

ReMarks . . .

By MARK GORDON

If Bear Bryant's Alabama Crimson Tide manage to defeat their first six opponents this fall, the Tide will own the second longest unbeaten streak in modern-time college-football.

Alabama, which has not been upset since Georgia triumphed 18-17 in the 1965 opener, has scored 17 straight wins, including two bowl victories over the Huskers.

The modern-day record was set by Bud Wilkinson's 1953-57 Oklahoma Sooners crews, which amassed 45 consecutive wins before Notre Dame ended it with a 7-0 upset.

The second-longest modern streak was Arkansas' 22 wins which was finally ended by a 14-7, 1966 Cotton Bowl defeat by Louisiana State.

Following Arkansas, 22 wins are 19 apiece by Alabama in 1961-62 and LSU in 1957-59.

The Tide is currently ranked second in this week's Associated Press poll following Notre Dame.

STABLER REINSTATED

Ken Stabler, the quarterback who was recently reinstated after Bryant suspended him for alleged training violations, will lead the Tide against Florida State Saturday at Birmingham.

The Tide will remain in Alabama the next two Saturdays meeting Southern Mississippi and Mississippi before traveling to battle Vanderbilt and returning to Birmingham to face Tennessee in what could be 'Bama's 22nd straight triumph.

Assuming they eliminate those five crews, Alabama will meet Clemson with a chance to break Arkansas' record.

From scouting reports, the Tide appears to have as much if not more speed and quickness than last year's Sugar Bowl champs and they may continue unbeaten this season if everything jells.

THREE-FOR-THREE

While Alabama rolls along, so does this column's Big Eight predictions. We have a three-game streak going after hitting on all games last week excluding Oklahoma State's scoreless tie against the Air Force Academy.

Texas Tech over Iowa State: Clay Stapleton isn't bowing out as head coach in the Cyclone's most successful season. Iowa State was soundly trounced by South Carolina last week and the boys from Lubbock, Tex., are out to impress an opening night crowd.

Colorado over Oregon: Oregon lost to California by eight points a week ago while the Buffaloes clubbed Baylor by 20 points. With or without Wilmer Cooks, a punishing runner, Bob Anderson, who seems to have replaced Dan Kelly at quarterback, will defeat the Ducks at Portland in a regionally-televised match.

