

Cornhuskers idle; KU gridders to meet New Mexico

by Randy York
Assistant Sports Editor
Nebraska is idle this week as it braces for the Kansas showdown Oct. 12 while the Jayhawks tune up for the collision against an expected weak New Mexico outfit Saturday.

Big Eight play kicks off its conference campaign as upstart Iowa State, operating on Coach Johnny Majors' revitalized program, entertains a somewhat disappointing Colorado crew at Ames.

Other Big Eight action sends Kansas State to Virginia Tech and Oklahoma State to Austin for an engagement with the Texas

Longhorns. Missouri hosts Army and Oklahoma has an open date.

Taking a first crack at the prognosticating game, I see:

COLORADO OVER IOWA STATE — The Cyclones have tasted victory twice in three games. That's two more than they were predicted to win all season. Mike Montler and Mike Schmitker help put the clamps on the surprise package from Ames.

KANSAS OVER NEW MEXICO — Ever get the feeling the Jayhawks are out to show people something this season? Don Shanklin takes a breather Saturday, saving energy for the Husker effort. The scoreboard should be extra busy again as Bobby Douglass leads the assault.

KANSAS STATE OVER VIRGINIA TECH — Virginia Tech impressed by chasing Alabama to the wire in its opener. But K-State's Cornelius Davis and Dave Jones cut loose to bury the Gobblers in a mild upset.

TEXAS OVER OKLAHOMA STATE — Step aside Cowboys, it's the Longhorns turn to do the branding. But don't expect as big a bulge as last year's 19-0 score.

MISSOURI OVER ARMY — The Tigers retaliated against Illinois last week after absorbing a 12-6 setback to Kentucky in their opener. Coach Dan Devine is one guy who just doesn't care to lose.

WISCONSIN OVER MICHIGAN STATE — Wisconsin has not won a game since 1966. The unbeaten Spartans loom a potential surprise in the Big Ten. That's why Badger coach John Coatto figures it's a good time to start winning.

INDIANA OVER ILLINOIS — Kansas socked it to both Big Ten foes. Missouri did no less against Illinois. Indiana's beating wasn't quite so bad and besides, John Isenbarger is healthy again. He doesn't like to punt.

PURDUE OVER NORTHWESTERN — This appears to be a pushover for Keyes' companions, but look for a pesky scrap from the Wildcats at Evanston. Trouble is, Le Roy doesn't much care where he is. When it comes to touchdowns, he is not choosy.

PENN STATE OVER

WEST VIRGINIA — The Nit-tany Lions, installed as a top pre-season choice in the national polls, have lived up to expectations. Now is certainly no time for a letdown.

NOTRE DAME OVER IOWA — If only Ed Podolak were up to par. But even that probably would not turn the trick. The Irish are on the rebound. Coach Ara Parseghian has not been known to keep the points down.

UCLA OVER SYRACUSE — The Bruins travel cross country to play this one. And that is just what they will do when they take the field, cross some more country.

MISSISSIPPI OVER ALABAMA — The Tide are unbeaten but certainly claim no powerhouse (for once). Coach Bear Bryant gets clawed early this season. Bama should slide right out of the top 20 after this one.

TEXAS A&M OVER FLORIDA STATE — All-America candidate Edd Hargett, the Aggies' record-setting quarterback, triggers the triumph over FSU.

FLORIDA OVER MISSISSIPPI STATE — Larry Smith unleashes his talent as Ray Graves' Southeastern Conference favorites turn back a surprisingly rugged Mississippi State.

SOUTHERN CAL OVER MIAMI — Wonder how O. J. Simpson got his name? No, not from Orange Juice. The story circulating claims it was when the Trojans played Notre Dame last year. The Jesuit priests in the stands kept moaning, "Oh Jesus, Oh Jesus, here he comes again."

OHIO STATE OVER OREGON — After owning a 1-2 record, Coach Woody Hayes rallied the Buckeyes to within five minutes of a co-Big Ten championship in 1967. Woody chops another one down before plunging into the conference race.

OTHER SELECTIONS — Minnesota over Wake Forest, Michigan over Navy,

Tennessee over Rice, LSU over Baylor, Georgia over South Carolina, Kentucky over Auburn, Georgia Tech over Clemson, Arkansas over TCU, North Carolina State over Southern Methodist, Houston over Cincinnati, Texas Tech over Colorado State, Wyoming over Arizona State, Utah over Washington State, UTEP over Arizona, Oregon State over Washington, California over San Jose State, Air Force over Stanford, Utah State over Montana, New Mexico State over Lamar Tech, Boston College over Butler, Boston over Temple, North Carolina over Vanderbilt, Virginia over Davidson, Duke over Maryland and Colgate over Yale.

Fiji's footballer picked top athlete

A University senior who has participated in four sports during the past three years has been named as the Daily Nebraskan's first Intramural Athlete of the Week for the semester.

Roger Mulder, an offensive guard and defensive end for the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity's intramural football squad, was named Athlete of the Week after the Fiji's downed Alpha Tau Omega last week 39-2.

A 6-2, 195-pound senior from Lincoln, Mulder intercepted three passes and returned two of them for touchdowns. Besides making numerous "tackles," he pressured the opposing quarterback into making several bad passes.

Mulder said he has played on intramural football, volleyball and softball teams during his college years, but claims that softball is the sport "where I really get going."

I don't see how we can possibly not win the All-University title unless we don't work well together," he said.

Players receiving honorable mention are Greg Goerke, a Scottsbluff sophomore from Cather 13; Bob Holmes, an Omaha senior from Phi Delta Theta, and Rich Moline, a Holdrege sophomore from Abel 3.

Nominations for next week's Intramural player are due in the Daily Nebraskan office in the Nebraska Union at noon Monday.
