

MSU Bill of Rights Protest-Prompted

From News Sources
The 40,000 students at Michigan State University have guaranteed their right to question an instructor's teaching practices with a Bill of Rights.

The document, which provides for a University liaison to help students settle complaints quickly by cutting red tape, was approved by the MSU Board of Trustees.

The Faculty Committee on Student Affairs and the Academic Council have spent more than a year working on the document.

Demonstrations Impetus
Student demonstrations around the country prompted the proposal, according to a committee spokesman. Under the bill, University regulations are limited only to those for which a need is demonstrated "reasonably related to the basic purposes and necessities of the university."

Regulations governing student conduct will be formulated after consultation with students. If students feel any regulation is inconsistent with the bill, they can appeal it.

Consider Complaints
The bill recognizes that "the competency of a professional can be rightly judged only by professionals" but requires departments to set up channels for consideration of student complaints about the quality of instruction.

The document is "one of the most responsible and well-performed jobs" the faculty organization has ever done, MSU President John Hannah said.

Another MSU official, Durward Varner, said the bill gives students a clear indication that the University takes the concerns of the students seriously and is willing to deal with them on a serious level.

Grading Provision
A "good faith" grading provision specifies that an instructor shall grade solely on his good faith judgment of the work done by the student in a course not because of any personal bias, according to Provost Howard Neville.

The right of privacy guarantees that unless a student gives his consent in writing no one outside a member of the faculty or staff shall have access to records of a student's offenses against university.

In addition, there is a provision which requires that "All policies dealing with acquisition of information for records shall be formulated with due regard for the students' right of privacy."

Naming Cartoon, Queen Part of Greek Festivities

A "Name the Greek Week Greek" contest kicks off the 1967 Greek Week to run Sunday, April 9.

Contest entrants should submit names for the Greek cartoon character, giving him a name that best represents the fraternity-sorority system at the University. Posters around campus will give details.

Plans for the Week
Gov. Norbert Tiemann will address Greek members Tuesday, April 4 in the Nebraska Union. The Astronauts combo will play at the all-University Centennial Ball Friday, April 7. Princess Athena will be selected at the ball and winners of the Centennial beard-growing contest will also be announced.

Six finalists for Miss Princess Athena have been chosen by the IFC executive board and Panhellenic council.

NU Students Aid In Goodwill Drive

Some University students joined with local industry, labor, Boy Scouts and local residents of Lincoln on behalf of the handicapped at Lincoln Goodwill Industries, last Saturday.

The event was the 11th annual Boy Scout Good Turn for Goodwill where over 7,000 Boy Scouts visited local homes for donations to Lincoln Goodwill Industries.

Collections Taken
The Goodwill bags were loaded onto trucks and brought to the Lincoln Goodwill warehouse, where the unloading was done by members of the Alpha Gamma Rho pledge class and members of Alpha Phi Omega, an honorary service fraternity for former Boy Scouts.

Girls from Canfield House in Sellick served coffee to drivers and student helpers.

Students In Action

John P. Gedwillo, executive of Lincoln Goodwill Industries, commented that "the people who are advertising University students for being irresponsible and dedicated only to their own pleasure, should have seen these students in action."

Hospitality Days Offer Possible Future Jobs

"Our Future Unlimited" is the theme for the annual Hospitality Days, to be presented April 15 by the School of Home Economics.

The purpose of the program is to acquaint high school girls with the career possibilities in the field of home economics; this year's theme stressing the unlimited and vast areas open in the field.

The program will consist of displays presented by the various departments and a fashion show.

A boutique of unusual fashions made from such diverse materials as vinyl, plastic, paper, and fishnet, and designed by the students is intended to show the originality and fun in home economics.

Other displays will include an exhibit of astronaut food and soybeans by the Department of Food and Nutrition. The Department of Family Economics and Management plans to show the changes in home laundry appliances.

Another fashion show presented by the School of Home Economics will be held April 14 and is open to the public.

Ten Named As NU Pageant Finalists

Ten coeds advanced to the finals of the Miss UNIVERSITY OF NEBRASKA pageant Tuesday following an evening of talent and bathing suit competition.

The winner of the final competition April 9 will be eligible to compete in the Miss Nebraska finals this summer from which a representative will be chosen for the Miss America pageant.

The ten finalists, chosen from 33 entrants, include: Susie Diffenderfer, Vicki Dowling, Cindy Foreman, Russell Haase, Vicki Hak-anson, Carli Kling, Judi Lattin, Pam Oswald, Susie Panek, and Terry Schmidt.

Final judging will be based on talent, formal and bathing suit competition, and individual interviews, according to Juliana Kemist, assistant chairman of the Nebraska Union hospitality committee which is sponsoring the pageant.

In addition to advancing to the state pageant, Miss University of Nebraska will receive a $150 scholarship, gift certificates, and free tickets to next year's bowl games, Miss Kemist said.

The upbeat buttondown.

Everything about this Arrow Decton Perma-Iron shirt is traditional — except the fact that it refuses to wrinkle. And that may start a whole new tradition. Note the wide stripes, the just-so roll of the collar. It's in a blend of Dacron polyester and cotton that's "Sanforized-Plus". In other stripes, solids and whites, too. A winner at $7.00.
