Two Courses Complete NFU Roster Registration Drive To Start; Classes Open Week Later

SIDEWALKS REFLECT LEAFY IMAGES . . . when sudden showers fashion aqueous mirrors.

With two additional courses, the Nebraska Free University (NFU) is starting its five-day registration drive Monday.

The new subjects, recently added to the NFU course description booklet, bring the total number offered this semester to 21, according to Susie Phelps, chairman of the ASUN's NFU Committee.

Registration for the courses will be from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily, Monday through Friday in a booth in the Nebraska Union.

"Anyone interested in taking a course should first get an NFU booklet," Miss Phelps said, "and then sign the course sheet at the booth."

Students will be given cards with notification of the time and place of the course's first meeting and a duplicate will be sent to the course leaders.

"There is no limit on the number of courses a student may register for," she said. "Last year some signed up for as many as four courses."

The amount of time a student has to devote to the courses will be the student's only limitation, she added.

The NFU, entering its second semester at the University, is a no-cost collection of courses following a non-academic approach to areas of interest to students.

Leaders were allowed to arrange courses for subjects of interest to them, Miss Phelps said, and will lead discussion during the meeting.

"I suspect that the great majority of those registering will be in the first few days," Miss Phelps said. "There is more interest this year and students will know whether or not they will have the time for these courses."

Some course leaders have indicated a preference for a restricted number in their classes, she said. This means that some courses will be closed when they reach their maximum enrollment.

The lowest maximum this year is 10 in one course, Miss Phelps said, while unrestricted enrollment courses could run as high as 60 or more students.

"We feel that the courses this year are related to current problems and interests," she said, pointing out the courses on psychic stimulants and the war in Vietnam.

"This Vietnam course can be especially well-coordinated with the Vietnam referendum," said Miss Phelps.

The Student Senate Ad Hoc

Committee on Vietnam is currently preparing seminars and a referendum on the conflict in Southeast Asia.

"Human Relations Workshop" and "Buddhism — The Philosophy and the Religion" are the two additional courses announced just this week-end.

According to the NFU booklet, "Human Relations Workshop" is "designed to help participants in learning more about themselves as persons in interpersonal and social situations."

Led by Ronald Feintech, staff psychologist, University

Counseling Service, the Workshop will also concern itself in increasing skills in group membership and leadership.

The time and place for this course may be obtained at the NFU booth.

"Buddhism" will be studied both as a religion and a way of life, in the second new course.

Led by Perry Thorndyke, the topics will include the origins and development of the religion and the evolution of present-day schools.

The course will meet Mondays at 9 p.m. beginning Oct. 16 at the Wesley Foundation.

Committee To Inform Students On Housing ... Election On Nov. 11

A subcommittee of ASUN's Special Projects Committee has been organized to inform the University community about the Minimum Housing Code, according to Jean Altemeyer, chairman of the committee.

Lincoln voters will decide Nov. 14 in a city election whether the code should be adopted, Miss Altemeyer said.

The code, if passed, would set up standards for regulating housing, she said, which would establish what conditions are safe or unsafe. If a particular building is declared unsafe, procedures would be taken to have the building condemned.

REQUIREMENTS

Miss Altemeyer explained that the code would require adequate sanitation, electrical circuits, size (for number of occupants), and fire prevention.

"University students should be interested in the code because many students living off campus are living in substandard living conditions," she said. Many foreign students are in this situation.

Wayne Kuncel, foreign student advisor, stated that he was in favor of the minimum Housing Standards Code.

FOREIGN STUDENTS

"Many foreign students want to find housing that is both inexpensive and close to campus, and often these residences are substandard," he said.

Kuncel said that there are 193 students attending the University this year, and that only 28 are living in dormitories. He also said that last year 48 foreign students had their families with them.

The committee, Miss Altemeyer explained, is composed of students from several organizations as YWCA, Newman Club, Hillel, Wesley Foundation, Towne Club, and the Student Association of Foreign Students.

