

Dorms Opt To Participate In Display Building Contest

Junior Staff Writer

All city campus dormitory complexes, excluding Selleck Quadrangle, will compete in the Homecoming display contest, according to officers of the living units.

East campus dormitories, Burr Hall and Fedde Hall, will not participate in the event, dorm officers said.

Abel Hall and Sandoz Hall, the most recent additions to the University dormitory system, will co-sponsor a display. Wayne Morton, Abel Hall president stated.

"It is necessary to have cooperation between the two dorms," Morton added, "and one of the best ways to accomplish this is to work together for a common purpose."

Morton explained that although the Halls' monetary allotment is $350, they will spend only approximately half of their budget.

"The two groups plan to devise a very original and witty display without spending a great amount of money," Morton declared.

Abel Hall has consented to take full financial responsibility for the construction because Sandoz Hall does not yet have legal representatives who have the authority to issue activity funds.

Three other complexes, Cather Hall, Pound Hall and Women's Residence Halls, will construct a display located in front of the WRA. Ann Blackstone, Pound Hall student assistant said.

The three living units combined forces two years ago to build a Homecoming display, Miss Blackstone noted.

Miss Blackstone said that the financial responsibilities will be divided equally among the three groups.

The decision to unite the halls followed a straw vote taken to determine the number of interested residents, Miss Blackstone explained.

Following the election of an activities chairman to supervise the construction of the display, the residence halls will immediately plan for the project, Miss Blackstone stated.

"An insufficiency of willing workers comprised the main reason for Selleck Quadrangle's veto of a three-dimensional display, according to Linda McKain, RAM secretary.

"The students were interested in a display," Miss McKain noted, "but there weren't enough who were interested in working on it."

A "lack of funds" forced Burr Hall to abandon plans for a Homecoming display, Marilyn Maas, courtesy chairman stated.

Fedde Hall also named finances as the main reason for not participating in the Homecoming contest.

AUF Begins Fall Drive With Two-Combo Dance

All University Fund (AUF) will kick off its annual fall drive Saturday, Oct. 29, with a dance in the Nebraska Union, according to Linda Mahoney, vice president.

Combos will play in the Pan American Room and the Nebraska Union Ballroom for the dance which follows the Nebraska-Missouri game. Carnival-type booths will be set up in the Union, Miss Mahoney added.

The AUF charity drive will continue until Thanksgiving vacation, Miss Mahoney said. All proceeds from the dance will go to charities.

The BMOC (Big Man On Campus) will be elected and the Activities Queen will be announced at the dance, she said.

Thursday the AUF board will select ten charities from a list of 35 organizations which have asked to be considered for the drive. These ten will include international, national, state and local charities, Miss Mahoney said.

An overall student poll will be taken to determine which five charities will receive AUF support. According to Miss Mahoney, a representative from each living unit will conduct the poll and independent students may vote in the Nebraska Union.

The AUF board will also set the goal for this year, she said. Last year's goal was $6,000.

Sorority and fraternity pledge classes will solicit funds from Lincoln independent students Nov. 20.

MEN To Sponsor National Seminar

Mu Epsilon Nu, men's teaching honorary, will sponsor a national leadership conference Saturday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Love Library.

According to Dave Martin, MEN president, the conference will be attended by 50 members from Nebraska, Kansas and Missouri and will deal with the topic "What You as Officers Can Do to Improve Your Organization."

Although seminars will be the main form of the conference, he continued, Dr. Donald Clifton, adviser to the University chapter; Gerald Stroman, national MEN president; and Charles Steward, national MEN vice president, will speak.

SIGN IN, SIGN OUT . . . means making a mental note for freshman Melodee McPherson.

AWS May Eliminate Coed's Sign-In Sheets

"Sign in, stupid!" the note on the dormitory door advised.

This is one coed's way to avoid campuses assessed for failure to sign in or sign out in her dormitory.

The sign-out sheets may become a thing of the past, however, if some coeds get their wishes.

The possibility that the sign-out sheets may be eliminated next fall has been tentatively discussed in informal AWS areas. Nothing definite has yet been heard on the possibility, but some coeds have jumped at the idea. "I can't see being penalized so much for not signing in or signing out, only three warnings is silly," one coed commented.

Barbara Deger, a senior, said "We shouldn't get demerits for not signing in or signing out."

"It's absolutely needless to sign in or out on weeknights, but I suppose it is needed on weekends and overnights as a precautionary measure for the girl's safety," said Karol McCue, a sophomore.

