

—Unearned run wins—

Sharpe's baseballers salvage 1 from OU

The Nebraska baseball team recovered Saturday with an unearned run to salvage a final of a three-game series at Oklahoma, 2-1, after dropping two close ones Friday afternoon.

Sophomore Grand Islander righty Mick Logue went all the way in the Saturday win, allowing just one unearned run in the second inning.

Both teams tallied in the second inning for a tie at one, but catcher Wayne Kissler gained a decisive walk in the fifth. From there, he advanced all the way around on a wild pitch by OU hurler Ronnie Hall and two passed balls.

In Friday's opener for both Big Eight aspirants, the Huskers were ahead 4-2, going into the bottom of the sixth. But the Sooners exploded for four runs in that inning. OU rightfielder Dick Turner paced that rally with a line double to left, scoring a run. Al Furby of Grand Island took the loss for a 1-1 record.

In the second game NU jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the first inning before Oklahoma came up with four in the third. Coach Tony Sharpe's gang then managed two more to tie at four in the top of the seventh. The game was then a standoff until a Husker error in the bottom of the 14th allowed a run for the Sooners to break the game open.

Rallye Bugs Unite

Something which has seemed impractical on the Nebraska University campus for quite a while is quickly gaining momentum and turning into a very practical idea.

The something is a University chapter of the Nebraska Region of the Sports Car Club of America. It seemed impractical before because of lack of interest and the great amount of turnover among the members from year to year.

"It's been in my mind for several years," says John Olson, the motivating force behind the club, "but we've never had enough people with strong enough interest to form a University chapter as such."

But after the Nebraska Region advertised a February 10 rally in the Nebraskan and around campus, quite a few student types showed up and expressed interest in forming their own group. Over 60 people attended the rally, says Olson, and many others have contacted him since then.

Soon a meeting was held in Schramm Hall, at which Olson showed up to answer questions about rallying. But the meeting soon turned into a "How can we start one?" session and the idea just started to snowball.

David Pales of Schramm was one of the first students to start pestering Olson to help them get an NU chapter going, and is currently acting president of the newly-founded group.

As of last count, 16 members had actually signed up, with many more attending meetings and expressing interest in the club.

One of the club's main obstacles is getting it across to the students that they don't need to own a European-type sports car to be in the club and rally.

Olson estimated that about half the members of the club drove anything which could really be considered a sports car. The main prerequisite is merely an interest in cars and in rallying and, as Olson puts it, "having fun."

The group already has plans for a time-distance rallye April 28, open to all students, and a gymkhana during May.

The group also shares a calendar of events with eight other sports-oriented car groups in the area.

Anyone interested in knowing more about the group is invited to get in touch with Pales in Schramm Hall or vice president Bill Kamery at 477-9893.

Huskers take 2 fourths to open outdoor season

Though fourth was the highest place won by a Husker in the Texas Relays last weekend, track coach Frank Sevigne said that the team did fairly well, noting that it was their first outdoor meet while some of the other teams had been outdoors for six or seven weeks.

He noted that Clifton Forbes looked very good as did the two-mile relay team who "broke the school record by about seven seconds" with their clocking of 7:32.6.

The team of Hugh McGovern, Dan Moran, Mike Randall and Les Hellbusch placed fourth while the mile relay team of Forbes, John Mottley, Dave Kudron and John Simmons placed sixth with a 3:12.6 time.

High jumper Steve Krebs placed fourth with a leap of 6-8.

1945 replay--Cubs vs. Tigers in World Series

by Harry Argue Sports Columnist

In 1945, the Chicago Cubs and Detroit Tigers squared off in the World Series. Neither team has managed another pennant since then, but 1968 should be the year for these two flag-starved squads to grab top honors.

