Corps Volunteers To Inform, Recruit

Recruiters from the Peace Corps will visit the University Monday through Friday during Peace Corps Week.

Ed Connerley, a University graduate and former Corps volunteer in Africa, and Mr. and Mrs. Jim Owens form the three-member recruiting team.

They will sit at a booth in the Nebraska Union giving out Peace Corps information and applications.

They will show movies of Peace Corps volunteers in the Kenya Land Settlement in Africa Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at 7 p.m. in the Nebraska Union.

Peace Corps volunteers may take the admission tests Wednesday through Saturday at 3 p.m. in the Nebraska Union.

A volunteer need not know a foreign language or a technical skill, but will be trained by the Peace Corps, the recruiting team said.

Volunteers may be married or engaged, but if married they are not eligible to serve in the corps if they have dependents.

The University ranks 48 out of 200 schools in the number of students who have entered the Peace Corps.

Currently 52 University students are serving in the Peace Corps and 53 have returned from Peace Corps service. The major areas in which they served were Latin America.

Statistically, more males than females from the University have gone into the Peace Corps, the Corps public information agency reported.

The Peace Corps is five years old and serves in 56 countries.

Ten thousand men and women went into training last year, which was an increase of 20 per cent over 1965.

Since the program, 25,000 persons have served in the Peace Corps.

This year the Peace Corps will be at work in eight new nations or territories: Libya, Mauritania, Chad, Botswana, Paraguay, Guyana, South Korea, and the American Trust Territory in the Pacific.

A Peace Corps survey revealed that the Peace Corps volunteer or the person who thinks about becoming a volunteer tended:

- to come more from schools and homes in the East and West;
- to come from state (thus larger) schools;
- to major in liberal arts;
- to be active on campus in areas other than student government;
- to be more often women (although about 60 per cent of all volunteers are men);
- to have younger, better educated parents;
- to have fathers who are more often professional or executives;
- to come from higher income families.

Similar To Bill Of Rights NSGA Passes Position Statement

The Nebraska Student Government Association (NSGA) passed a "Statement of Position" regarding student conduct last weekend at their fall convention in Kearney.

The statement is similar to plans for an ASUN Bill of Rights, and its purpose is to "Preserve and to guarantee to the student . . . those conditions indispensable to the full achievement of the objectives of higher education."

Each item in the statement was voted on and passed by NSGA delegates. The statement includes various rights and privileges that the college student should have, according to Richard Thompson, University delegate and newly elected NSGA president.

The statement includes some of the following student rights:

- "The right of students upon entering the institution to a clear and concise statement of their contractual rights and obligations, and of their responsibilities to that institution."
- "The right to invite and hear speakers of their choice on subjects of their choice."
- "The right of students to choose their living environment in accord with their rights and responsibilities as a citizen of a free democratic society."
- "The right to petition proper channels for changes in curriculum and or faculty."

- "The right of students to a fair and impartial trial with substantive and procedural due process of the law in all disciplinary matters."
- "The right of any student organization to enjoy recognition by their institution, provided that these organizations comply with the procedural regulations for recognition as outlined by that institution."

Other provisions contained in the statement include:

- "The right of students, individually or in association with other individuals, to engage freely in off-campus activities, exercising their rights and responsibilities as citizens of the community, state, and nation, provided they do not claim to represent their educational institution."

—"The right of students to establish and issue publications free of any censorship or other pressure aimed at controlling editorial policy with the free selection and removal of editorial staffs reserved solely to the organizations sponsoring those publications."

—"The right of students employed by the member institutions to join or to form unions and enter into collective bargaining."

—"The right of every student to exercise his full rights and responsibilities as a citizen in forming and participating in campus, local and national organizations . . . and to publish and or disseminate his views and those of his organization on or off campus."

The NSGA is composed of twelve Nebraska colleges and universities. Its purpose is to discuss and find solutions to common problems which arise on a college campus.

Member schools include: The University of Nebraska, Kearney, Chadron, Hastings, Dana, Hiram Scott, Wayne, Doane, John J. Pershing, Wesleyan, Norfolk, and McCook.

Prospective member schools are being contacted in an effort to increase the size of the organization.

Delegates attending the convention from the University included Cheryl Adams, Charles Jurich, Richard Schultze, and Thompson. These delegates were elected by ASUN to attend the meeting.

Thompson, who is the former NSGA vice president, defeated Hugh Alexander from Doane College for the presidency. Thompson supported the NSGA "Statement of Position" throughout his campaign, while Alexander was opposed to the statement.

U.S. Grant To Create 3rd Center For Deaf

A regional media center for the deaf, one of three in the nation, is being established at the University with a $194,732 grant from the U.S. Office of Education.

The Board of Regents Saturday accepted the grant from the Office of Education's division of Captioned Films for the Deaf. The Regents also approved agreements with state and county agencies calling for the establishment of a Panhandle Mental Health Center and mental retardation facility at Scottsbluff.

Dr. Robert Stepp, associate professor of educational administration, was named director of the hearing center. Stepp has been nationally recognized for his work in developing materials for teaching the deaf and for conducting workshops and research seminars in the field of education for the deaf.

The main purposes of the center will be to develop and produce instructional materials for teaching the deaf, to conduct a national symposium on research and utilization of educational media for teaching the deaf and to conduct a summer institute for teachers of the deaf.

The grant for the center is expected to be renewed annually.

