

READY . . . to broadcast Saturday's football game over KNUS.

KNUS To Broadcast Games

The campus radio station KNUS will feature the Nebraska-Texas Christian University football game Saturday in its initial broadcast of the year.

According to Lee Coney, assistant professor of journalism, eight students will handle the live broadcast of the game and will present pregame, halftime and postgame shows.

The broadcast, Coney said, can be received on an 880 am frequency in Women Residence Halls, Pound, Cather and the 7,000, 5,000 and 6,000 buildings in Selleck.

KNUS will go on the air at 1:30 p.m. Saturday with music and news followed by a pregame warm-up at 1:45 p.m. and kick-off at 2 p.m. Play-by-play will be presented by journalism students Mike Elgert and John Jessup with the assistance of Gary Weik.

A half-time show with scores from games around the nation and a closing show with more game scores, a news cast and music will be handled by Dorothy Gray, Bill Oltman and Sandra Dose, all journalism students. The same team will handle the studio pregame show.

Elgert and Jessup will be working from the press box atop the west stadium with technical assistance from engineering student Bob Wilson. Studio engineer for the broadcast is Steve Sondag, also an engineering student.

Coney, who will act as general supervisor for the project, stated that plans are to broadcast the Nebraska-Utah State game the following week also and that a different crew will be handling that broadcast.

PTP, NIA To Sponsor Tournament

International and American students will have an opportunity to play soccer together at 2 p.m. Sunday in a tournament sponsored by People-to-People and the Nebraska International Association.

According to Dan Looker, chairman of People-to-People's Student-to-Student committee, anyone interested in soccer is invited to meet at the University High field. "It might be a good idea to brush up on soccer rules," he suggested.

If enough people are interested in playing soccer it is hoped an intramural league for all students can be formed, Looker said.

Any professors or graduate students interested in coaching or refereeing should contact Looker or Joel Swanson, president of People-to-People.

"Our aim is to acclimate the foreign student to University life and help him meet the American student," Looker said.

Committee Aids In Rehabilitation

Aiding in the rehabilitation of the parts of Eastern Turkey which were recently devastated by earthquakes is the newly-formed "Friends of Turkey" committee.

The group was created to assist the stricken areas through the collection of contributions.

The exact damage of the earthquakes will never be known, but nearly 2,500 dead have been recovered; about 1,500 were injured; and more than 30,000 people were left homeless, according to a group spokesman.

Each member of the "Friends of Turkey" committee has lived in Turkey, most while serving on the University of Nebraska Turkish Program. The University of Nebraska's sister institution, Ataturk University, which is located at Erzurum, is on the edge of the area hit by the quakes and suffered some damage.

Through CROP (Christian Rural Overseas Program) contributions will be sent to Turkey and used in the earthquake area in any way needed.

Anyone who wishes to contribute to this fund should contact Mrs. Barbara Allen, 538 South 24th Street.

Any checks must be made payable to "CROP" and marked for "Turkish Disaster Relief". Receipts will be given for all donations which are tax deductible.

All of the buildings where the game can be received have such transmitters, he said.

Elgert and Jessup, Coney said, have been preparing for the broadcast since early June when they began corresponding with the TCU sports department.

The broadcasts, he said, are extracurricular work for the students. Only the engineers on the job will be paid, he said, as their part is a branch of their regular work as student assistants for the broadcast department.

Coney said the broadcasts will be received in the limited areas only because KNUS operates on an electrical system that depends on transmission of a signal to transmitters in specified places.

Tassels, Corn Cobs Will Back Displays

Three dimensional displays will cap Homecoming festivities this year under the dual sponsorship of Corn Cobs and Tassels, Russ Sindt, displays chairman, announced.

In a statement to the Daily Nebraskan last September, the Innocents society, which has sponsored the displays in previous years, declined to take the responsibility because it believed better methods of greeting returning alumni could be found.

Students' scholarship and the great amount of time and money involved in competing effectively were also taken into consideration in the Innocent's refusal to sponsor the displays.

One of the major reasons for the reactivation of the displays this year, Sindt said, was the number of requests from alumni for their continuation.

"Applications will be sent to all living units this week," Sindt explained. "No application forms will be sent to campus organizations, but they are welcome to enter the competition."

Competing living units will be divided into four categories according to house rolls. Each category will be assigned monetary limits and disqualification will ensue if the allotments are exceeded.

