

Half-Court Press Added By Cipriano

Nebraska's run-and-gun cagers will reveal a half-court press this season in addition to the full court press, according to head coach Joe Cipriano.

However, the full court edition, which has become the trademark of Joe Cipriano's Nebraska basketball team, will still be used.

The half-court press starts at mid-court instead of when the ball is taken out-of-bounds. Cipriano said.

SAVE ENERGY

"One reason for the installation of this press is to save energy," Cipriano said.

"Since the half-court press is new, we will have to spend a lot of time on it."

Joe Cipriano's Nebraska basketball team moves into the third week of practice in preparation for their Lincoln opener against California State, Dec. 4.

Coach Cipriano said he was pleased with the practice sessions.

FIFTH YEAR

"We have accomplished a lot on offense, defense, and the full-court press," he said.

Cipriano, who is heading into his fifth year as Nebraska head coach, said the team is working on a lot of fundamentals.

"We have been working individual drills but now will move into team offense and defensive drills," he said.

FUNDAMENTALS

"Jump ball situations, taking the ball out-of-bounds, five on five defenses, and other team fundamentals will be stressed from now on," he said.

"We will basically play the same type of ball as in the past," Cipriano said.

"As before, the team is going to have to depend on speed and the press to neutralize other teams which possess greater height."

Cipriano said Washington State, rated second to UCLA in AAWU will be the toughest non-conference opponent.

"We will be playing them at Pullman which is not an easy place to play," he said.

The Huskers will face Washington State on both Dec. 8 and 9.

Coach Cipriano will be taking a four year record of 53-47 at Nebraska into this season. His career record is 96-82.

Huskers Seeking Fifth Win Cyclones—NU Title Barrier

Serenaded by 60 Nebraska high school bands, the Cornhuskers will try to even their Big Eight record by scoring their second league victory over unpredictable Iowa State.

The annual Band Day attraction will find Nebraska in the rare predicament of taking a sub-500 Big Eight record into Saturday's 2 p.m. Memorial Stadium kickoff.

Although Iowa State holds a 2-5 overall mark and a 1-3 slate compared to Nebraska's 4-2 overall and 1-2 conference marks, Husker coach Bob Devaney remembers Kansas State when comparing the two foes.

"They (Iowa State) beat Kansas State handily while we were fortunate to edge them," he said. "They always play well against us."

NO DISPUTE

There's no disputing those two statements.

The Cyclones throttled the Wildcats in Ames 17-0 for their lone Big Eight win while the Huskers scored a last minute field goal to down the Wildcats at Manhattan 16-14 on a rain-drenched field.

Before dismissing the Cyclones as an also-ran, last year's game backs up Devaney's second comment. The 1966 Huskers used a 36-yard touchdown run by Harry Wilson with just under four minutes left to derail an aggressive Iowa State gang at Ames 12-6.

The fired-up Cyclones held Nebraska to two Larry Wacholtz first quarter field goals before Wilson's run downed the Iowans.

While the 1966 Iowans relied on the departed record-shattering passing combination of Tim Van Galder to Eppie Barney, this year's crew uses a potent rushing game spearheaded by two punishing runners.

'Big Team'

"They're a big team with two fine running backs in Les Webster and Ben King and a fine runner and passer in quarterback John Warder," Devaney said.

King, a 5' 10" 195 pound junior fullback, is the league's eighth best rusher with 327 net yards in 83 carries for 3.9 yards per carry.

Former Omaha Tech standout, senior halfback Webster, has rushed for 1,070 in his first two seasons at Ames, including 253 yards this season.

Warder has shown effectiveness both as a runner and passer in climbing to the league's fourth leading total offense slot with 838 net yards.

The 192 pound junior signal caller is also the Big Eight's fourth leading passer connecting on 53 of 123 tosses for 632 total yards.

TALENTED

While Webster and King provide a stable rushing attack, senior fullback Tom Busch has been a fine pass receiver.

His 13 pass receptions against Kansas boosted him into third place among conference receivers with 26 grabs for 350 yards and one touchdown.