Thus, on Monday, September 30, your morning paper should show the final 1968 standings like this:

National League					American League
Chicago	St. Louis	Pittsburgh	Los Angeles	Cincinnati	Detroit	California	Boston	Baltimore	Washington
Atlanta	San Francisco	Philadelphia	New York	Houston	Chicago	New York	Cleveland	Oakland

Cubs Set To Go

The Cubs are just rarin' to go after last year's shoot from tenth to third. A climb of two more rungs is definitely in the cards. The Chicago Northsiders look set at every position with the addition of outfielder Lou Johnson from the Dodgers, a 1965 World Series hero. Young pitchers like Ken Holtzman, Ferguson Jenkins and Rich Nye should lead the way, but there is plenty of sturdy help in the wings just in case.

St. Louis and Pittsburgh should stay right in the thick of things. The World Champion Redbirds will need back-to-back super-seasons by several players and I doubt if that will happen. The Pirates probably have the best hitting club around, but their pitching is still questionable. They are banking a lot, perhaps too much, on Jim Bunning. He won 17 for Philadelphia last year, but he's also 36 years old.

I see a rebound by the Dodgers with improved seasons by pitchers Don Drysdale, Claude Osteen and newcomer Jim Grant from the Twins. As bad as it was last year, the hitting can't help but improve also, although a pennant is hardly possible in 1968.

Reds A 'Possible'

Some would pick Cincinnati for the top spot and they do have the talent to take it, if everybody comes through in the same season. The Reds are too "iffy" though and fifth place will be more like it. The same is true in Atlanta, but I think they can jump a notch to sixth if their players will scrap as hard on the ball field as they do in bar room fights.

While they've been second for three straight years, team doesn't seem to have improved and a downward slide will probably tell their story this year.

The Chicago White Sox never belonged in the great chase of '67. They showed their true colors by losing a "must" doubleheader at home to last place Kansas City on the season's final weekend. The pitching is near superb, but I don't think they ever heard of bats on Chicago's South Side.

The Yankees have some fine young players, but they are probably still a couple of years away, meaning another dismal year in Gotham. New Pacific Coast surroundings should help the Oakland Athletics, but not enough to avoid last place again. The Cleveland Indians, who have talent but don't seem interested, should manage ninth.

Kansas' Jo Jo White among 12 Olympians

Jo Jo White of Kansas was the only Big Eight basketball player to be named to the 12-man Olympic cage team announced Sunday by the U.S. Olympic Basketball Committee.

White was the Jayhawks' star and playmaker as KU carved out a runner-up spot in both the Big Eight race and the National Invitational Tournament in New York. Others taken from the San Francisco seems riper for a big fall than a small jump. They say Philadelphia has never recovered from blowing the 1964 pennant which they "couldn't lose" late in September. It looks like the Phils are still on the skids.

Met Manager Gil Hodges, a mild success in the American League, will be out to show that nice guys don't have to finish last and nice guy Gil will probably do it if he gets good years from Rookie of the Year pitcher Tom Seaver and slugger Ron Swoboda and newcomer Tommie Agee from the White Sox. Houston has the big bat of Jim Wynn, but it probably won't be enough for them to hold ninth place.

Both Could Do It

In the American League, Detroit and Minnesota both came within tasting distance of the flag in 1967, and either could win it this season or tumble from the shock of '67. Detroit looks like the bunch to race to the pennant with plate stars like Al Kaline, Bill Freehan, Norm Cash and Willie Horton. Their pitching is quite secure with Earl Wilson, Joe Sparrma, Mickey Lolich and Denny McLain.

The California Angels weren't that far behind the fierce '67 flag struggle and should be in the 1968 fight. There is a fine infield with Jim Fregosi, Bob Knoop and Don Mincher while the pitching is impressive too.

Sorry, but I'm still not a Boston believer and think that they were extremely lucky to get as far as they did last season. They are still a top notch team though and should stay near the top, but I really can't see another flag this year.

The 1966 World Champion Baltimore Orioles should make a big recovery from 1967, but aren't the dynasty team everyone thought they might be. Frank Robinson's bat is still not to be forgotten.

Nats For Real

Few noticed the 1967 Washington Senators jump to sixth, but the Nats look for real at last and while the top spot is not in reach, they are at least capable of 500 ball, and beating out the Minnesota Twins. The Twins certainly have the material, but the dissention on the
