

Political Satirist Art Buchwald To Appear In Union Thursday

Art Buchwald, whom Time magazine has called "the most successful humorous columnist in the U.S.," will speak at 3:30 Thursday afternoon in the Nebraska Union ballroom.

Buchwald, a political satirist, writes a news column which is syndicated in some 225 newspapers around the world. His appearance is being sponsored by the Nebraska Union Fine Arts Committee.

Buchwald's column has achieved "an institutional quality," as Time magazine put it.

He has written almost a dozen books, his latest being "... And Then I Told the President (The Secret Papers of Art Buchwald)."

In this book Buchwald says he personally solved most of the crucial issues of our times and helped to mold "The Great Society."

"Lyndon Johnson was a big help to me," he says, "he deserves a great deal of credit for anything I accomplished."

One of his books, "A Gift From the Boys," is a novel, but the others are collections of his columns, "I Chose Caviar", "More Caviar", "Don't Forget to Write", "How Much Is That In Dollars?", "Is It Safe to Drink the Water?", "I Chose Capitol Punishment".

Born in Westchester, N.Y., and raised on Long Island, Buchwald left home in 1942 and enlisted in the Marines. He edited his company newspaper on Eniwetok, where he was stationed for 3 1/2 years.

After his discharge from the service, he attended the University of Southern California. He was managing editor of the college humor magazine, columnist for its paper and author of one of its variety shows.

Buchwald then went to Paris as a student. Early in 1949 he took a trial column to the editorial offices of the European edition of the New York Herald Tribune. Entitled "Paris After Dark", it was filled with scraps of off-beat information about Parisian night life.

By 1952, his column, then called "Europe's Lighter Side", was syndicated in the American press.

Although Paris was his beat, Buchwald would go anywhere, and do almost anything, to gather the raw material for his columns.

He has marched in a May Day parade in East Berlin, chased goats up and down the mountains of Yugoslavia, climbed trees to get a better view of the races at Longchamps, and travelled all the way to Turkey to get a first-hand impression of a Turkish bath.

Speaker Invitation List Revised; Witches, LSD Proposed Topics

Witches, LSD and New England politics may find a platform at the University, according to a list of speakers and subjects proposed by the Nebraska Union Talks and Topics Committee.

The new proposed speakers will be invited by the committee to speak some time this year, according to Larry Grossman, chairman of Talks and Topics.

The list includes: William Buckley, Dr. Timothy Leary, Carl Oglesby, Professor Staughton Lynd, Major David Keho and Sybil Leech. A member of the Soviet Embassy in Washington, D.C., is also being invited.

"With the exception of Art Buchwald, other currently-slashed Talks and Topics speakers are not worth the money," Grossman stated.

He said that the scheduled speakers are good in their fields, but that people of more vital experience would generate more interest in the student body. For this reason, Grossman has proposed the second list of speakers.

William Buckley is a Republican from New York and one of the foremost conservatives in America, according to Grossman. Buckley is a past candidate for mayor of New York City and currently a columnist who also hosts a television forum on controversial issues.

Described by some as the "high priest of psychedelic drugs" Dr. Timothy Leary was the first publicizer of LSD and is also one of the proposed speakers for Talks and Topics.

Carl Oglesby is presently a student at Antioch College and is past national president of Students for a Democratic Society (SDS).

To introduce novelty appeal, Grossman has also proposed sponsoring Sybil Leech, an internationally-registered witch, who lectures on witchcraft and extra-sensory perception.

The author of "Flying Saucers—Serious Business," Major David Keho, will speak on the flying saucer situation, according to Grossman.

Professor Staughton Lynd of Yale University history department is one of three men who participated last year in a personal peace mission to Hanoi.

Grossman explained that the proposed list of speakers represents a variety of appeals to political, scholastic and social circles on campus.

Rehorn, Peace Candidate, Accepts U Thant Viet Idea

Claiming to offer an alternative to the current administration's Viet Nam policy, Tom Rehorn announced his candidacy Saturday to the U.S. Senate as a write-in peace candidate.

Bruce McSpadden, graduate student in political science at the University and Methodist minister, is chairman for the Rehorn For Senate Committee. McSpadden was former assistant at the University's Wesley Foundation.