But pass receiving isn't the only talent the Garner, Iowa, native can employ against the Huskers.

He is also Iowa State's top punter, averaging just under 40 yards per boot. He is also the conference's second leading kickoff returner averaging 22.9 yards. Nebraska will be fielding a somewhat revised squad after injuries to two key players.

SOPHOMORES

Tom Penney will replace Dennis Richnasky at split end after Nebraska's leading receiver sustained an ankle injury in last Saturday's Texas Christian game.

Sophomore Sherwin Jarmon will be elevated to second string behind Penney while three sophomores are probable back-up men for the offensive backs.

First-year varsity men

Mike Green, Larry Frost and Buster Yannon may see considerable action Saturday.

Defensively, sophomore Randy Reeves may move into the starting left safety spot vacated by Dana Stephenson, who suffered a shoulder injury against the Texans.

NEW PUNTER

Stephenson's punting chores will be handled by offensive right guard Joe Armstrong, who punted for a 40 yard average in 1966.

Cyclone Coach Clay Stapleton will relinquish his head football duties to devote full-time efforts towards the athletic directors post after this season. He has defeated Nebraska only twice in his nine years at the Iowa school.

His Cyclone teams posted consecutive victories in 1959 and 1960 by defeating Bill Jennings' Huskers 18-6 and 10-7.

Since Devaney began facing the former University of Tennessee star's crews, Nebraska victory margins have stretched from 1965's 44-0 blanking to last year's six point spread.

The Cyclones started Stapleton's final coaching year slowly, bowing 34-3 to South Carolina and 52-0 to Texas Tech, but regained form in blanking Kansas State and in defeating New Mexico 17-12.

Iowa State has dropped games to Colorado 34-0, Missouri 23-7 and Kansas 28-14.

Betas Win Double: Sweep Tennis, Golf

Beta Theta Pi is well on their way towards repeating as All-University Intramural Champion after scoring victories in the fall intramural golf and tennis programs.

The Betas outdistanced a 37 team field in winning the tennis title and a 24 team field in grabbing the golf championship.

Mike Ley, Delta Tau Delta, won the All-University Individual golf title with a three round score of 217. He was followed by Milt Romjue, Beta Theta Pi, and Gary Gunderson, Delta Upsilon, who both scored a 219.

ONE BACK

Placing fourth in the 86 player tournament was Lance Gloe, Beta Theta Pi, one stroke back with a 220.

The Betas were followed in the four-man team field by N.E.S.E.P., Phi Gamma Delta, Phi Kappa Psi and Abel IV.

Sixth place went to the Phi Delta Theta two-man team, seventh place was grabbed by D.O.M. with one-man teams representing Delta Tau Delta, Delta Upsilon and Theta Chi.

Jody Parker, Beta Theta Pi, won the All-University single tennis crown.

Placing behind Parker were Tom Wiese, Beta Theta Pi, Bill Hegen, Phi Kappa Psi, Terry Hancock, Beta Theta Pi, Dan Harrold, Delta Tau Delta and Jeff Gailard, Beta Theta Pi.

Trailing the Betas in the 37 team field were Theta Xi, Pi Kappa Phi, Sigma Alpha Mu, Fram House, Phi Gamma Delta and Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

PHI DELTS WIN

Phi Delta Theta broke the Beta's streak by winning the basketball golf competition with 712 points.

Rick Jasa, Phi Kappa Psi, led the 260 man pack with a low score of 70 while David Gildea, Phi Delta Theta finished second with a 74 score.

Third place went to Gary Gray, Phi Delta Theta, who scored an 84.

The Phi Deltas were followed in the team standings by Phi Kappa Psi with 334.5 points, Phi Gamma Delta, 333.5, Theta Xi 329.5 and Sigma Chi 258, in the 26 team tournament.

The intramural department also announced the top two football teams in each flag football league would enter the single elimination All-University tournament starting early next week.

Regular season play will conclude with four games at the Woods Park fields next Tuesday afternoon.

Standings of the flag football tournament will be printed Friday.