PRESENT FACTS

"We are planning to contact faculty, administration, University employees and voting age students to present them with facts of the minimum housing code," she said.

The United Ministries to Higher Education will handle publicity of the code, she said, and Bob Zucker is in charge of contacting organizations to arrange for speakers on the code.

Miss Altemeyer said that the committee will have an open meeting at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Nebraska Union.

IDA: Deferred Rush Will Infringe On Rights ... Supports ASUN Position

By JAN PARKS
Junior Staff Writer

The Inter-Dormitory Association Council (IDA) approved a resolution last week supporting the position taken by ASUN which opposes the imposition of deferred rush on the University Greek system.

The resolution states that deferred rush would be an infringement on student's rights to choose where they want to live.

Vice president Dave Shonka, who introduced the resolution, felt that "forcing people into the dormitory system would split loyalties in the dorms."

COORDINATION

Shonka said that the passage of the resolution "would improve co-ordination between the Greek and Independent systems."

Representatives from the Inter-Fraternity Council and Panhellenic Association also attended the meeting.

Sid Logemann, IFC secretary, encouraged the passage of the resolution by saying,

"it's time we worked together on many things."

IDA REPORT

President Brian Ridenour reported on meeting of executives from IDA, IFC and Panhellenic. Ridenour said that discussion covered deferred rush, co-ed visiting, and a coordinating board between the three organizations.

"This joint committee has a lot of potential," said Ridenour, "and could strengthen relationships between Independents and Greeks."

Ridenour explained that the board was still in the planning stage, but that one of its purposes would be to serve as a complaint board for infringements of one group upon the other.

APPOINT JUSTICES

The Council approved the appointment of justices for the IDA court. Ridenour said that 17 people went through interviews for the court positions.

Chief justice is Ted Suhr, a fifth year student from Sells Quadrangle. Court justices are Mary

FORM COMMITTEE

The Council favored a suggestion made by Russ Brown, administrative assistant to the dean of student affairs that a committee be organized to decide on the jurisdiction of dormitory court systems.

The committee, to be composed of representatives from individual living groups, will decide which court in the dormitory judicial system has original jurisdiction and will set up a systematic court system.

IDA passed a resolution proposed by Bruce Bailey, a Cather sophomore, allowing Women's Residence Association to have four IDA representatives, one for each dorm government.

The Council decided that all profits from the All University Fund Dance, to be sponsored jointly by IDA, would go to AUF.

Student Court Begins Term; Schaaf Is Appointed Justice

EDITOR'S NOTE: This article on the Student Court is the first in a series on the current court structures at the University. The series has been created to inform the students of their legal rights and of the jurisdictions and activities of the various courts.

By ED ICENOGLE
Senior Staff Writer

Student Court's newest Justice will not have to be introduced to the other six justices — he appointed all of them.

Terry Schaaf, president of the ASUN last year, appointed Chief Justice Stephen Brumley and the other five associate justices to their positions.

Two weeks ago, ASUN President Dick Schulze nominated Schaaf to fill an associate justice seat vacated by the resignation of Ron Bellamy.

FIRST MEETING

When the Student Senate approved the nomination, Schaaf became one of the seven justices who held the Student Court's first meeting last Thursday.

"That was just an organizational meeting," said Justice Jim Schreck, "a chance for us all to get acquainted."

The Student Court will meet Thursdays, beginning a week from this Thursday, to consider pending cases.

POWER

According to the ASUN Constitution the judicial power of the Student Court extends into matters of (1) impeachment; (2) interpretation of the ASUN Constitution;

(3) contested elections; (4) concerning organizations when referred to the Court by the University administration, the Student Senate or an individual student and (5) by-laws, organic acts or ordinances of the Senate or the exercise of powers of the ASUN executives.

The number of cases arising in these five respective areas seems to vary.

"I do not recall impeachment proceedings since the ASUN was created," said Schaaf, "but last year there was an election fraud case."

