

Frosh English Courses Reduced To One Semester On Test Basis

Freshman English is being compressed into a one-semester course for almost one-half of the freshman students, according to Ned S. Hedges, director of freshman English.

The new program is underway for the first time this year, Hedges said. Students will cover the same material in one semester as the regular classes cover in the entire year, he said.

English 1 and 2, as the course is entitled, meets one hour a day, five days a week Hedges said. Students receive credit for six hours.