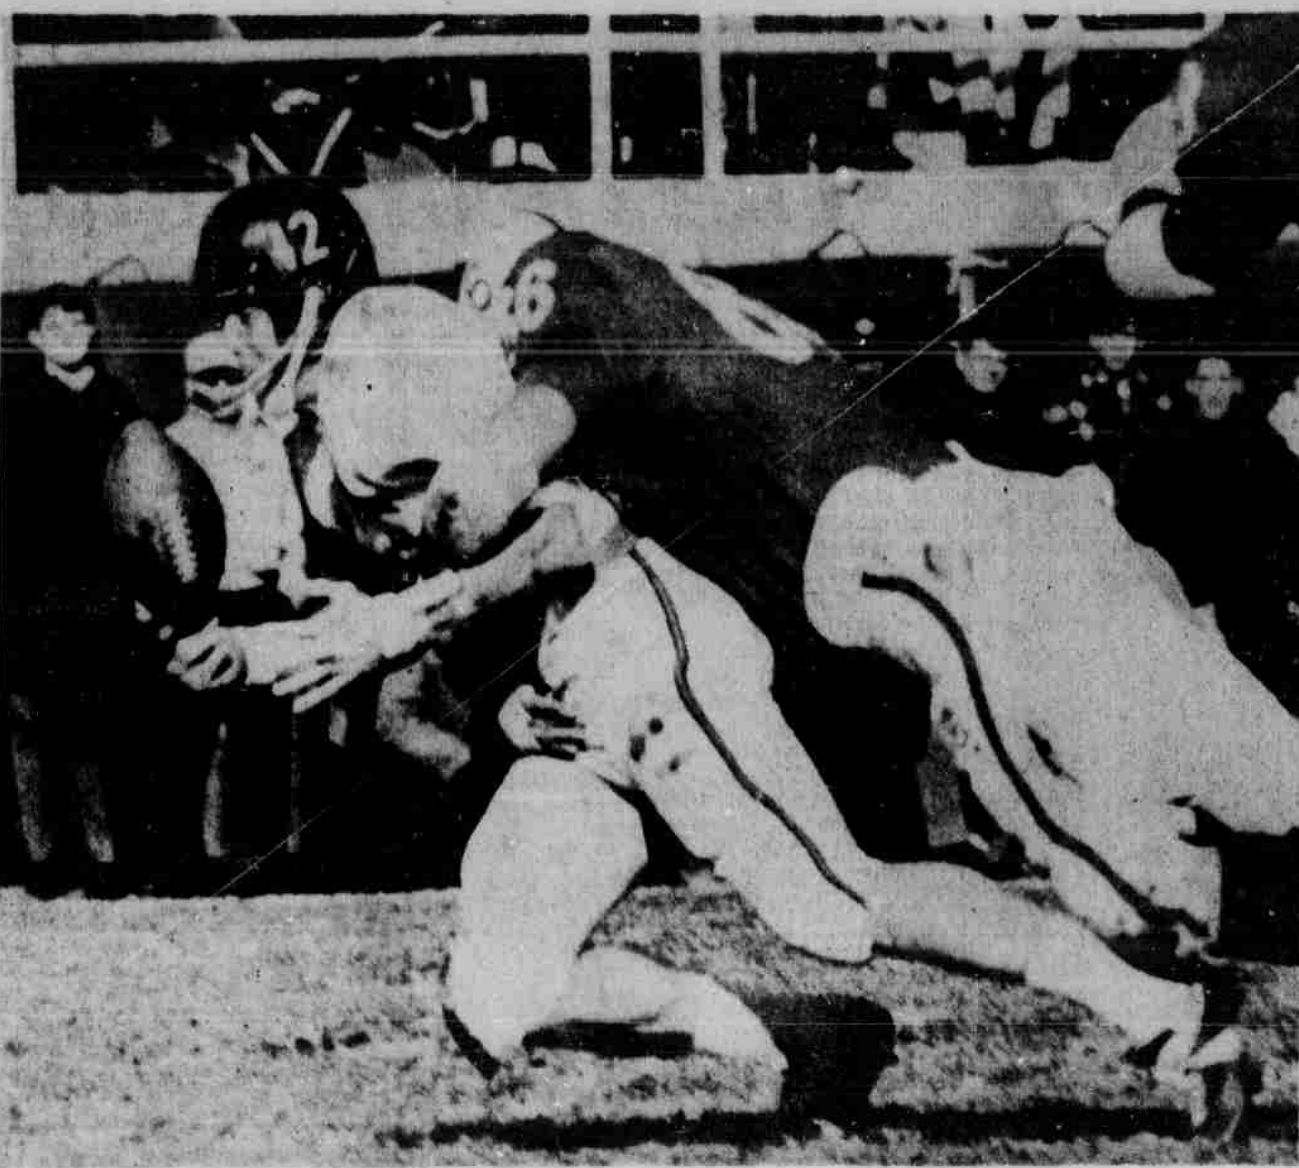

Colorado State over Kansas State: The Rams were 7-3 a year ago, including a 34-0 blasting of Iowa State, and they return 26 lettermen. Even with 1966 Big Eight rushing leader Cornelius Davis, the Wildcats won't score their first win for new coach Vince Gibson.

Arkansas Over Oklahoma State: The Cowboys were ineffective offensively in the scoreless tie with Air Force and will find even more trouble scoring against the potent Arkansas crew at Little Rock.

Stamford over Kansas: Kansas may have a new coach, Pepper Rodgers, some new faces and All-Big Eight defensive linebacker Mike Sweatman, but basically it is the same Jayhawk crew that has only won four games over the past two seasons.

Southern Methodist over Missouri: A real toughie. Both teams appear strong and an opening crowd record of 51,000 is expected to witness the battle at Columbia. Missouri has a potential All-American in 275 pound offensive tackle Russ Washington and SMU, which defeated Texas A&M 20-17 last week has Jerry Levas, a wingback who was named College Back of the Week by the AP this week.

Oklahoma over Washington State: The Sooners open at Norman and appear to have the nod over WSU. QB Bob Womack has Eddie Hinton at halfback and kicker Mike Vachon, who booted four points to upset the Huskers last Thanksgiving.

