Conduct Committee Investigates 'Rights'

The Student Conduct Committee of ASUN is presently investigating three areas involved with student rights, according to Dick Schulze, chairman of the committee.

"We presently have two committee members looking into the Publications Board structure and the ramifications of its actions. We are trying to create a stand on whether or not they really have any power in the censoring of student publications," Schulze explained.

Two other students are investigating the problem of obtaining speakers to come to the University. Schulze said that they are studying the present situation, the money factor in obtaining speakers and the channels which must be gone through.

Another committee member is preparing a report on the University's regulations of extra-curricular activities and the requirement for participation that are set by the University. Schulze added that the role of the faculty adviser to an organization will be looked into by the committee.

"I have several legal questions which I will be having investigation done on," Schulze stated. "These include the meaning of 'in loco parentis' and its ramifications, and whether or not procedural and substantive rights apply to the students, such as double jeopardy."

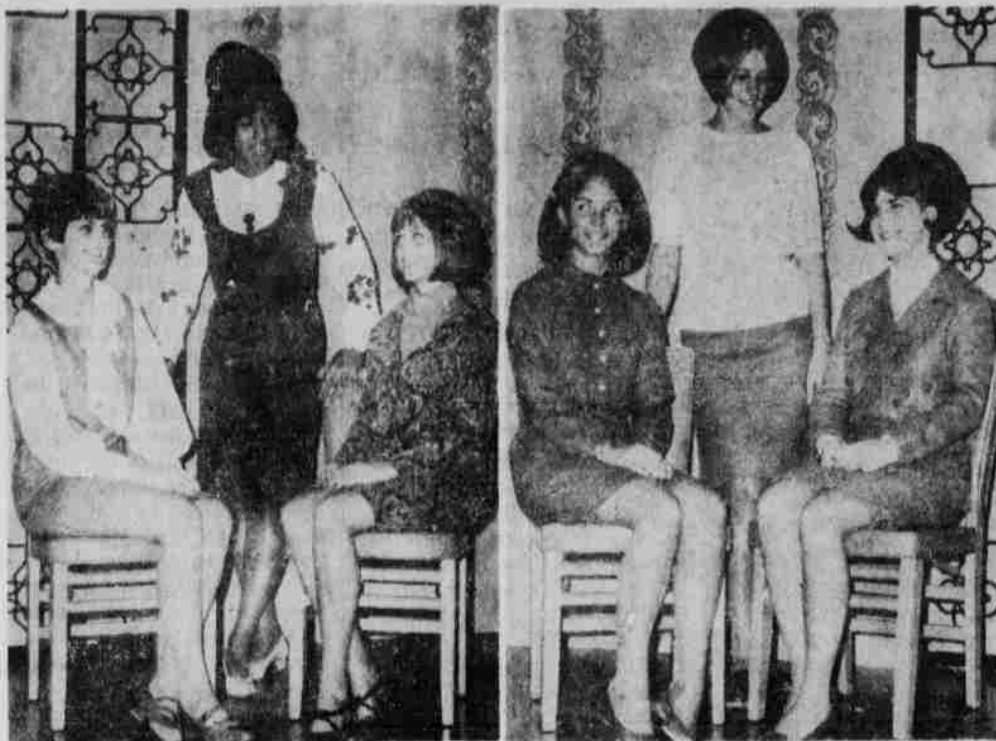

"The committee will be looking into whether or not students have the right to participate in any religious, social or political activity on or off-campus," he continued.

Schulze is presently laying the groundwork for committee members to speak to living units on the purpose of his committee.

"We will be talking to students on what we have done and what we hope to accomplish in the future," Schulze declared. "In addition we will be trying to establish what the feelings of the groups are in various aspects of student rights."

"The committee will be trying to get the student's ideas on such topics as total education. We are trying to work as closely with the student body as possible and to make ourselves as informed and aware of what the students think as we can," Schulze stated.

Rose To Present Research Paper

The chief of laboratory and medical research at the University of Nebraska Health Service, Dr. Kenneth D. Rose, will participate in a panel discussion and present a paper at the International Telemetering Conference Wednesday in Los Angeles.

He also will visit the biophysical instrumentation and physiological research laboratories of the Lovelace Foundation in Albuquerque, New Mexico.

Dr. Rose's paper is on "Problem Solving and Creating in Sports Medicine with Radiotelemetry." It gives the results of six years of research into the physiological changes which take place among athletes and fans while participating in or watching athletic events.

