

Cornhusker plans new format

The Cornhusker of 1969 will be a student-centered yearbook.

According to Rodney Powell, editor, this year's Cornhusker will follow a "considerably different format than last year's."

"The Cornhusker will contain individual interviews with many students in different areas of University life," Powell said. "The interviews are designed to solicit reactions from students in every major field of study."

BILL MARSH, who is associate editor, added that the interviews will allow students to describe the University as it is relevant to them.

According to Marsh, the Cornhusker will take the appearance of a magazine. "We are looking at layouts from Life and Look magazines for our ideas," he said.

"The relevancy of the University to students will be a recurring theme in the yearbook," Marsh added. "We will make editorial judgements in many cases."

but we are not making any judgements with pre-conceived opinions."

The book will be more colorful with an expanded section on special events such as Simon and Garfunkel, according to Powell.

"THERE WILL also be more thorough coverage of the administration," he said,

"what they are doing, and how students react to what they do."

There will be more concentration on University life outside the classroom, Marsh added.

"When you think of the University, you seldom think of your classes," Marsh continued. "We want to express these attitudes."

Pro engineers working on NU course

Two professional engineers from Lincoln, Donald Humphrey of the Brunswick Corp., and Robert Von Segren of Cushman Motors, are assisting in a project designed to make the first year course in engineering graphics more meaningful and interesting for University of Nebraska students.

"WE ARE trying to give students in engineering some contact with practical engineering early in their academic program," says Asso. Prof. Thomas C. Smith.

The two engineers talked with the students in small groups explaining their function and the practical application of their engineering training. They will return to the class to judge team projects on Jan. 8, 1969.

Prejudice is discussion topic for police, citizen encounter

A discussion between police representatives and community members will be the focal point of "Encounter with Prejudice" according to Mel Luetchens, associate director-minister of United Methodist Chapel.

"We hope this discussion will bring people's feeling on race relations out in the open," Luetchens said. "We are particularly interested in having people who are prejudiced and want to defend themselves," he added.

The encounter group will meet at 4:30 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 6.

Leadell Traylor, Dr. Earl Barnawell, Emmett Dennis, and representatives of the ASUN Human Rights Committee will give their reactions on police-community relations, Luetchens said.

Geobles is in charge of public relations for the police department; Henderson is on the Lincoln Board of Human Relations. Luetchens referred to the Shank's as "tremendous spokesmen for the black community."

Traylor, a student, was stopped on the street by police and feels it was for no legitimate reason, Luetchens said.

DR. BARNAWELL is an asst. prof. of zoology and physiology. Dennis, who is now head of the Motor Vehicles Division for the state of Nebraska, used to work for the Equal Opportunity Employment Commission.

Luetchens said the group will help people understand how racial prejudices are formed and break down some of the fears and misunderstandings that people have about those who are different than themselves. He hopes these face-to-face encounters with the same group of people will continue 3-6 weeks.

Dr. Carmen Grant, a psychologist from the University Health Center and Luetchens will be co-leaders of the encounter group.

"The group is not church related, it will only meet here," Luetchens said.

Homecoming Activities Announced

Alumni homecoming activities will include a social hour and luncheon Saturday in the Lincoln Hotel, according to George T. Bastian, executive secretary of the Alumni Assn.

The 1968 Homecoming Queen and her attendants will be presented to the alumni at the luncheon. Chancellor Hardin and President Joseph Soshnik will also speak, Bastian said.

"I THINK Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty, who is from Nebraska will be here," Bastian said.

Other alumni who will be at the luncheon include Milton Wick, on the Alumni Assn. board of directors, and Telber Maasdam, who organized Californians' for Nebraska.

These Californians' for Nebraska alumni usually fly back for Homecoming or an earlier game if Homecoming is late in the season.

"WITH THE luncheon we are trying to generate pep and enthusiasm for the game and provide a common meeting place for the alumni," Bastian said.

Luncheon reservations are not required.

The College of Dentistry alumni will hold their annual reunion Friday and Saturday in the dental facility on East Campus.

