Student Meeting Called . . . 'Courts, Tribunals Overlap,' Process Of Appeals Lacking

EDITOR'S NOTE: This article is the fifth of a series on the current judicial structures at the University.

By ED IENOGLE

Overlapping jurisdiction of University courts has prompted Dr. Russell Brown, assistant Dean of Student Affairs, to call a meeting Monday of student government representatives.

"There seems to be quite a large number of courts," Brown said Thursday, "and we really have not established jurisdictions of a process of appeals."

ORGANIZATIONS REPRESENTED

Representatives of ASUN, Student Tribunal, Inter-Dormitory Association (IDA), Interfraternity Council and Panhellenic will attend the meeting, according to Brown.

Student Tribunal, Brown said, is the only court he knows which has established procedure and appeals.

"I think we should have an understanding of the relationship of the courts," he said. "More and more courts are being formed and we need to ask how many courts there should be, and what cases they should hear."

GOALS UNDEFINED

With the exception of the Tribunal, which Brown said he thought was doing an effective job, there has not been "a lot of thought given to the goals of the courts."

Brown noted that the structure was becoming so complicated that even dormitory floors have created separate courts.

IDA president Bryan Ridenour said that although the courts are numerous, there may not necessarily be too many.

JURISDICTION OVERLAPS

"I would say that the problem is that the areas of jurisdiction are overlapping and fuzzy," he said.

Supreme jurisdiction in the IDA resides in the IDA court, composed of six associates and one chief justice.

The court's jurisdiction, according to the IDA constitution, resides in six major areas:

—interpretation of the IDA constitution

—deciding questions between dormitories

—serving as an appellate court from the individual dormitory courts

—verifying the validity of petitions

—settling contests of IDA by-laws and legislation

—settling questions on contested elections.

Difficulties arise in many cases of the IDA court system, according to Ridenour, when there is an attempt to delegate original jurisdiction.

JEOPARDY MULTIPLIES

As the undefined extent of the jurisdictions now stand, a student infraction could result in not only double jeopardy, but quadruple jeopardy, Ridenour admitted.

Theoretically, a student could be tried by a dormitory floor court, a dormitory court, the IDA court and the Student Tribunal for the same infraction.

In reality, Ridenour said, the chain of courts is used for appeals, not prosecution, although no widely-accepted document guarantees either appeals or freedom from double jeopardy.

CASES HANDLED

Ridenour also said that many cases are not handled by the Student Tribunal, but left to the dormitory court structure.

"In terms of our own systems," he said, "we hope that our own court system will handle cases."

Even if the courts' jurisdictions are defined following Monday's meeting, the IDA courts may need other realignment, he indicated.

"The courts look effective on paper," Ridenour said,

"but since they have just been in operation a week, there may still be some problems."

The meeting, according to Brown, is designed not only to discuss the problems, but to investigate the overall system and make specific recommendations.

Space Age Highlighted At NHSPA

A space age speech will be one highlight of the 36th annual convention of the Nebraska High School Press Association (NHSPA) in Lincoln October 20.

Featured speaker at the convention will be Charles Lee Coney, Jr. former manager of CBS news operations for Gemini space shots.

Coney's address is entitled "From the Moon to Your Living Room: The Space Age Challenge to Broadcast News." He is the head of the broadcasting sequence at the University of Nebraska School of Journalism.

Other University journalism personnel and faculty members from other Nebraska colleges will discuss newspaper, yearbook, broadcasting and advertising techniques with high school students and advisers attending the conference in the Nebraska Center.

Deryl R. Leaming of the Kansas State University School of Journalism will be the keynote speaker and will conduct workshops on newspaper problems.

Miss Hazel Presson of Fort Smith, Arkansas, national president of the Columbia Scholastic Advisers Association, will conduct workshops on yearbook problems.

