

Exchange Students Plan Nebraska Campus Tour

Eleven foreign exchange students from the Center of International Study, El Colegio de Mexico, will be touring the NU campuses to become better acquainted with the functions of a multi-university.

Scheduled to visit the university Oct. 23-26, the eleven students, ranging in ages from 18-27, can speak English.

El Colegio de Mexico, one of the most progressive centers of higher education in the Western Hemisphere, boasts outstanding departments of economics, linguistics, and international relations.

125 ACCEPTED

Although El Colegio receives applications from prospective students from all areas of the world, only 125 highly-screened applicants are accepted each year. Twenty-five visiting professors compose the highly professional faculty.

Since 1962, the University of Nebraska has participated in a student exchange program with El Colegio de Mexico. Thus far, 19 NU students have attended. University students receive full $150 monthly grants for the eleven month program, and all credits earned at the El Colegio are transferable.

Although no NU students are presently participating in the 11-month program, five attended this past year.

ARRIVE MONDAY

On Monday, Oct. 23, the exchange students will arrive and be the guests of Smith Hall during their stay.

After touring Lincoln as guests of the Mayor's Committee On International Friendship, they will attend a special luncheon given by the NU Student Senate. Later, Secretary of State Marsh will greet the students at the Capitol.

Tuesday evening at 7:30 p.m. the group will attend a Spanish Club meeting where they will speak to club members about El Colegio.

At 2 p.m. on Wednesday, the students will meet with Chancellor Hardin, Dean Olson and Dean Hough. Later, they will attend a get-acquainted coffee hour hosted by the Student Union.

On Thursday, the students will tour East Campus to gain knowledge on the opportunities and facilities available in agricultural education.

University Centennial College May Celebrate 100th Birthday

By JAN PARKS
Junior Staff Writer

A Centennial College to commemorate the University's first century of existence is one of the major recommendations of the Faculty Centennial Committee, according to Dr. Wallace C. Peterson, committee chairman.

The committee was appointed by Chancellor Clifford Hardin, he said, to recommend effective means of celebrating the University Centennial to the Board of Regents.

Dr. Robert Knoll, a committee member, and Dr. Mert Hobson, dean of faculties, are exploring the problems involved in the establishment of an experimental college of this nature.

They will attend a meeting Oct. 22-25 at Bowling Green State College in Ohio to exchange ideas about other experimental colleges in the country, said Knoll.

He explained that as yet the Centennial College exists "in name only" and said that "any student suggestions would be welcome."

The special faculty committee is set up to study and report on the feasibility of the Centennial College which would be designed to begin operations in the autumn of 1969, Peterson explained.

"This proposed new college in the University structure would be designed to provide a beginning for education in excellence and depth for a select group of entering freshmen," he said.

The college is to be residential in nature, he said, and the 200-300 freshmen with their faculty would share a unit of a dormitory both for living quarters and for some classes.

These freshmen would pursue a common program of supervised studies, he said, probing into the humanities, the social sciences, and the physical and biological sciences.

Peterson described the proposed college as an experiment in "getting away from rote learning."

The Centennial College follows the committee's philosophy that the Centennial year should be the occasion for launching new educational and intellectual ventures which will affect significantly the University of Nebraska during the coming century.

The Faculty Centennial Committee has recommended that the Centennial be honored by a series of commemorative and heritage activities.

The major portion of these activities will be concentrated between Charter Day, Feb. 15, 1969, and the June commencement of that year.

Charter Day will consist of an address by a major educational figure and a major cultural event, said Peterson.

In March a symposium will be held on the relationship of education and economic growth with two speakers.

In April each year the Montgomery Lectures on Contemporary Civilization are held. During Centennial year the committee has recommended that a major scholar of international reputation be brought to the campus.

The Centennial event for May will be a second symposium showing the results of the relationship between education and economic growth.

The Centennial Activities will close with the June commencement. It has been recommended by the committee that special effort be made to give Honorary degrees to persons of national and international importance, one of whom will offer a major address.

Heritage activities recommended by the committee include the establishment of the University Archives, which would be a collection of photographs, portraits and information about faculty, chancellors and alumni of an earlier day.

Talent Acts To Register For Listing

Any individuals or groups interested in having a listing in the Campus Talent Promotional Service publication should fill out an application in the Nebraska Union Program Office, according to Kathy Augustin, chairman of the Union Music committee.

The Union Music Committee is once again sponsoring this service. Miss Augustin said that the pamphlet listing all performing artists at the University will be distributed statewide to colleges, high schools and civic groups.

Groups listed in the pamphlet must pay a handling fee of $1. An additional charge of $3 is required if a picture is to accompany the personal listing, Miss Augustin said.

USMC Interview To Select Officers

A Marine Corps Officer Selection team will visit the campus Oct. 25-27 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Capt. Bruce McKenna from Des Moines will be interviewing in the lower level of the Nebraska Union.

The Marine Corps has officer programs available for freshmen through seniors. All lead to a second lieutenant's commission upon graduation.

While attending college, the student attends no meetings or drills, is draft deferred, and receives longevity which results in as much as $150 extra per month.

Where does an engineer intern?

- Before you decide on the job that's to start you on your professional career, it's good to ask a few point blank questions... like:
- Will this job let me rub shoulders with engineers doing things that haven't been done before, in all phases of engineering?
 - Will I be working for an engineering oriented management whose only standard is excellence?
 - Will I have access to experts in fields other than my own to help me solve problems and stimulate professional growth?
 - Will I be working with the widest range of professional competence and technological facilities in the U. S.?
 - Are engineering careers with this company stable... or do they depend upon proposals and market fluctuations?

PRIME CONTRACTOR FOR THE ATOMIC ENERGY COMMISSION AND AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY EMPLOYER

'68 Oldsmobile: Great spot for a sit-in.

You're looking at the year's sweetest place for a sit-in—Olds 4-4-2. This is the scene: Louvered hood up front. Crisp sculpturing in the rear. Rally Stripe and Custom Sport Wheels available in between.

And what gleams beneath that rakish afterdeck? Two telltale flared exhausts that give voice to a 400-cube, 4-barrel, 350-hp Rocket V-8. And look where you live: in foam-padded, bucket-seat comfort.

The center console is also available, as is the clock/tach/engine gauge Rally Pac. And with all the new GM safety features, including energy-absorbing steering column, 4-4-2 is the greatest sit-in you ever sat in.

Drive a "youngmobile" from Oldsmobile.
