

Hearing Set For Bill Cover Money Deficit

A public hearing on LB440, a bill to grant the University extra money to finish this biennium, is set for 2 p.m. Wednesday.

The hearing, before the Legislature's Budget Committee, will be in the governor's hearing room at the Statehouse.

The bill was introduced by Legislative Speaker Sen. Elvin Adamson. It would appropriate $569,612 to make up a University budget deficit. The bill includes an emergency clause that would make it effective immediately after it is signed by Gov. Norbert Tiemann.

The University requested the supplemental appropriation when they found that the school would be lacking funds to finish the present biennium, which ends June 30, in the black.

Chancellor Clifford Hardin blamed the funds shortage estimates and Legislature cutting of the 1965-67 appropriation.

The University got $34.4 million in tax funds from the Legislature for the biennium. Administrators had requested $42.1 million.

The budget figures were based on enrollment projections of 10,000-12,000 students while the actual total enrollment in the fall of 1965 hit 15,000.

When administrators discovered last spring that the University would come up short of funds, they met with the Legislature's Budget Study Committee. The solution reached was the supplemental appropriation request.

There had been discussion of a tuition increase or an assessment on students to make up the shortage.

If the University is not granted the appropriation, the school can continue to operate by shutting down some of the campus' regular operations, according to Vice Chancellor Joseph Sosnhik.

Sosnhik said heat in campus buildings could be turned off or down, some planned maintenance work could be put off and corners could be cut in many other places.

The Legislature has already dealt with several other supplemental appropriations, including one to give the senators their paychecks for December. All of these appropriations were quickly approved in committee and on the floor.

The University bill was introduced at the request of Gov. Norbert Tiemann.

English 229 . . . Senator Develops 'Take Home' Class

A "take home" English course for University students has been developed by Neshia Neumeister, a member of the Student Senate.

Miss Neumeister explained that the course would be based on the "advanced standing policy." In other words, students would register for the course, read the required novels during the summer, and if they passed a test in the fall, they would receive credit for the course.

"The course will be English 229, the American novel, and the student will receive three hours credit for it upon passing," Miss Neumeister stated.

The course will be offered only on the pass-fail basis, with the grade being determined solely from whether the individual passed the test in the fall.

Registration for the course will be from May 15 to 15, with the interested student having to pay $43.25 for taking the course, at the time of registration. She stressed the fact that the $43.25 is comparable to the cost of taking a correspondence course and is what three hours credit would cost based on the average 12 hour instructional load.

The course will be organized by Robert Hough, assistant Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences and professor of English.

"The class will be limited to 30 students, on a first come-first serve basis, with participating students having to have a 2.5 cumulative average at the date of registration," Miss Neumeister continued.

An orientation meeting will be held between the students and Dean Hough shortly after May 15 to decide upon what novels will be covered. A study guide and syllabus will also be provided.

"Next fall, there will be two or three meetings during which Dean Hough will explain the main points of the novel and answer any questions on them," she said.

The test will not be a highly strict, classroom type of final according to Miss Neumeister. "It could be open book or possibly it could be given to the student and he could use the library, etc."

The final drop date for the course will be June 30.

Short Course Diplomas For 55

Fifty-five students received certificates at the completion of the first term of the 1966-67 Nebraska Farm and Ranch Operators Short Course.

Students enrolled in the short course are young farmers and ranchers who do not plan a college career but desire to keep up with today's complex farm business.

Enrollees, who ranged in age from 17 to 39, have spent an average of slightly more than six hours a day for eight weeks in supervised classroom and laboratory instruction or on the East Campus. Five have completed two terms.

The men living at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education established a first in organizing their own student government and developing a well-rounded cultural and social program during their school term.

and development laboratories of the center.

A trip in December went to Nellis AFB in Las Vegas, a flight training school for pilots who will be flying planes in Vietnam and Southeast Asia, Bowers said.

"They were able to talk to the returnees from Vietnam who were instructing the pilots. And they were also able to talk with some pilots who were soon going to be flying over there," he said.

Not all of the trip is devoted to air bases. The cadets were given a day and a night in Las Vegas.

A September trip was to Kansas City for a demonstration by the Thunderbirds, the air force stunt flying team.

"We once took the cadets to March AFB in Riverside, Calif. to view the B-52 bombers, similar to those stationed on Guam which make bombing runs over Vietnam," Bower explained.

"It gives the students a chance to actually see for themselves what they hear about in the classroom. This is practical application of the classroom procedure," Bowers explained.

Air Force Weekend . . . ROTC Field Trip Goal To Inform Men Of Jobs

By Jim Evinger Junior Staff Writer

This year 200-300 University air force ROTC students will be flown in air transport planes to air bases, research and development labs and pilot training bases throughout the United States, according to Col. William Bowers, professor of aerospace studies.

These weekend field trips are to the air ROTC program as labs are to science courses, Bowers said.

Around eight trips a year are taken on unbooked air transports provided by the Strategic Air Command base at Omaha, with 50 students going each trip. Dr. B. N. Greenberg, University regent, and Frank Ullman, professor of electrical engineering, accompanied the trip to Wright-Patterson AFB, Wright, Ohio, last weekend.

University faculty frequently go along with the students.

A variety of types of air bases are visited to give the students a chance to become acquainted with the type of air force work in which they are interested. A recent trip to a Tennessee aerodynamics engineering station was open to engineering majors. The tour went through the research

Enrollment Sets 2nd Term Record

Second semester enrollment at the University was announced Wednesday as 15,856 students, an all-time spring term record, according to Lee Chatfield, associate dean of student affairs.

This marks the eighth straight spring term that University enrollments have increased. The record is a gain of 7,887 students over the spring of 1960.

There are 10,704 men enrolled and 5,152 women.

Chatfield said the spring enrollment usually drops off about five or six percent from the fall term, based on studies of the recent years.