Meylan Named College Lineman Of The Week

Wayne Meylan has picked up where he left off after being named a consensus All-American in 1966.

The 6'-239-pound Nebraska middle guard has been named College Lineman of the Week by the Associated Press after earlier being picked as the Big Eight's Lineman of the Week.

Meylan, who was credited with 13 unassisted tackles against the Washington Huskies Saturday, was instrumental in keeping the Huskies to seven points.

Coach Bob Devaney agreed completely with the choice of the Bay City, Mich., native.

"Not only is he the best defensive lineman I've ever coached, but right now he is the best middle guard in the United States," Nebraska's football boss said.

Considering Devaney also tutored another All-American middle guard, Walt Barnes in 1964, Meylan has overshadowed some formidable opposition to Devaney's title of being the best man at his position in Devaney's coaching regime.

Meylan isn't resting on past accomplishments, as he tries to lead the Huskers to their fifth straight Big Eight title.

"Last year is in the past," the aggressive tackler said, "Now we are starting over and we want to make it big."

Meylan also gained recognition in 1966 as a junior after possibly becoming the nation's top scoring interior lineman after blocking three punts and recovering two of them for touchdowns against Wisconsin and Kansas State.

Meylan, named Big Eight Player of the Year in 1966 by the United Press International, led a defense that set a school rushing defense record.

Injuries Sideline Husker Gridders

With less than ten days remaining before the Huskers open their home season against the Minnesota Gophers Sept. 30 at Memorial Stadium, injuries still are of primary concern to coach Bob Devaney and staff.

Offensively, tackle Jerry Patton, flanker Tom Penney and guard Mel Brichacek were sidelined with injuries against Washington and halfback Mick Ziegler, has been lost for the season with torn knee ligaments.

Tackle Dan Delaney and end Paul Critchlow, who failed to see action in the Husker opener, were still hampered by leg injuries as Nebraska swung into the first week of practice in a two-week layoff before the Minnesota clash.

Athletics Require ACT, SAT Scores

Athletes must have either their ACT or SAT test score recorded with the Director of Admissions.

Athletes who haven't taken and passed one of these tests, may take the SAT at 8:15 a.m. Saturday in room 225, Nebraska Hall.

Frosh Football Hopefuls Get Praise For Progress

By Charles Davies

"Right now we are finding out who can play defense and who can play offense," said freshman football coach Cletus Fischer, whose Husker yearlings have undergone two weeks of practice.

He said the freshmen have been working at both offensive and defensive positions to determine where they can produce best.

Fischer, beginning his first year as freshman coach, said that at the end of the week the players will be assigned to either the offensive or defensive platoon for Nebraska's opener against the Kansas State Wildcats at Manhattan Oct. 20.

RECEIVERS PRAISED

Fischer said his team has displayed "quite a bit of progress and the spirit has been real good."

He added that the freshmen held a short scrimmage last Saturday and will have another scrimmage against the varsity Saturday to determine their team positions.

Fischer singled out Guy Ingles, a 5' 9" 150 pound back from Omaha and Fred Holstein, a 6' 180-pounder from Rushville, for doing an outstanding job of catching the football in last week's scrimmage.

The offensive backs and line also "did a good job on the whole," Fischer added.

TWO SIDELINED

Looking towards the negative side, Fischer said that injuries might sideline two of his men for the remainder of the season.

Quarterback David Boyd, from Wichita, Kan., will definitely be out of the season, while Marlin Terwilliger may possibly be out for this season.

Kansas State, which bowed to the Husker freshmen 40-13 at Lincoln last year, has possibly the finest team ever, Fischer surmised.

The Wildcat yearlings scrimmaged against the Wildcat varsity last Saturday and the frosh were reported to have done well against them, Fischer added.

"Harrison Russell, an Omaha Tech graduate, also looked good," the coach said.

Cornhusker Bowlers To Try Out

Bowlers may register until 10 a.m. Saturday for a roll-off position on Nebraska's Big Eight bowling team at the Nebraska Union games desk.

A nine-game opening round will be rolled beginning at 10 a.m. Saturday at the Union bowling lanes.
