Lincolnite Protests War In March On Pentagon

God, mother, and country are usually equated with the American personality but Dr. Benjamin Spock and an police-estimated 50,000 United States citizens questioned this premise at an anti-war march in the Washington D.C. Oct. 21.

Among the demonstrators was Charles Marxer, visiting instructor in the University philosophy department. Marxer hitch-hiked to Washington last week with two other Lincoln residents.

The demonstration, sponsored by the National Mobilization Committee (NMC), included a speaking session at the Lincoln Memorial followed by a march on the pentagon and what Marxer termed non-violent civil disobedience.

TO PENTAGON

Marxer said that of the 50,000 present 35 thousand proceeded to the Pentagon after hearing the speakers.

"The plan for the Pentagon marchers was to rally at the north parking lot of the Pentagon to hear more speeches but several thousand of us went on to the doors of the building and mass confusion resulted," Marxer said.

When the marchers reached the building they were confronted by a ring of military police which kept them 150 yards away from the doors but about a hundred of the marchers charged the line.

INBUILDING

According to Marxer these demonstrators made it into the building but were repulsed by police tear gas and clubs.

"This is an isolated event of violence. The march was not violent in nature but unfortunately this angle has been played up by many members of the press," Marxer said.

Citing examples of non-violent action he related the incident of a girl demonstrator who walked down the line of troops placing flowers in the muzzles of the soldiers' rifles.

There was also a report that three military police threw down their helmets and grenade belts" and joined the march.

SAY NO

Asked why he participated Marxer said, "I had to say no to a policy which I feel is flagrantly immoral and potentially dangerous to the United States."

He stated that he did not resist police orders to leave.

Marxer feels that anything more severe than non-violent civil disobedience is self-defeating since demonstrators are protesting violence.

Speaking on the subject of the march, the Vietnam war, he said that he advocates cessation of the bombing and complete withdrawal from the country.

He concluded that "by carrying on this action we're violating the Geneva Treaty, the Nuremberg Treaty, and the United Nations Charter. We're fighting a war against a popular revolution.

YWCA-YMCA To Join Forces

A program on the Lincoln minimum housing code will be the first activity to be sponsored by the YWCA-YMCA as a joint organization on East campus.

The merger has been under discussion by the groups since early September and took effect Oct. 12 when the organizations met for the first time as a single group, according to co-chairman Sue Heubner.

"By merging the organizations we hope to better serve the students and the community. As a single group I believe that we will become a stronger influence on campus," Miss Heubner said.

The merger came about mainly because there was a lack of YWCA facilities on the East campus, she said.

"There was little interest in the YWCA on the East campus and rather than create a separate group the women simply merged with the men's organization," Miss Heubner pointed out.

"The YMCA on the East campus usually required the help of the YWCA with most of its activities. The merger will allow them to work more closely on future projects," Rosemary King, YWCA-YMCA secretary said.

The merger will also be more convenient for the women on East campus since they won't have to go to the city campus for YWCA activities, Miss King said.

High Walling of the city YMCA assisted the groups in the merger.

ASUN Education Committee Offers Suggestion For Centennial College

ASUN's Education Committee is now readying suggestions for the proposed Centennial College, according to chairman Craig Dreeszen.

The Centennial College is being considered by the University Centennial Committee to offer a selected group of students an opportunity to study a special curriculum during the 1969 birthday celebration.

Dreeszen said he regards the college as an opportunity for great innovation. "Right now the faculty and administrators are receptive to radical ideas on education."

FOUR-YEAR PROGRAM
Although the committee's suggestions are now pretty nebulous, Dreeszen expressed his hope that the college would be approved and expanded to a full four-year program. He said the proposed program could serve as a model for future expansion.

In a related area, the committee is examining the merits of the present Honors Program, which gives talented students a chance to take specialized courses in their strong fields.

Dreeszen said the term Honors Program is actually a misnomer since the Honors Courses are not offered in any overall program.

HONORS PROGRAM
He said he would personally favor a college-level program, giving Honors students in any college an opportunity to "set up their own program of study and work at their own pace."

The Honors Program could also be offered on a departmental University-wide scale. The former category is exemplified by the present philosophy Honors series, he said. The latter would include the Independent Study program.

AREAS STUDIED

Dreeszen said a number of other academic areas are now being studied:

—Data processors are still working with the information collected on the pass-fail system. The committee has drafted a questionnaire which it hopes to distribute to all students and faculty members on the effectiveness or inadequacy of the present pass-fail system.

—Committee members are collecting information the various honoraries and professional groups. Dreeszen said the data is not complete but indications are that these groups are relatively inactive in furthering school's scholastic interests.

—The group plans to work for better advisory board co-ordination. It would like to see a Home Economics Advisory Board established.

—It is investigating the role of faculty advisors.

—Sen. Robert Weaver is preparing a proposal for a residential college which may be submitted to ASUN next spring. In the meantime, the group is working to have several freshman English courses sections taught in University living units.

ROT C Organization To Cleanup Stadium

A cleanup brigade of Pershing Rifles and Cadence Countesses is responsible for cleaning up Memorial Stadium after every home football game, according to Harold Janda, PR Public Information Officer.

The mandatory cleanup starts at 7 a.m. on Sunday mornings after home games and lasts until about 11:30 a.m., explained Janda.

He said that the brigade is responsible for picking up the stadium area, the field, and the south practice field.

The girls do mostly sweeping and picking up trash on the field," he said.

We find all sorts of things, Janda reported, but very few things of any real value.

A spook trophy will be awarded to the best effigy. Resident directors will judge the entries Oct. 31 in the north dining hall of the complex.

The bonfire is open to all University students.

Scholarships Honor University Seniors

Two University seniors, Claude Bolton of South Sioux City and Richard Schulze of Dodge have been awarded Schreiber-Hunter leadership scholarships. The scholarships, which provide full tuition for the academic year, were presented by Vice Chancellor G. Robert Ross.

The Schreiber-Hunter leadership scholarship was established by Mr. and Mrs. Frederick M. Hunter of Eugene, Oregon in 1956 in honor of Arthur G. Schreiber.

Schreiber graduated from the University in 1907 as an engineering major. He was an active student leader and served three years on the Daily Nebraskan staff.

Bolton, a senior in electrical engineering, is a member of Innocents Society, a student assistant in Selleck Quadrangle, flight commander of Arnold Air Society, and president of Kappa Alpha Psi fraternity.

Schulze, a senior in mechanical engineering, is ASUN president, a member of Innocents Society, and is a Regents scholar.

Missouri Migration Scheduled

$33 Covers Bus, Kansas City Stay

University students will desert the campus on Nov. 18 for the annual migration as they "Follow Big Red to Missouri."

The Nebraska Union Trips and Tours Committee is again sponsoring a three day migration trip Nov. 17-19, according to Kris Swanson, committee chairman.

The cost of the trip is $33. This includes bus fare, a game ticket, insurance, and accommodations in Kansas City at the Muehlebach Hotel.

Reservations can be made at the Union Program Office. Deadline for reservations is Nov. 18, according to Miss Swanson, and the limited number of tickets will be sold on a first come first serve basis.

Registration will close Nov. 3 for voters participating in the special city election on Nov. 15 to decide questions of minimum housing and a storm sewer bond issue.

In addition to national voting requirements voters in the city election must be a permanent resident of Lincoln, according to an election commission spokesman.

Polls will be open on election day from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.
