

Homecoming to feature The American Breed

The American Breed.

The American Breed, who came to national popularity last year with their hit "Bend Me, Shape Me," will perform at the NU Homecoming Dance this Friday evening.

"We are a dance band, but we're a people band, too," said the American Breed's lead guitarist Gary Loizzo.

The band was formed in Chicago. It started out as a hard rock group, but then changed to what Loizzo termed "sophisticated rock."

THE BREED has played on campus at Purdue, Loyola, Notre Dame, Iowa State and the University of Illinois. It has also appeared at Los Angeles' Whiskey A Go Go, at Disneyland and on several television programs.

The group is currently scheduled to do a special song for Paramount Pictures' new movie "What Every Woman Should Know." They will also appear at New York's Cheetah Club in the near future.

The group says that they are experimenting with new sounds and sometimes use effects and extra instruments in their recording sessions. However, they try to keep their recording sound as close to their in-person sound as possible.

"That way we don't disappoint the fans," Loizzo said.

Debate on motion results in call for quick report

He said Columbia University "had been ill-prepared to deal with an explosive situation as it quickly developed." This committee, he said, would be a vehicle of dialogue and co-ordinated action. He also pointed out that the housing policies had been initiated by students, not faculty members. (A later speaker asserted that the NU housing policy had been a combination effort of students and faculty.)

At the end of the discussion, a substitute motion was passed that sent the resolution into the committee on committees, with a report urged for the next meeting if possible.

The motion was passed overwhelmingly, with a few dissenting voices raised against.

PAUL OLSON, asking that discussion of the issue be extended despite the vote, said that Prof. Anderson was "too optimistic" concerning the faculty's role in human rights. He said, as director of elementary teachers, he had run into many situations in which a committee such as the one proposed would be advantageous.

"Unless one is in immediate day-to-day contact with the anguish of the blacks in Lincoln society, he has no idea of the need of such a thing," he said.

He said that even though the administration had strict housing policies, it had no equipment with which to enforce the policies.

Prof. John Braeman of the history department asserted that the resolution was too vague. He said terms such as "human rights" and "infractions" must be defined. He said that it would further be "out of place for the faculty as the faculty" to take a stand on such problems, although faculty members as individuals had every right to do so.

With these comments, the resolution now rests with the committee on committees, which will accept all written opinions from the faculty, but whose chairman ruled out a full meeting on the resolution because it would become "too chaotic."

Deans concerned recent publicity to hurt cause

San Francisco (CPS) — Deans of some of the nation's most prestigious graduate schools are worried about recent publicity that the abolition of draft deferments has not hurt graduate schools. They fear the publicity will make it difficult for them to lobby for a change in the draft law when the new Congress and administration take office in January.

MOST GRADUATE school deans had predicted dire consequences when graduate deferments were ended last February. "Graduate schools will be filled with the halt, the lame, the blind and the female," was the most popular prediction. But statistics show that graduate schools' enrollments haven't dropped significantly, and the press has been full of stories that the graduate schools aren't badly hurt.

"Nobody knows whether graduate schools are badly hurt," says Gustave Arlt, president of the Council of Graduate Schools in the U.S. "Who are these students?"

ARLT IS urging that universities gather more information about their graduate students. He said, "We need to know who is enrolled and why."

Specific things graduate schools should know, according to Arlt, include which disciplines have had increases and which have had decreases in enrollment, how many of the students are part-time only, and statistics showing prospective graduate students who were drafted, enlisted to avoid being drafted, or who took positions in teaching and industry to avoid the draft.

Harriers win at Iowa

Nebraska's cross country team closed its dual meet season Saturday with a 26-32 victory over Iowa State by placing six runners among the top 10 finishers.

The Cyclones swept the first two places, but team balance gave the Huskers the win. The Huskers closed the regular season with a 3-1 record as they prepare for the Big Eight championships Saturday at Lawrence, Kan.

NEBRASKA'S Pete Brang placed third with 14:58, Greg Carlberg was fourth with 15:03, Mike Lee placed fifth at 15:21 and Mel Campbell was sixth at 15:21. NU's Bob Tupper took eighth with 15:31 and Jim Lang finished ninth at 15:34.

SEVIGNE said NU has some fine individual runners with good balance. He termed Nebraska's chances for winning the Big Eight title after two consecutive last place finishes "good."

"I don't want to wait for someone to die or retire in order to get promoted."

We're with you.

Because at IH we believe a promotion is something you earn. Not some kind of hand-me-down just to fill an empty slot.

That's why you'll have to be a thinker. A doer. An innovator. The kind of guy who prefers to be promoted on his merits alone.

You'll need talent. Lots of imagination. And plenty of guts. The guts to make decisions and fight for your ideas.

We, in turn, will give you plenty of freedom — and excitement, too.

So you'll learn a lot. (Maybe even teach us a thing or two.)

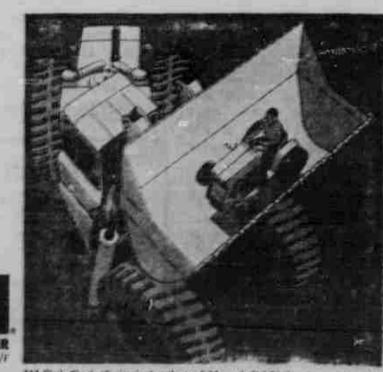

What's more, if you join us, you'll be part of a diversified company. One where there's plenty of action in farm equipment, motor trucks, construction and steelmaking.

And you'll also find we're banking heavily on research. (We've got some pretty far-out ideas on computers in trucks, laser beam construction equipment, applications of solar energy and nuclear power.)

As a result, we're looking for test, design, manufacturing and research engineers. We need accountants and production management people. And we need sales people for our wholesale and retail operations.

So talk to your campus placement officer about us. He'll fill you in on the jobs we want to fill.

With minds, not bodies.
