Summer Nebraska

No. 1

Hardin, Sorenson Welcome Students

Frank E. Sorenson

The University of Nebraska is proud to be able to offer air-conditioned dormitory space and excellent food services to all students enrolled for summer courses. While the Nebraska Union will be in a partial state of expansion and renovation during the 1967 sessions, many of the quality services in the areas of foods, recreation and informal education will be provided as usual.

The expanded schedule of summer sessions courses should prove of interest to the majority of students enrolled for summer classes. The summer schedule has been expanded so as to accommodate about 6,800 students. The Graduate College and the Advanced Professional Division of Teachers College will enroll about 2,500 persons. The remaining 4,600 undergraduate students will be enrolled in departments identified with the colleges offering summer sessions programs.

The University of Nebraska Summer Sessions Calendar for 1967 lists the many special opportunities open to persons enrolled in the Summer Sessions. Reference in this calendar is made to the five very important Centennial Institutes and two World News and Views programs which will feature a NASA space astronaut and a distinguished member of the Supreme Court of the state of New York. New for the 1967 Summer Sessions are the three programs offered under the heading "Time for Enjoyment." Also of great interest should be the Summer Cinema Series which presents the best of films of recent years, including the best in international films.

The Summer Nebraskan is your best source of information regarding the many opportunities open to students. A supplementary source of information will be the special bulletin boards located in the halls of campus buildings. Programs listed, we believe, will contribute significantly to enrich opportunities for learning.

Orientation Will Begin

The fourth series of 1½ day summer orientation programs for entering students and their parents will begin Wednesday and continue through August 4.

Last year 4,000 parents and new students participated and up to 5,000 are expected to visit University of Nebraska campus this summer.

The orientation program has two main purposes:

—To give each student a maximum of individual attention so that all questions about academic work and student life can be answered before beginning the fall term;

—To give parents an opportunity to understand the aims of the University, what the University expects of its students, to ask questions about costs, clothing, rules and procedures, and to become personally acquainted with University staff members and students.

Robert Scott, coordinator of student activities, has coordinated the summer program this year with University faculty members and 14 students.

Each entering student and his parents will be invited to participate in the 1½ day orientation program which will include separate sessions to parents and new students. Those attending will have an opportunity to stay in one of the University's newest residence halls, named in honor of Mari Sandoz.

The 1967 Summer Session promises to be an outstanding one.

For months, Dr. Sorenson and members of the University of Nebraska administrative staff have been working to assure program excellence. Planning the Summer Session is a year-round occupation at the University.

You will be interested to know that the enrollment this summer is at a record high level. When final figures are tabulated, the total probably will be close to 6,800.

We believe this record enrollment reflects the continuing growth in the demand for educational expertise, and it also reflects the maturity of the Summer Session as an integral part of the total program of the University.

We hope that you will enjoy your stay here and that it will prove to be a profitable experience for you.

Series Brings Leaders

A Centennial series of summer institutes with the theme "Culture in Transition" will introduce five nationally known lecturers to the University of Nebraska campus, announced Frank E. Sorenson, director of the Summer Sessions.

The series was planned by the departments of art, agricultural economics, English, music and theatre with the support of the University Research Council, the Nebraska Union and Summer Sessions.

"The institutes offer leaders in all types of human activity an opportunity to assess the American pattern of organizations in relation to the changing environment of man—from something quite simple to something quite complex," Sorenson explained.

This new knowledge gained by assessment and evaluation can be used to provide new and hopefully more effective programs of progress for the tomorrows, he said.

While here each speaker will spend several days with University faculty and graduate groups in addition to giving a public lecture, Sorenson said.

Speakers Listed

The Art Centennial Institute will introduce Midwest artist Richard Kenneth Randall on June 29.

Randall served for three years as assistant to the Minneapolis sculpture John Rood, following his studies in art at the University of Minnesota. From 1960-64 he operated the Mendota Sculpture Foundry in St. Paul.

Beginning in 1957 and continuing up to the present, Randall gave instruction at Hamline University, Macalister College, University of Minnesota and Sacramento State College.

He has exhibited his art objects at the Minneapolis Institute of Art, Walker Art Center in Minneapolis, Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts, Detroit Institute of Arts, Art Institute of Chicago, San Francisco Museum of Art, St. Paul Gallery and School of Art and Royal Marks Gallery in New York.

The Agricultural Economics Centennial Institute will feature speakers Ivan L. Bennett, Jr. and Lester R. Brown on July 6 at Nebraska Center for Continuing Education.

Dr. Bennett was certified as a diplomat of the Amer-
