printed information and send back the registration only if corrections or additions are needed.

Pfeifer said the University hopes to build up an information file so that a student will fill out a complete form only once in his college career.

This information may be used by the scholarship and housing offices and the Junior or Division, he continued. He added that there is less chance for error if the information is recorded only once.

With the present equipment, approximately 2,000 registration forms can be printed in one hour. A machine is on order which will do the printing twice as fast, Pfeifer said.

Regents Winners Honored At Tea

Alpha Lambda Delta, the freshmen women's honorary, is sponsoring a tea for winners of the Nebraska Regent's Scholarship.

The tea will be held at 4 p.m. Thursday at the Nebraska Union.

University Plans Construction To Meet Enrollment Demand

By BOB HEPBURN, Junior Staff Writer

Due to a rapidly increasing student enrollment, the University has begun a vast expansion program of construction which is hoped will meet the demands of the student body.

Heading the construction boom is an $8 million dormitory complex located north of Nebraska Hall. George R. Miller, administrator of the physical plant division of the University, said that the new complex will consist of three nine-story towers plus a dining hall and will be completed in the fall of 1967.

Two of the dorm towers will be for boys and one for girls and will accommodate 1,500 students when finished. The complex, which is designed by Clarke and Anderson, will be similar to Marie Sandoz Hall and will be financed by revenue bonds.

Stadium Ready

Despite a seven week construction strike, Memorial Stadium will be ready for this coming Saturday's football game. Miller said that the new addition will accommodate 11,000 spectators, increasing the stadium's capacity to approximately 63,000. He said that the $350,000 cost of construction eventually will be paid for by ticket sales.

The construction of a new women's P.E. building to be located on 14th Street north of Vine Street has just been announced. Miller said that construction will begin shortly and that it should be finished in the spring of 1968. A federal grant will pay about one-third of the expected $2 million cost with the state paying the remainder through revenue bonds.

Changing the skyline of the campus will be a 12-story office building which will be built between Bessey and Burnett Halls.

The bids for the project will be let in November and it is hoped that it will be completed by the fall of 1968. The building, to be used for faculty and administration offices, is designed by Davis and Wilson and will be constructed at a cost exceeding $2 million.

The Nebraska Union will also be expanded with an addition and the enlargement of first floor. In the plans are provisions for more student meeting rooms, expanded cafeteria and Crib facilities, expanded lounge areas and an improved north entrance.

The cost of the expansion will be $1.5 million dollars and is scheduled for completion in the spring of 1968. Construction will begin some time this fall.

The first part of a two-phase project concerning the new music building is just about complete. Miller said that the first building will be finished in about one month, and in the meantime, classes will be limited to the first floor of the two-story structure.

The state legislature appropriated $1.5 million for the building in the 1963 session. The building is designed by Hazen and Robinson.

Upon completion of the new music building, the current building will be torn down and a $500,000 music recital hall, the second phase of the project, will be built in its place.

Also proposed for the city campus is an eight-story, $8.5 million chemistry building. It will be located due north of the Geography Building and will contain almost a quarter million square feet of lab and classroom space. Bids will be let in the spring and the scheduled completion date for the building is the spring of 1969.

On the East Campus, the building of the new Dental College is well under way. It is scheduled for completion in the fall of 1967.

The new building will have seminar rooms, classrooms and 84 semi-private stations for clinic work, as well as a research laboratory and animal headquarters.

There will be facilities for closed circuit television to allow several students to observe another student.

Laboratory sciences held in this building will be oriented toward dentistry. Presently dental students take laboratory sciences with other students.

When the college moves into the building, 56 freshmen dental students will be able to enroll, an increase of almost 35 per cent over the present freshman enrollment.

A federal grant of $2.5 million and $1.85 million in state funds will pay for the $4.4 million structure. The building is designed by Henningson, Durham, and Richardson of Omaha.

An animal science research building is planned for the East campus at the cost of $1.5 million. Bids will be made this fall with the completion date set for approximately the summer of 1968.

On the Omaha campus, the construction of a new hospital and clinic plus a basic science building will begin this fall at the cost of $15 million.

A federal grant will pay for nearly half of the cost, with the state supplying the other half.

In the plans are the remodeling of several hospital units, with a resulting 200 bed increase in hospital capacity. The project is scheduled for completion in the summer of 1969.

The proposed fraternity and sorority complex adjacent to 16th Street is presently under design, Miller said. He said that the first stage of the complex will consist of four buildings and will be begun in the late spring of 1967.

Phi Delta Theta fraternity also under went construction work this summer as an addition was added to their house, enlarging its capacity from 44 to 78 men.

NU Students In Good Standing Will Not Be Drafted, Says SS

"We are not drafting from the classroom," reported Col. Francis Drath, deputy director of the Nebraska Selective Service, easing the mind of virtually every male student at the University.

Drath said that unless a student is flunking or is not a full-time student, there is almost no chance of his being drafted.

He said that "full-time" is determined by the individual schools, but he stressed that "many local boards are defining 15 hours per semester as full-time" and advised all students to carry that load if at all possible.

Even if a student is doing poorly academically and is ordered into the service, he will first be classified I-S and deferred until the end of his academic year. Drath pointed out that this rating will be given only once to the student.

To be eligible for a student deferment, Drath said that the student "must have scored either a score of 70 on the Student Deferment Test or be in the upper one-half of his class at the end of his first year, upper two-thirds at the end of his second year, or upper three-fourths at the end of his third year."

A graduate student must be a candidate for a degree, be carrying at least nine hours and either score 80 on the Student Deferment Test or be in the upper one-fourth of his class to be eligible for student deferment.

Drath stressed that this was an "either, or situation" whereby a student had only to qualify in either the Student Deferment Test or academic standing to have a student deferred status.