BILL OF RIGHTS

Student Senator Al Spangler's recent appeal for a Court judgement on the 17 Constitutional amendments known as the Bill of Rights would fall under the fifth of the divisions, if it is the jurisdiction of the Court at all.

Brumley has indicated that any petition may not fall under the Student Court's jurisdiction," Spangler said.

Spangler's petition had concerned the status of Article 5B of the Bill of Rights and the 17th amendment, both approved by the student body in last spring's ASUN election.

Article 5B called for the students to have an equitable voice in the making of University policy, while the 17th amendment provided for the student right to choose their living environment.

LEGAL FORM

Spangler had submitted the petition, but it was returned to him with the request that he put it in legal form as outlined in "The Code of the Student Court."

"Spangler is asking for something we (the Court) cannot give," said Schaaf. "He is asking for two different things."

The first, according to Schaaf, is a declaratory judgement on which of the amendments should be upheld. The other is a "writ of mandamus," directing Schulze to enforce the amendments.

STILL LEGISLATION

Schaaf indicated that the Court may be involved more than once this year over the Bill of Rights.

"The Bill of Rights is still in legislation," Schaaf said. "They will not be actual amendments until they are approved by the Board of Regents."

Additional problems on the amendments may arise, Schaaf indicated, if students decide to challenge any changes that may be made by the six-man committee being established by Chancellor Clifford Hardin to make the amendments University policy.

REVOTE

Schaaf said, as Schulze had earlier indicated, that any changes to the amendments would require them to be revoked on by the students.

Schaaf also said that he would not sit in on any consideration of Spangler's petition.

"Since I opposed SDS (17th) a amendment last year," Schaaf said, "I feel I have too much vested interest in this case."

Living Units Select Queen Candidates

Candidates are now being selected for the 1967 Homecoming Queen, according to Ed Hilz, chairman of the ASUN electoral committee.

Hilz said that any full time junior female student who is in good standing with the university, and who meets the minimum requirements for participation in extra-curricular activities is eligible.

Each woman's living unit may nominate one candidate, Hilz said. After the first interview, 20 coeds will be selected.

Ten finalists will be chosen in a second interview, according to the chairman. The interviewing board will consist of two faculty members, one member of the University alumni association, and two senior students.

The finalists will be judged on five points, Hilz said. Appearance, personality, and poise are worth from one to five points each, and both scholarship and activities will be rated on a three point scale.

Hilz said that each finalist must be willing to pay $15 to cover photograph and poster costs. Publicity and campaigning will be limited to skits and the official ASUN poster.

The University of Nebraska student body will vote Nov. 8 on the ten finalists and the Homecoming Queen will be announced at the Homecoming Dance Nov. 10, and at the football game Nov. 11, Hilz announced.

Deferred Rush

Whereas: deferred rush is an infringement upon the rights of students to choose their own living environment; and

Whereas: deferred rush has the potential of dividing loyalties of dormitory residents and thus weaken independent organizations on the University of Nebraska campus;

Therefore: be it resolved by the Inter-Dormitory Association that the Inter-Dormitory Association fully support the positions taken by the Student Senate of the Associated Students of the University of Nebraska in emphatically opposing the imposition of deferred rush upon the Greek system on the University of Nebraska campus.

Wragge Runner-Up In Queen Pageant

Miss Pam Wragge was named First Princess of the American Royal Queen Pageant Saturday. Competition was held Friday and Saturday in Kansas City, Mo.

This is the first year that the University of Nebraska has been represented in this pageant. Miss Wragge was selected to represent Nebraska on the basis of her past honors by Helen Snyder, Associate Dean of Student Affairs.

Selection of the American

Royal Queen and her two princesses was based on personal interviews and evening gown competition. Seventeen coeds from midwestern colleges and universities competed for the title. A coed from Kansas University won the Royal Queen Pageant.

Miss Wragge is a member of Alpha Delta Pi sorority. She reigned as 1966 N.U. Homecoming Queen, Nebraska Sweetheart, and Miss Cornhusker, and as 1967 Miss Navy.