Misanthrope Stage Is Set . . . Opens Today

By BARB MARTIN
Junior Staff Writer

University theater cast members are well-prepared and anxious to begin performances of "Misanthrope," by Moliere, opening at Howell Theater Friday evening at 8 p.m., according to Sue Vosik and John Jessup, lead performers.

Miss Vosik said she is especially pleased that Dr. Joseph Baldwin, director, allowed the actors a considerable degree of character interpretation.

Both actors indicated their parts, Celimene, a social butterfly, and Alceste, a ranting idealist, offer wide opportunities for distinct projection, since both are extremists as well as opposites.

Costuming and makeup have presented problems, said Miss Vosik.

The long skirts, tight corsets, wigs, high heels for the men and heavy makeup create difficulties in movement, breathing and projection of character, according to the actors.

Miss Vosik and Jessup said that after six weeks of rehearsal they hope to have a good dress rehearsal. Both claim the old adage that a bad rehearsal means a good opening night is untrue.

A bad one indicates that the actors are not prepared, said Jessup.

"Scared purple" is a term used by Miss Vosik to describe her feeling before a performance, and Jessup agreed. He emphasized the fact that an actor must care and must feel in order to project to the audience.

Both agreed it is not uncommon to forget lines momentarily, but the prepared actor will pick them up immediately. Jessup said constant groping will ruin a play, making it impossible for other actors to pick up cues.

They said it is important that some part of the actor should remain "outside" to observe both the characterization and the audience.

Jessup said actors are aware of the audience, especially when program crumpling and twitching becomes apparent. This indicates the actor should approach from a new angle as he has lost the audience, said Jessup.

621 Enrolled In Free University

Formal enrollment for the Nebraska Free University (NFU) reached a total of 621 students enrolled in 21 courses, according to Susie Phelps, chairman of the ASUN's NFU Committee.

Among the most popular courses were "Human Relations Workshop," "Buddhism," and "Marriage — Sexual, Social and Emotional Contract".

The marriage class attracted 100 students, while "New Roads for Society" registered only one student, Miss Phelps commented.

Enrollment for this semester was about the same as last year she added.

"I feel that the large enrollment this semester is due to the performance of the NFU last year. People found out the NFU is worth while," she said.

Miss Phelps said that many inquiries were received from persons outside the University.

Miss Phelps added, "I found it very encouraging that high school students and persons in the Lincoln community were interested in the free university."

The ASUN committee is also planning to circulate a questionnaire among NFU students and instructors to determine their reaction to the courses.

NEW — FIND SCHOLARSHIPS BY COMPUTER

Last year $30 million in college scholarships went unclaimed — because no qualified persons knew of them.

- Now ECS engineers and educators have programmed a high-speed computer with 700,000 items of scholastic aid, worth over $500 million, to permit students to easily and quickly locate scholarships for which they qualify.
- The student fills out a detailed, confidential questionnaire and returns it to ECS, with a one-time computer-processing fee of $15. In seconds the computer compares his qualifications against requirements of grants set up by foundations, business, civic, fraternal, religious, and government organizations, and prints a personalized report to the student telling him where and when to apply for grants for which he qualifies. Thousands of these do not depend on scholastic standing or financial need.

This is your chance, Student #7026941. Drink Sprite and be somebody.

MR. BIG

Take heart. Take a dime. Then take a bottle of Sprite from the nearest pop machine.

Suddenly it's in your hand. Cold. Biting. Tart and tingling. You cackle fiendishly and rub your hands together. (You should; they're probably chilled to the bone by now.) You tear off to a corner, alone, but within earshot of your fellows.

And then? And then? And then you unleash it. SPRITE! It fizzes! It roars! It bubbles with good cheer!

Heads turn. Whispersing. "Who's that strangely fascinating student with the arch smile. And what's in that curious green bottle that's making such a racket?"

And you've arrived! The distinctive taste and ebullient character of Sprite has set you apart. You're somebody, uh...uh, whoever-you-are.

Sprite

SPRITE. SO TART AND TINGLING, HE JUST COULDN'T KEEP IT QUIET.