He said that there were two main reasons for the Student Deferment Test. First, he noted that some students do well in the classroom but not so well in exams and that the Test is a means of equalization for these students.

Secondly, the Test enables the Board to determine how the students of certain schools, such as Harvard, stack up against the students of other schools such as Nebraska, he continued.

Drath said that the Student Deferment Test will be given again in November and strongly urged all students who have not taken the test to do so at that time.

Another stipulation for deferment is that the student must be in a recognized school. Drath noted that in recent years this has come to mean everything from barber colleges to business and vocational schools.

The draft quota for Nebraska in September and October is 160 and 246 respectively. This represents a slight decrease from the same two months last year, the former figures being 235 and 260.

Fine Arts Series Swings To Jazz

The classic of jazz musicians, Earl Fatha Hines, will open the Nebraska Union fine arts series in an outdoor concert on the steps of Sheldon Art Gallery September 23.

Hines and his trio will present the annual jazz concert at 3:30 p.m. on the Sheldon lawn, Friday, Sept. 23.

"Hines is credited with having the greatest single influence on jazz piano," Nebraska Union Program Director Richard Scott said.

Hines has been named the most famous jazz pianist in the world. Scott described Hines as a classic of jazz since jazz got its start.

He played with the great names of jazz, including Louis Armstrong, and then led bands himself with famous musicians, Sarah Vaughn, Dizzy Gillespie and Jonah Jones.

Downbeat magazine voted Hines the jazz musician of 1966 and he has recently been elected to the jazz hall of fame. He has just returned from a tour in Russia sponsored by a cultural exchange program between the U.S. and Russia.

Also high on the list of Nebraska Union activities this fall are trips to the Iowa State, Wisconsin, Colorado and Kansas football games. The Union-sponsored trips to the out-of-state games will be made by bus. The number of tickets and spaces available are limited, Scott said.

The cost for the trip to the Iowa State and Kansas games is $14 and includes bus fare and the game ticket.

An overnight trip will be made to the Wisconsin and Colorado games. The $33-fare includes round trip transportation, insurance, lodging and the game ticket.

The Union Fine Arts Convocation Series will continue October 13 with a debate between gubernatorial candidates Lt. Governor Phillip Sorensen and Norbert Tiemann.

Union activities for the remainder of the semester include Art Buchwald, political satirist and columnist, who will speak October 20.

The East Campus Union will sponsor a trip to Chicago November 24-27.

The Swingle Singers, who have taken Bach's music and turned it into a jazz score, will present a concert December 6.

The Union also sponsors the foreign film society and the weekend films.

The art lending and record lending libraries are to be announced in the Union at a later date.

At the end of the semester the Union will sponsor a ski trip during the semester break to Winter Park, Colorado.

NU Theatre To Present 5 Comedies

A Series of Comedies marks the second year in theatre for the University Theatre.

The season, which runs from October through May, offers five comedies ranging from plays in the Renaissance tradition to recent contemporary productions.

Included in the repertoire is "As You Like It," a Shakespearean comedy which will be performed Oct. 21-22.

John Osborne's "Look Back in Anger" completes the first semester's repertoire. The play's debut, under the direction of Joseph Baldwin, is Oct. 28-29.

"Gianni Schicchi" and "Rita," two Italian one-act operas, will be staged by the music department and will run Feb. 1-4 only.

Concluding the season are Brendan Behan's "The Hostage" and "Waiting for Godot," Samuel Beckett's controversial play.

Season tickets are currently being sold for $6 at the University Theatre box office. Ticket holders are entitled to five reserve seats which may be used at any given performance.

Daily Nebraskan Staff Puts Out Bigger Paper

The Daily Nebraskan staff has been enlarged this year to permit a bigger paper, according to Daily Nebraskan Editor Wayne Kreucher.

Kreucher is a junior majoring in journalism. This is his fourth semester on the Nebraskan. He has served as a reporter, copy editor and news editor. He has also worked on the Lincoln Star as Sunday state editor.

The news editor is Jan Itkin, a junior majoring in journalism. In her two semesters on the Nebraskan she has been a junior and a senior staff writer. She has also served as regional editor for a youth organization publication.

Bob Ginn, business manager, is a junior majoring in journalism.

The managing editor is Lois Quinnett, a senior majoring in journalism. She interned this past summer on the Sioux City Journal and is also a columnist for the Omaha World Herald.

The sports editor is Bob Flasnick, a junior majoring in journalism.

Night news editor is Bill Minier, a senior majoring in English and physics.

The senior staff writers this year are Toni Victor, a sophomore majoring in journalism; Randy Irey, a sophomore majoring in business administration; Julie Morris is a junior majoring in journalism; and Nancy Hendrickson is a junior majoring in journalism.

Eileen Wirth, sophomore. All are journalism majors.

The copy editors are Jane Ross, a junior in journalism; Barb Robertson, a senior majoring in English and journalism; and Peg Bennett, a senior also majoring in English and journalism.

Members of the staff are selected on the basis of interviews. The Publications Board chooses the editor, news-editor, managing editor, sports editor and business manager.

"We don't have the right to secede from the state just because we feel we are denied something. If we are denied a right, let's formulate a Bill of Rights. If it is a privilege we are denied, let's earn that privilege," Schaaf continued.

Schaaf stated that if the proposed Student Bill of Rights of the CFDP party is passed, he would not agree with it but would support its adoption outside the Senate.

"I am opposed to the section of the CFDP Bill which has to do with students governing themselves outside the classroom," Schaaf stated. "I believe this is not a right, but a privilege to be earned."

"We have been provided the materials and the men to build upon the foundations of student government established last year. It must now be determined whether student government will be a shack, which will not last, or a mansion which will stand for years," Schaaf concluded.
