Proposed Changes Would Abolish Board; Replace With Congress

By SHERRY McGAFFIN
Junior Staff Writer

Proposed structural changes in AWS would abolish the present AWS board and power would be transferred to a new body, an AWS Congress, according to Nancy Coufal, AWS Constitutional convention chairman.

Approximately 21 AWS positions would be filled in campus elections she told AWS Board members Tuesday.

Women would have increased representation and voting power because they would be directly electing delegates from their own living units in addition to the women who will fill the executive positions, she explained.

Miss Coufal presented some of the basic proposals made by convention delegates and noted that this format is subject to revision and clarification.

General meetings will be held Thursday, Nov. 16 at 3:30 p.m. with delegates considering the court structure of AWS. All of these meetings will be open to the public and anyone may express his opinions, according to the chairman.

Miss Coufal said that proposed structure of the organization would consist of a congress, executive cabinet, court system, program area, and a Workers Council.

The Congress would hold the legislative powers and all living units would have equal representation. This group would be somewhat comparable to the present House of Representatives but they would be directly responsible for rule making policies. Members of the Congress would have a substantial amount of power, she said.

CABINET

The Cabinet would hold executive powers and be responsible for the coordination of the activities within AWS and with administration. This group would have a veto power over rulings of the Congress.

Election procedures for these positions are undecided, Miss Coufal said. Members of the Cabinet would be the president, judicial vice-president, program vice-president, five members elected at large, and five members elected from the congress of the preceding year.

The proposed court system would be totally separate from the legislative branch, according to Miss Coufal. The court of appeals would be composed of seven or eight women elected in an all campus vote. The court would function to maintain uniformity in the decisions of the regional courts.

REGIONAL COURTS

Possibly six regional courts would be set up to deal directly with individual living units. One member from the court of appeals would work with these courts. It has been proposed that a Selleck, Sandoz, Smith, Pound and WRA, East Campus, and Panhellenic court system be established.

Miss Coufal said that provisions for membership to these courts would be set up within the individual court constitutions.

The program area would function to carry out the decisions of the congress and to suggest programs for AWS to sponsor. From six to eight coeds would be selected through interviews to fill these positions.

WORKERS COUNCIL

The Workers Council would work directly under the program council and it would possibly consist of upperclassmen and freshmen.

The advantages of an organizational body such as the one proposed would include dispersal of duties among AWS members allowing them to devote more time to fulfillment of their jobs, Miss Coufal said.

It would be possible to elect coeds to fewer positions at one time, she noted, so women would be more aware of who they were voting for rather than merely voting for a name.

The elected positions would remain just as powerful as they are now but this revised structure might prove more effective than the present system, she said.

The transition to this new system would be difficult, Miss Coufal said, but once the initial change was made the problems would be alleviated.

The displays are to be judged on the following points: originality of theme, correlation to the game, overall effectiveness.

A cost evaluation team will determine the approximate value of the materials utilized for each display. Displays will be disqualified if their materials are approximated to be more than $350.

61 Delegations Expected As . . . Model UN Delegates Begin Preparations

Members of the 61 delegations to the University's Model United Nations next month will be delving into world issues from a national perspective.

Each delegate must be prepared to state clearly the positions held by the country he is representing on the topics scheduled for discussion, Cheryl Adams, Model UN chairman, said in a handbook distributed to the delegates this week.

The Model UN, termed by Miss Adams as "a venture in practical education," will be Dec. 8 and 9 at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education on East Campus.

Assignment of countries to delegations which registered last month were made in the handbook, along with explanation of the operation of the Model UN.

A group from Washington University in St. Louis will provide the United States delegation. The Washington delegates have presented the U.S. perspective at a number of similar midwestern Model UNs, Miss Adams said.

Alpha Gamma Rho, with head delegate Loren Lindahl, will supply the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics representation. The United Kingdom will be represented by a delegation from the Abel Hall

Staff, led by Doug Scott. Doane College-Student Council delegates will represent France, Miss Adams said.