Tuition Is Due

Thursday is the last day for University students to pay tuition and fees for the fall semester.

Payment for tuition must be in the Bursar's Office, Room 204 Administration, before 5 p.m. Thursday. Tuition and fee statements were mailed to students at their Lincoln or commuting address Friday.

Students who did not receive a tuition statement in the mail by Tuesday should report immediately to the Bursar's Office.

If students do not pay tuition by 5 p.m. Thursday, a $10 late payment charge will be added to the individual's present balance. If the total balance—tuition plus late charge—is not paid by Oct. 6, student's registration will be referred to the Dean of Student Affairs for cancellation.

Builders Names New Chairmen

Builders has selected chairmen and assistants for two committees. Ed Bervin was named chairman of "Special Edition", and his assistants are Shirley Waggoner and Kay Rediger.

The "First Glance" editor is Mary Ann Jorgenson, and her assistants are Ann Wiley and Danelle Jentges.

Idea For Centennial: Inter-Ethnic Festival

The Centennial Committee of ASUN presented ideas for projects to some campus organizations Wednesday.

There are three areas of interest within the Centennial according to Elaine Kallos, committee chairman. They are the fun and games aspect, the cultural and educational aspect, and the opportunity for public relations.

dents for using the non-addictive drugs, according to Mrs. Grant.

A feeling of alienation from society is another problem that some people solve with drugs, she noted.

"Emotional problems are a substantial reason for drug use. It provides an escape, though temporary," Mrs. Grant explained.

According to the young clinician, not only are the fringe-group people using drugs, but youngsters from good homes are experimenting today. This fact implies that there are other reasons, besides emotional problems, as to why non-addictive drugs are in use.

Rose quoted a survey taken by the University of California at Los Angeles concerning LSD users. Of the seventy who presented themselves for study, only eight had no diagnosable mental disturbances.

For Argument's Sake Dr. Alan J. Pickering, director of the United Campus Christian Fellowship and a member of the audience at the discussion, brought several points to the attention of the panelists that might logically be used as a defense of drug use.

Though not advocating the general use of drugs, Dr. Pickering named two defenses for the sake of discussion.

"Is addiction, in itself, bad? We are all addicted to such things as food and sex—we suffer withdrawal symptoms," Pickering stated.

He then noted that the taking of aspirin for a headache was accepted, thus a drug antidote for depression is also logical.

Continuing with an addict's probable defense, Pickering stated that as citizens we have even the right to commit suicide. Society, he said, may warn of possible physical dangers that may occur because of an act (as is the case with warnings on cigarettes), but society should not and cannot prevent an individual from committing the act.

Rose replied that every human act has larger social implications — what a person does affects others. Why is morphine controlled, he asked? Because it is socially unacceptable to become a morphine addict, Rose answered.

"The world needs psychological maturity — drugs are crutches," Rose stated.

"The fun and games aspect would include such things as the growing of beards, dressing up in costumes, having dances, etc.," Miss Kallos said.

The cultural and educational area contains, continued Miss Kallos, an opportunity to "learn about Nebraska. We've never had this opportunity and will probably never have the chance to learn like this again, so we can't pass it up."

Ideas which she presented in this area are an inter-ethnic festival, for the various nationalities within the state, possibly sponsored by People-to-People. Young Democrats and Young Republicans could sponsor a seminar on Nebraska politics.

She also mentioned forums, speakers, Indian exhibitions, art exhibits, and other ideas designed to broaden the student's knowledge of the heritage and opportunities within his state.

In the public relations area, Miss Kallos stated that through a celebration such as this "the students of the University could change the negative attitude that most citizens have toward the University by active participation in the Centennial."

Hathaway® has a fitting conversation with Bill Cosby

Hathaway: Mr. Cosby, what do you look for in a button-down collar?

Cosby: The right size, mainly.

Hathaway: But isn't the shape of the collar important? The roll? The spread? Things like that?

Cosby: Doesn't help if the darn thing doesn't fit, does it?

Hathaway: No, I suppose you're right. But how about the collar of the Hathaway Club button-down you're wearing now? How does that feel?

Cosby: It fits, if that's what you mean.

Hathaway: Well, not really. I was hoping you'd say something about the look of the collar.

Cosby: Oh, I see. Well, you know what they say.

Hathaway: No, what?

Cosby: If the shirt fits, wear it.

Hathaway: Thank you, Mr. Cosby.