Plans for the Panhandle Mental Health Center call for construction of an estimated $150,000 facility to house the center which will handle mental patients from eight cooperating counties.

The mental health center is being established by cooperation of eight western Nebraska counties, the State Department of Institutions and the University's College of Medicine.

Application has been made to the National Institute of Mental Health for a construction grant to finance half the cost of the center facilities. The other half will be matched by these counties: Scottsbluff, Banner, Box Butte, Cheyenne, Deuel, Garden, Morrill and Sioux.

The center will offer services in the areas of consultation and education, services in local hospitals, outpatient service, emergency services and partial hospitalization of mental patients.

The center will also provide vocational rehabilitation for the mentally ill.

Residents Amend IDC Constitution

Dormitory residents have started to place their ideas for an Interdorm Council constitution into the form of amendments to the defeated constitution.

According to Tom Briggs, the Ad Hoc committee which published objections to the original document no longer exists.

Briggs said that he and former committee member Dave Snyder would be writing amendments separately to present at the next Interdorm Coordinating Committee meeting.

Dissenting dorms and students chiefly attacked the method of amendment and adoption, the method of referendum, the clause providing for non-voting memberships, and the lack of specificity on the council's purpose.

IDCC chairman Jim Ludwig said that the next meeting would be Nov. 30. Before that time he will be visiting dormitory meetings to personally seek out objections.

Ludwig added that amendments would be sought from dorm governments who had opposed the original constitution as well as from interested students.

He predicted that a new constitution could be completed by the first week after Christmas vacation, and said that the students would be given more time to consider the constitution than was granted before the last vote.

Pointing out that there were different reasons in different dormitories for defeating the constitution, Ludwig said that some were "legitimate disagreements" and some were due to lack of information.

Ludwig commented on the fact that the constitution was defeated by the dormitory vote system despite the unanimous vote on the document in committee, saying that "there was obviously something certain representatives couldn't or didn't foresee in their dormitories."

Briggs said that his particular amendments would divide dormitories into districts by population, provide for membership by all dorms, and be dependent upon passage by 50 per cent plus one of all students voting.

Briggs added that the name could be changed to "Association of Dormitory Residents", financial assessments should be made on a per-resident basis and amendments should be voted upon by the entire body of residents.

Lloyd Reeder, IDCC representative for Burr West, said that some city campus dorms had probably defeated the constitution because of lack of adequate information. He said that the East Campus dorms had not agreed with the constitution.

Dorothy Sato, IDCC representative for Pound Hall, said that she didn't see any conflict with current objections and the original IDC philosophy.

Miss Sato added that proposed amendments based on these objections would probably make the constitution more specific.

University To Relocate Greenhouse

A low bid of $76,676 for construction and relocation of the botany greenhouse was accepted by the Board of Regents Saturday.

The greenhouse will be moved slightly east of its present location between Burnett and Bessey Halls, but will not extend into the mall area. The greenhouse is being moved to clear the site for the construction of a new high-rise classroom-office building.

The low bid was submitted by the T. and M. Construction Co. of Lincoln.

The Regents also approved a $43,930 contract with the Manpower Administration of the U.S. Department of Labor under which the University will provide out-of-school employment for approximately 20 Neighborhood Youth Corps enrollees.

The enrollees will be working in the county extension offices throughout the state.

In other action the Regents approved $187,997 in grants and gifts received since Oct. 6.

The grants accepted included a $55,763 grant for training and consultation programs for the development of community recreation programs in southeastern Nebraska. The grant was made to W. D. Lutes, assistant director of the Extension Division.

Red Cross Blood Mobile Registers 220 To Donate

The University Red Cross will sponsor a traveling blood mobile Thursday from 9:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m. in the Pan American room of the Nebraska Union.

Approximately 220 donors have registered; 250 is the maximum number of donations that can be accepted, according to Trudy Lieberman, Red Cross board member.

Donors must register with Dorothy Yost before Thursday if they wish to give blood. Donors must be in good health, and at least 18 years of age. Students under 21 must have their parents permission before they can donate.

The donors must not have given blood within eight weeks of the donation time, and must have no communicable disease.

No person who has had any illness in the past month can give blood, nor can anyone have had the following diseases: jaundice, malaria, undulant fever, hay fever or other allergies, diabetes, or heart diseases.

Any student who has been immunized in the past two weeks can not give blood.

A donor can not eat for four hours before donating, except for the following foods: cereals, unfried chicken or fish, bread without butter, coffee, carbonated drinks, and vegetables.

Blood that is donated can be given to the general blood bank or designated for specific use. Donors are given points for the blood they give. This will give the donors family an advantage when they are in need of blood.

According to Miss Lieberman, the mobile was highly successful last year, and this year should measure up to last year's standards.

"This drive gives the student a chance to help other people by giving blood," she said.

The blood will not be used for defense, but will be used locally, according to Miss Lieberman.

Reps To Discuss Professional IFC

A meeting will be held for representatives of all University professional fraternities in order to continue plans for what might be the nation's first professional fraternity council Tuesday.

The meeting, which will be held at 7:30 p.m. in Love Library, will be the third meeting attended by the representatives to form some type of coordinating body.

Bruce McNickle, member of Delta Sigma Pi, said that all the fraternities had been sent letters about the meeting and urged a representative from each group to attend.

He said at the first two meetings representatives had agreed that by working together "all the professional fraternities can be aided greatly to begin performing a more important role at the University."
