

Saturday Designated For Senior Orientation

Nebraska high school seniors again will be invited to Days in order to become acquainted with the University.

According to John E. Aronson, director of admissions, the Special Events Committee of the Human Resources Project will sponsor Senior Information Days. The morning and afternoon programs have been presented on Saturdays for approximately ten years.

Senior Information Days will be Oct. 1 and 22, Nov. 19, and Feb. 7, Aronson said. About 60 guides from the campus living units are the seniors.

Aronson suggested that houses and residence halls select at least two representatives to act as Senior Information Day Leaders. These students should be persons with "warm personalities, enthusiasm about the University, who are good communicators," he said.

The list of guides should be sent to the Office of Admissions in care of Lawrence Bundy, Aronson said. An orientation meeting for all guides will be held Thursday, 7 p.m. in the Nebraska Union.

Last year 1,700 attended Senior Information Days and more are expected this year according to Aronson. Students come from all over Nebraska, usually in groups from a particular high school. Out of state students who wish to visit the University are also invited on the specified Saturday, he said.

The Office of Admissions arranges the morning and afternoon programs including the deans and professors who speak, room assignments, and also sends out invitations and registration forms Aronson said.

A group of eight or ten students compose the Special Events Committee of the Human Resources Project, sponsored by Dr. William E. Hall, Department of Educational Psychology, Aronson said.

Georgia Stevens is chairman of the committee which receives the registration forms, divides the students into groups, organizes hosts, and arranges and presents the noon entertainment. Registration fees for the seniors is $1.

The programs will begin with a mass meeting in the Coliseum. From there seniors will go to two class sections of their choice lasting for approximately one hour each.

A professor from the particular department will discuss his department and answer students' questions.

A noon lunch will be served in the Nebraska Union Ballroom.

Students will be able to talk with professors of the college in which they plan to enroll in an afternoon session.

Guides will conduct a tour of men's and women's residence halls on both city and east campus. The program will end with refreshments and a discussion period in the Nebraska Union.

Accompanied by live musical entertainment, "Fashion-Finger" will strike the campus Wednesday.

The Nebraska Union Hospitality Committee and Ben Simon's college board are presenting a men's style show in the Nebraska Union Ballroom at 8 p.m.

According to Bill Struyk, president of the college board, the show will consist of five scenes built around a British "James Bond" theme.

Struyk said that Richard Lang, the fashion editor of Gentlemen's Quarterly magazine, will be flying in from New York to speak on trends in men's clothing across the nation.

Struyk predicted that the show would be "very entertaining, pleasing and amusing to a male audience."

All aspects of men's clothing will be reviewed. Struyk said that everything from formal wear to suits and sport coats to the furnishings of shirts and slacks will be shown.

Members of the college board will model the fashions. Struyk revealed that there will be one "reappearing female role" in the cast of characters.

According to Struyk, two students from the Dramatics Department have written the script and are doing most of the staging for the production.

Struyk emphasized that the style show is free and the public is invited.

Panhel To Boycott 'Distasteful' Games

Panhellenic voted unanimously Monday to boycott objectionable games scheduled for Derby Day if the sponsoring fraternity refuses to heed the organization's recommendations concerning the events.

The Derby Day program is an annual day of games for sorority pledges sponsored by Sigma Chi fraternity. It is scheduled Oct. 1.

Sigma Chi submitted a list of proposed games to Dean Helen Snyder and the list was subsequently reviewed by Panhellenic.

Panhellenic suggested that some of the games be dropped because they were "unladylike and distasteful," according to Shari Mueller, Panhellenic vice president.

Panhellenic also suggested that the judging of the Miss Derby Day contest be conducted on the Friday afternoon before Derby Day and that contestants appear in "tasteful sportswear" at the crowning rather than in the traditional bathing suits.

Earlier in the meeting, G. Robert Ross, vice chancellor and dean of student affairs, spoke to the group on the physical expansion of the University. He commented on the bid-letting of the planned Greek complex, construction of new classrooms and living units and the parking problem.

Bus Has Space For CU Game

Space for 23 University students is still available on the Nebraska Union bus trip to the Colorado football game, according to Karen Jones, chairman of the Union Trips and Tours Committee.

Buses will leave the Nebraska Union at 10:30 p.m. Friday, Oct. 22, arriving in Boulder at approximately 9 a.m. Trip participants will stay in the Brown Palace in Denver after the game, leaving Denver the next morning.

Friday, Oct. 7 is the deadline to purchase the $33 ticket which includes lodging, the game ticket and round trip transportation.

The trip to the Iowa State game has been cancelled, according to Miss Jones, but students may still sign for the Wisconsin and Kansas trips.

NU Electric Demands Increase

A new electrical distribution system is being installed to meet the increased electrical demands of the University.

Increasing the cable capacity is the basis for the present electrical work on the campus, said Carl A. Donaldson, University business manager.

Donaldson said that the University's demand for electrical power has increased rapidly over the last few years.

He said that the construction of new buildings, addition of night classes, and increased air conditioning have been the main causes of this increased demand.

Donaldson said that with the University now about the size of the city of Fremont, water, light, and telephone capacities will need to be expanded.

Donaldson said that for the next few years the campus will be torn up for more projects of this type.

He said that while there may be a completion date for this project, it is a "never-ending process to meet never-ending demands."

NU Press Book To Be Filmed

Walt Disney is transforming a University Press book, "The Family Band" by Laura Bower Van Nuy, into a major musical by assigning the Sherman Brothers, who wrote the Oscar-winning "Mary Poppins" score, to the production.

With the tunesmiths now at work, filming of the production is expected to begin in about a year.

The author, a spry 85, runs an antique shop in Rapid City, S.D. Her book, subtitled "From the Missouri to the Black Hills, 1881-1900," depicts the pioneer life of her girlhood during the opening of Dakota Territory.

Laura and her seven older brothers and sisters developed their musical talents when their father went into debt to buy instruments for them. Soon performing in small towns, they went on to become a top frontier attraction and once played for a campaign rally at which presidential candidate William Jennings Bryan spoke.

The University Theater announced that it is searching for a person who can sing and play the guitar to play the role of Amiens in "As You Like It."

Any interested persons should contact Dr. William R. Morgan through the business office in Temple Building.
