NU salary increases come as no surprise

The recent annual salary increases averaging nine per cent for University faculty members came as no real surprise, Dr. Joseph Soshnik, vice chancellor for administration, said Tuesday.

He said Unicameral legislation appropriations in the early summer of 1967 indicated funds would be available for approximately this nine per cent increase range.

In an April 6 meeting of the University Board of Regents, the Board authorized a 1968-69 budget for operating the Lincoln campus, outstate operations, the College of Medicine at Omaha and the University of Nebraska at Omaha of $47,443,432.

Soshnik has earlier said that salary changes for both instructors on the Lincoln and the soon-to-be Omaha campus would account for approximately 45 per cent of the $3,854,000 increase for the Lincoln and outstate operations.

Increases to vary

He said the nine per cent boost was not an increase "across the board but rather the increases in salary will vary substantially for faculty members."

The corporation secretary to the Board of Regents said faculty members would receive the adjustments in salary either July 1 or Sept. of the current year.

He explained that those instructors appointed for terms beginning July 1, would receive their salary adjustments on that date, and most faculty members, particularly undergraduate instructors, who are appointed on Sept. 1, would receive their new wages on that date.

Additional salary increases would depend on legislation appropriations made by the 1968 Unicameral for the 1969-71 period, the vice chancellor said.

Adjustments made yearly

He added, that salary adjustments are made only once per year.

In discussing the salary difference, if any, between instructors of the Lincoln and Omaha campuses, the vice chancellor said that these differences would hopefully be resolved during the upcoming session of the Unicameral.

"If there is a problem that needs correction or adjustment, it would depend on a legislature appropriations for that purpose," he said.

He said it was not possible to equalize salaries in the current budget because the Legislature appropriated a set amount of $3,009,000 for the Omaha campus.

Just as there are salary differences between the instructors on the Lincoln campus depending upon any number of factors, salaries between professors at the two schools are not necessarily identical, he added.

The average instructor at Omaha receives an annual check of $7,918, while his counterpart at Lincoln averages $7,440. Professors at Lincoln receive, on the average, $16,565 while those at Omaha receive $15,316.

Salary adjustments represent approximately 45 per cent of the budget increase at Lincoln, while they accounted for between 30 and 40 per cent at Omaha. Between 25 and 30 per cent of the budget hike represented salary boosts at the College of Medicine.

Although Soshnik has earlier said the Nebraska salaries are about in the middle range of Big Eight schools, he was unable to determine if the University's relevant position has been altered by the wage increases.

"We don't have average salary information from other universities," he explained.

Professors request salary hike

A resolution calling for a considerable increase in salaries of associate professors and professors was passed last Sunday by the Nebraska State Conference of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP).

The resolution praised Nebraska colleges and universities for maintaining salary schedules of instructors and assistant professors at "a favorable relationship to the national average."

The group also passed a resolution that the national office of the AAUP delay removal of its censure of the Nebraska Normal Board until it conducts an investigation of recent developments at Wayne State College.

The Normal Board is the governing body of the state colleges.

Conference members also advocated that "all notations as to disciplinary 'suspensions' be removed from student academic transcripts."

The National Association of Student Personnel Administrators was deplored at the conference for refusing to accept this provision in a joint statement on student rights prepared by representatives of the AAUP, the National Student Association, the National Association of Student Personnel Administrators, the National Association of Women Deans, and the Association of American Colleges.

In a final resolution the Conference went on record that "present Nebraska law with respect to drug abuse should be reviewed and modified to take into account the best medical opinion available."

Conference members also objected two proposals regarding the use of undercover er activities on college campuses in connection with drug law enforcement.

Erwin Goldenstein of the University is president of the State Conference and Lawrence Poston of the University is secretary.

The other half

The Varsity Men's Glee Club will present a concert Thursday in the Nebraska Union.

The University Singers will perform Sunday at 4 p.m. at the Cathedral of the Risen Christ, 3500 Sheridan.

The Madrigal Singers will present a concert in the Nebraska Union Ballroom at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

"Cul De Sac," an English film, is the foreign film society selection for Wednesday.

The film, directed by Roman Polanski, is a parody of a love triangle movie about a retired industrialist, his French wife and an American gangster, Donald Pleasence and Francoise Dorleac star in the film.

"Odd Man Out" will be shown Sunday at Sheldon Art Gallery at 2:30 p.m. The film is directed by Carol Reed and is the story of a dying man who is hunted without mercy.

James Mason, leader of an underground army, is wounded in a raid. His potential rescuers are ready to sell him to the highest bidder, his friends or the police. The film is noted as an outstanding example of the camera's ability to suggest a point of view.

An exhibition showing large photographs of rare original plans and sketches of some of America's famous landscape designs are on display at the Nebraska School of Architecture Gallery.

The exhibition, evolved by architecture student at Harvard Graduate School of Design and the American Society of Landscape Architects, features the design of Frederick Olmstead, who first called himself a landscape architect. The exhibition shows scenes from coast to coast.

An exhibition of water colors by Norman Adams will be on display at Sheldon Art Gallery beginning Tuesday.

Drawings and unique prints of postage stamp images by Ray George, art instructor at the University, are on display at Sheldon until May 5.

George's work has been displayed throughout the Midwest. His work includes elaboration of stamp sizes and abstractions. His prints are in the 'ntaglio and collagraph media and drawings in a mixed media of polymer, charcoal and pencil.

Pottery by Ed Harris will be on display in the Art Shop of the Sheldon Gallery until April 28.

"Tides and Tales," a sky show dealing with facts and fantasy concerning the moon is featured at the Ralph Mueller Planetarium through June 2.

The show will give viewers an opportunity to better understand the cause and effect of the tidal phenomena. Allan Griese, planetarium coordinator said.

Sky shows are offered at 8 p.m. Wednesdays, 2:45 Saturdays, and 2:30 and 3:45 p.m. on Sundays. Arrangements for special showings for groups can be made.

The new director of Lincoln Community Playhouse is John R. Wilson, Menlo Park, Calif. Wilson is presently managing director of the Menlo Players Guild and lecturer in Drama at San Jose State College.

THE EXPERT. THERE'S ONE IN EVERY FAMILY.

Everybody has an Uncle George. He's the one who knows which car is a piece of junk. And where you can get practically anything wholesale.

Uncle George is a real expert with other people's money.

But when it comes to your diamond, we're going to suggest that you ignore him.

Because unless Uncle George is a trained gemologist, he probably knows little more than you do about diamonds.

Every ArtCarved diamond is inspected by a gemologist and backed by a written PYPSPM guarantee. He evaluates it for carat weight, color, cut and clarity.

And at any time during your lifetime, if you ever want to trade your ring in for a more expensive ArtCarved ring, we'll take it back. At its full value.

Can Uncle George give you that kind of guarantee?

Where have all the heroes gone?

A young woman cries out her agony to
The Brooklyn sky
As good citizens dim their lights
So they may watch unseen
The late show in the streets.
A pregnant mother is harassed by hoodlums
While spectators stand mutely by.
And the young men?
The young men stand aside
Too smart to get involved.
In the current lingo they "keep their cool".
Well, listen here
No great civilizations have been built
By men who kept their cool...
No frontiers conquered
No revolutions waged
No brave new societies forged
By men who kept their cool.
All of mankind's shining achievements
Have been propelled into being
By hot-blooded young men, fired by an idea.
When the heroes take to the sidelines
Civilizations decline and disappear.
Right now this country needs heroes
To stick out their necks
For better schools
Better housing
Better jobs
Better government.
It's up to you to take it on:
You are our life insurance.