Rehorn is a minister at the Fullerton Methodist Church in Fullerton, Neb. He has served as a community organizer in the poverty districts of Kansas City, and as a minister worked with low-income groups in North Omaha.

Rehorn supports United Nations Secretary General U Thant's three-point proposal for ending the war in Viet Nam, which calls for: unconditional cessation of U.S. Bombing in North Viet Nam de-escalation of all military activities in South Viet Nam, leading to a cease-fire by both sides; and American agreement to negotiate with the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front.

"Our nation has few voices in government seeking an honest peace in Viet Nam. Nebraska has two senators both supporting the Johnson administration's Viet Nam policy.

The citizens of Nebraska deserve the right to an alternative which presently they do not have," Rehorn said in a statement to the press.

Rehorn has spoken throughout the state on the Viet Nam issue and recently appeared in a television debate in which he stated that the U.S. position in Viet Nam is "legally untenable, morally outrageous and disastrous for the world community."

In other statements Rehorn condemns the Viet Nam war for using government funds which could be going to "important social programs like the War on Poverty, medical care and urban redevelopment."

McSpadden explained that the reason for Rehorn's candidacy for Senate is an effort to raise the issue of peace in Vietnam and to give the people an opportunity to take a position.

According to McSpadden, support for Rehorn has been building rapidly throughout the state since the announcement Saturday. Nebraskans for Peace in Vietnam, a local community organization, is backing Rehorn's candidacy. McSpadden said he expects major support from the University students and faculty.

'Could Be Problem' . . . IFC To Report Subrosa's Status

A report on the present status of subrosas at the University will be presented by Interfraternity Council (IFC) President Gary Larsen at 7 p.m. Wednesday night in the Nebraska Union.

Larsen said that IFC has been investigating the subrosa problem since second semester last year and that the report will reveal what they know is fact, as well as some of the possible rumors.

He explained that the IFC executive board had considered waiting longer before giving this report, but now they feel as much as possible on the subrosas should be brought out in the open.

The meeting Wednesday night was described by Larsen as an "educational meeting on the subrosas."

He said that it is possible that subrosas could once again be a problem on this campus and that all students need to understand the "subversive nature" of these organizations.

The last major move by IFC against any type of subrosa problem was in 1961. At that time membership records and rituals were exposed and the organizations were believed to have been discontinued on the Nebraska campus.

Don Ferguson, who was IFC president in the early 1960's and editor of the Daily Nebraskan, spoke to IFC about the problem of subrosas last spring.

He told IFC at that time that he did not know how many subrosa members there are today at the University, but that evidence showed they do exist.

He described subrosas as a "cancer that gets in a fraternity and eat away the basic fiber of the fraternity house" and he noted that they are "politically disruptive" on a university campus.

The best known subrosas in the past have been Theta Nu Epsilon (TNE) and Pi Xi for the male members and Rho Delta (Red Dots) for the female members.

Keys Delayed Until December, 175 Senior Women Participate

The AWS senior key system will not be operational until the second week in December, according to Carol Bischoff, senior key chairman.

The system was previously scheduled to become effective Nov. 1, but the lock company is behind in the University order due to other larger orders which receive priority, Miss Bischoff said.

Gene Klum, a representative of the R. L. White Company, said the second week in December would be the earliest possible date his company could install the special locks in the participating living units.

Klum added that the living units which placed their orders first would be the first ones to have a lock installed. The entire installation process will require about a month, Klum said.

The actual installation of the locks requires only one or two days, but the coding of each living unit's keys by the University will take several days, Miss Bischoff explained.

The keys will be coded so in the event a key is lost, officials will know to which living unit the key belongs by its distinctive code markings.

About 150 forms have been received by the AWS office from coeds participating in the key system. The total number of University women participating is not expected to exceed 175, Miss Bischoff said.

Builders To Hold Workers Meeting

Builders will hold a convocation Wednesday, Oct. 19, at 7 p.m. in the small auditorium of the Nebraska Union.

According to Connie Beals, publicity chairman, the purpose of the meeting is "to acquaint all the workers (and anyone else who's interested), with the purpose and activities of Builders."