Petroleum Firm Gives NU Grants

The University of Nebraska has received a $3,000 grant from the Phillips Petroleum Company, according to Chancellor Clifford Hardin.

The grant is designed to support the development of students and teachers in the fields of critical importance to the petroleum industry. It will be used in the Colleges of Engineering and Architecture, Business Administration and Arts and Sciences.

Individual grants will be administered by deans and department heads in areas of greatest need for student and faculty awards.

Tiemann To Talk To Faculty Club

Norbert T. Tiemann, the Republican candidate for governor, will speak at the Faculty Club lounge at 12:30 p.m. Thursday.

The meeting is open to faculty members only. Tiemann will deliver a short statement and then will answer questions.

Student Senate To Move On Advisory Boards Bill

The Advisory Boards Bill, which was introduced at Student Senate last week, will be discussed in Wednesday's meeting.

Roger Doerr, vice president of ASUN, sees the bill as having "as much significance as anything ASUN has acted upon in the past two years."

"The significance lies in the change which could be forced upon the relationship between the student, the instructor and the administration," Doerr continued.

"This bill, if passed, could establish the student as an important cog in the relationship between him and the establishment of academic standards at the University."

Doerr stated that the advisory boards, as proposed, could be a factor in the type and quality of education within their colleges.

He believes this is possible because the bill would clarify the student's responsibility to his education. He also said it will give the student an outlet to change some things about his education, which could only be accomplished in an indirect manner in the past.

The Senate will also consider a change in administrative policy, at the request of Lee Chatfield, associate dean of student affairs.

The proposed change would involve the policy of adding a $10 service charge for non-payment of fees by the published deadline.

The fee would be assessed for late application for admission to the University, late report of health examination, late application for registration, late return of properly verified and completed copy of registration form, and late payment of tuition and fees.

The reason for this fee, according to Chatfield, is that the failure to meet the deadline results in additional clerical and administrative time.

"The $10 service charge should provide compensation to the University and should encourage students in promptness and reliability," Chatfield explained.

In other action, the Senate will elect a new senator to fill the seat vacated by Don Voss, from Engineering College. According to Doerr, the only one who has applied for the seat is Mike Jess, former senator who resigned his seat as a result of the Student Court decision on the reapportionment of Senate seats last Spring.

Also concerning reapportionment, Terry Schaff, president of ASUN will explain the alternatives surrounding the problem of Sen. Mark Schrieber's seat.

The Senate will incorporate a new period in its agenda Wednesday. A Free Discussion period will be New Business.

"The purpose behind this," Doerr explained, "is to give the Senators a chance to speak on anything that is gripping them. Also, within this period they can present ideas or question something which does not immediately pertain to any legislation before the Senate."

JFK Aide Endorses Brother

Former presidential aide Theodore Sorensen Tuesday made a strong statement backing his brother Phil for the governorship of the state.

At a press conference in Lincoln, Sorensen, an aide to the late President John F. Kennedy, lauded his brother, calling him a man "made in the JFK mold."

"I can no more imagine Nebraskans dropping Phil Sorensen from State government in these troubled times than I can imagine their dropping Bob Devaney from the football coaching staff," Sorensen said of his younger brother, who is completing a term as lieutenant governor.

A native of Lincoln and a graduate of the University, Sorensen said this is the first prolonged visit he has made to the state for some time. He said his statement backing the younger Sorensen had not been planned, adding that he is confident his brother will win the election.

"Otherwise, I wouldn't be here," he said.

Sorensen said he thinks the two Kennedy brothers, Robert and Ted, have "unlimited potential for the future." He added he does not think the Kennedys are making any long range plans.

"They know better than most people that in politics you don't count on the future; you just take one year at a time, one election at a time," Sorensen said.

If communications were good enough, you could stay in the sack all day

Moving your body around is highly inefficient.

If communications were perfect, you would never have to. Of course, you would still have to get exercise. But that's your problem.

We want to make it easier for you to contact people, learn, get information, attend lectures, and hold meetings.

We developed Picturephone* service so you can see as well as talk when you call. And be seen, too. We introduced Tele-Lecture service (two-way amplified phone calls) to let you hear lecturers in distant locations. And so you could ask them questions no matter how far away they were.

Right now, many students can dial from their dormitories to a language lab. Soon a student will be able to dial into a computer thousands of miles away to get information for his courses.

Depending on the nature of the information, he might get his answer back audibly, printed on a teletypewriter, as a video image, or a facsimile print.

Some of these services are available now. Others are being tested.

For the next week or so, better get a move on.