The categories and monetary limits are as follows: Division I with units numbering 60 and under has a $100 allotment; Division II with units of 60-120 has a $175 allotment; Division III with units 120-200 has a $250 allotment; and Division IV with units over 200 has a $350 allotment.

Chairmen of the individual entries will be provided with rules and equipment appraisal forms, which are to be presented to an evaluation team Oct. 14.

"Materials and construction equipment, such as lumber and paint must be appraised at face value, whether they were purchased new or not," explained Sindt.

Other regulations state the entries must be in operation from 5 p.m. to 10 p.m. Oct. 14 and from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Oct. 15.

Originality, attractiveness, construction and general relationship of the theme to the Kansas State Wildcats constitute the four points on which the displays will be judged.

Judges will be selected by the Corn Cobs and Tassels

Hyde Park To Resume Under New Chairman

Hyde Park, a forum where students and faculty can express their views on current subjects, will resume in approximately two weeks, according to Nebraska Union Program Manager Rich Scott.

Scott said that the reason for the delay in commencing Hyde Park is that a chairman for the Talks and Topics committee first must be selected. It is this group which decides the format, time and place for Hyde Park.

Scott said that the new chairman for this committee will be appointed by next Wednesday with Hyde Park probably starting the following week.

"Soap-Box Orators" Hyde Park is designed after the famous Hyde Park in London which reserved a section of its grounds in order that "soap-box orators" could express their views on any subject they wished.

The Union version of Hyde Park is run on the same principal. It is open to any student, staff member or faculty member of the University. The only requirement is that the prospective speaker must sign a "sign-in" sheet. Scott said that this is merely a formality and an attempt to keep some order to the program.

He also noted that a non-University member was able to speak at Hyde Park so long as he was introduced by a University member who would also sign the speaker in.

Time Limit A ten-minute time limit had to be imposed, Scott said, since a number of speakers would be allowed to speak.

Scott said that last year the forum was held in the main lounge of the Union but was forced to move because of the congestion that is created by overcrowding.

Last year's Hyde Park was so popular that the crowds often blocked the main corridors. Scott believes that with the increased enrollment, this problem will only be aggravated.

Campaign Debates The highlight of Hyde Park last year was the campaign debates by the three candidates for president of ASUN, Terry Schaff, Steve Abbott and Dave Snyder. After giving their speeches, the candidates answered many questions asked by the capacity crowd.

Over the course of the year, many speakers became noted for their humor or pointed attacks on such topics as the administration, Viet Nam and Christianity.

Snack Bar Under Way

A snack bar in WRA which was to be constructed during the summer has received final approval, and building will soon be in progress.

M. Edward Bryan, director of housing, announced Wednesday that the University will begin to prepare the area for the snack bar this week.

In a meeting Tuesday evening of Cather's executive officers, John Fryar, Cather secretary, charged that the residents of Cather, Pound and WRA had been led to assume that at least the food service part of the snack bar, if not the decoration, would be complete this fall.

"We were under the impression that construction would begin this summer," he said. "Holding up the snack bar is also holding up an additional source of jobs for students on campus," Fryar stated.

Wednesday Bryan said that trouble in getting the snack bar cleared and contracted held up construction.

In late May the Board of Regents had granted approval for the housing office to take money from the residence hall funds for the snack bar.

"We didn't predict any difficulty with cost of equipment," Bryan explained.

Air conditioning which had been specified in the original plans was far beyond the funds available, he said.

Several mechanical ends had to be reworked and the amount of air conditioning and number of vents were reduced.

"Everything is now well squared away on paper and work will soon be done," Bryan added.

The snack bar will be located in the ballroom in the basement of WRA. The physical plant will prepare the area for equipment, set in basic plumbing and bring in utilities.

Campus Activities To Be Discussed At AWS Seminar

Lincoln students will have the opportunity to familiarize themselves with all facets of the University at a seminar to be conducted Wednesday at 7 P.M. in the Nebraska Union Pan-American Room, according to Susie Sitorius, AWS workers chairman.

Former AWS workers will explain the layout of both East campus and city campus and the operation and activities of the living units, Miss Sitorius stated.

"Members of the Mortar Board society will present a discussion on the functions of University activities and organizations," she continued.

Representatives from ASUN will illustrate the structure of student government and the role it plays on the University campus.

The program area of AWS, including Coed Folies, activities marts and Standards Week, will be defined by Diane Smith, AWS program vice-president, Miss Sitorius said.