Non-participating sorority houses, parental denials and a general lack of interest were reasons cited by Miss Bischoff for the small number of women who will have senior keys.

Participating living units have elected key chairman who will be responsible for their individual living unit's key system. The key chairman will supervise the administration and maintenance of the keys within their respective living units, Miss Bischoff added.

Hyde Park Talk Is Rescheduled

Hyde Park has been rescheduled for Wednesday at 3:30 p.m. because of satirist Art Buchwald's appearance in the soap-box forum slot on Thursday, according to Larry Grossman, chairman of Nebraska Union Talks and Topics Committee.

New Faculty Senate Members Discuss Roles On Committees

Eleven students were selected last week by ASUN, to fill student vacancies on Faculty Senate committees.

Tuesday afternoon, six of these individuals were contacted by the Daily Nebraskan on what they viewed their role on the committees to be.

The committee members were appointed by Terry Schaa, president of ASUN, and were approved by the Senate Executive Council.

Schaa stated that they were chosen on the basis of their applications. "Interviews were not held. I knew all of the students that applied but one, and I called this individual and talked with him."

One appointee, Jim Schreck, was chosen to serve on the subcommittee on Student Organizations. He stated that he is presently not in a "good position to answer" what his role would be.

"I will have to talk to Terry Schaa first. I am not well acquainted with the committee presently," Schreck explained.

"However, I think the basis behind having students on these committees is to develop a closer relationship between the faculty and the students. However, since the faculty does have a higher voice, we have to learn how to work with them."

"As to my individual committee, I do not know enough facts to say what my role will be," Schreck concluded.

"I didn't know I was on it," was Dianne Loennig's answer to the question of what her job on the Honors Convocation committee might be.

Dick Schulze was chosen to serve on the subcommittee on Student Social Affairs and Activities. He stated that he didn't know much more about the committee, other than its title.

"I don't know any more about it other than what is stated in the syllabus explaining the Faculty Senate committees. As of yet, there have been no meetings."

Schulze sees his most important job on the committee as that of being an improved committee member. He said that he understood, in the past, that the students who have served on the committees did not carry out their responsibilities and often did not attend the meetings.

"I believe the student members should actively participate in discussions within the committee," Schulze said. "I hope that this experience can enlighten me on how the student can assume more responsibilities and how the Faculty Senate works."

Robin Stickney, chosen to serve on the Scholarship and Financial Aids committee, believes that the criteria for receiving scholarships should be reviewed and possible revisions made.

"I don't think that the Administration sees the needs of the student. They base their judgments only on the parents' income and do not delve into the individual's problem," he declared.

NU Student Hospitalized Under Drug Influence

Federal members of the Food and Drug Administration will arrive Wednesday from Kansas to investigate the Monday arrest of a Lincoln man and a University student in connection with drug usage.

Lincoln Police arrived at the North 18th street residence at 8 p.m. after a call concerning sickness of a 20-year-old University youth, according to University Police Chief Eugene Masters.

The youth was taken by ambulance to Lincoln General Hospital, apparently suffering from the affects of a drug—possibly LSD. Police reports stated that he was in "semi-conscious condition and going through hallucinations."

Hospital authorities stated Tuesday that the youth is in satisfactory condition.

The youth's companion, a 20-year-old Lincoln man, was arrested in connection with dispensing drugs. The two men were alone when police officials arrived at the residence, according to Masters, who was called in on the case by the Lincoln Police Department.

Masters stated that this was the "first reported use of LSD on campus."

Both men are being held concerning the violation of a federal law which limits the usage of LSD to laboratory experiments and psychological therapy.

An amendment to the 1965 Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act makes it illegal to distribute any abusive drugs such as pep pills and sedatives. LSD was included in the list in May of 1966.

Abel Hall 'Concern' Is Praised

The Board of Regents Saturday released a statement commending Abel Hall residents for their "concern and actions" following the recent fire alarms at the dormitory.

"The students themselves are providing leadership for programs which we feel strengthen the University efforts in dealing with this type of problem," the Regents' statement read.

"Furthermore, the Board of Regents feels the leadership is a reflection of a responsible student body," the statement concluded.

Regents President Clarence Swanson stressed that the commendation came from the Board, and was not meant to express the view of the administration.