New physical education building to be dedicated

Formal dedication of the $2.2 million dollar Women's Physical Education building will be Friday, Nov. 8, at 2 p.m. with Chancellor Clifford

M. Hardin scheduled as key speaker. The new building, encompassing 92,900 square feet, includes a pool, three large sports and gymnastics areas, a dance studio, a library, classrooms, offices and dressing facilities with 3,200 lockers. An outdoor sports field is adjacent to the east and the tennis courts to the west.

The increased facilities will serve 180 students majoring in physical education, an active graduate program, and 68 sections of physical education for nearly 1700 freshmen and sophomore women.

THE DEPARTMENT employs 19 faculty members and offers various programs of sports, dance, and movement fundamentals for students in other colleges fulfilling under graduate requirements as well as students majoring in the field.

In addition to basic sports, majors take courses in the study of movement and applied anatomy, motor activities and play-ground and community recreation.

The new pool can accommodate 400 swimming students per week and is also used for recreational open swimming and Aquaquettes, the synchronized swim club, life saving and water safety instruction classes.

The gymnastics room will be specially equipped for "adaptives," programs of exercise adapted for women limited in their activities for health reasons. Programs will also be offered in personal defense.

THE MULTI-PURPOSE room will handle fencing, indoor field hockey and major courses in track and field.

The dance studio will be equipped for the dance classes and will also be used by Orchestis, the modern dance club.

Following the dedication will be an open house. A tea for alumnae and conducted tours for visitors will be held from 9 a.m. to noon on Saturday Nov. 9.

Human rights speaker

William H. Booth, chairman of the New York City Commission on Human Rights, will speak at the Nebraska Union December 6th according to Lincoln NAACP president Dr. Patrick Wells.

Booth, a native of New York state, was appointed to the Human Rights Commission post on February 1, 1966. Since that time the Commission has become an effective instrument for enforcing New York City's anti-discrimination laws and an aggressive force in the community fight for equality, said Dr. Wells.

Booth also serves the city government as Chairman of the Jamaica, Queens, branches of the Mayor's Urban Action Task Force.

He served in the Army during World War II. After the war, he graduated from Queen's college in 1946. He then went on to take LL.B and LL.M Degrees from New York University's Law School.

Admitted to the New York bar in 1950, he practiced in the New York courts for 16 years. In 1966 he was admitted to practice in the Supreme Court of the United States.

Booth is speaking in conjunction with the Lincoln NAACP membership rally. The rally is being held in the Nebraska Union through the co-sponsorship of the Afro-American Students Organization.

Among several other activities Booth is a member of the national board of directors of the NAACP. His visit is at the invitation of the Lincoln chapter membership, Dr. Wells said.

Taking advantage of the spacious new studio, women practice modern dance method.

Marketing at IBM

"You help company presidents solve their information handling problems."

"It's a lot of responsibility. And if you need help, you always get it," says Earl Andrews. "Because your success is the company's success."

Earl earned his B.A. in Political Science in 1967. Today, he's a Marketing Representative with IBM, involved in the planning, selling and installation of data processing systems.

Earl joined IBM because he felt the career paths were very clearly marked. "You don't have to be a technical genius to fit the job. You get the training. Then on-the-job experience. Before you know it, you're out on your own."

Works with top management

Earl works mainly with small companies—distribution houses, manufacturers, printers, warehouses, electrical supply houses and similar organizations. "I deal with top management," he says. "It gives me a lot of satisfaction to realize that I'm trained to know what this president or that vice-president is trying to learn. I help him solve his information handling problems."

Earl's experience isn't unusual at IBM. There are many marketing and sales representatives who could tell you similar experiences. And they have many kinds of academic backgrounds: business, engineering, liberal arts, science.

They not only market data processing equipment as Earl does, but also IBM office products and information records systems. Many of the more technically inclined are data processing Systems Engineers.

Check with your placement office

If you're interested in marketing at IBM, ask your placement office for more information.

Or send a resume or letter to Irv Pfeiffer, IBM Corp., Dept. C, 100 So. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. 60606. We'd like to hear from you even if you're headed for graduate school or military service.
