

Sunday dinner dilemma foreign to outpatients

One food service on campus is not closed Sunday evening. In fact, the outpatient dining room at the Student Health Center operates every day, year round, according to Dietician Kathleen Lehr.

"The main purpose of this program is to acquaint a patient with his social diet," she said.

AFTER A doctor prescribes a special diet, the patient begins to eat in the dining room, she continued. After a while the diet becomes familiar, and the patient can usually begin eating at his living unit again.

While under diet care, patient's status is reviewed by his doctor on a regular basis, and the diet is dropped as soon as possible.

In more severe cases, patients must eat at the dining room full time, she said. Sometimes very bland or non-bulky diets are required, which are hard to get in the living units.

IN SOME instances, people are allergic to staple foods, she said, including such things as wheat, eggs and milk. This type of patient is confined to a diet of meat, fruit, vegetables and the like.

Patients who live in apartments or at home are allowed to cook for themselves, she said. However, they are first instructed in the particulars of diet at the Health Center.

The facility handles an average of twenty patients she continued. However, only about ten are using it at the present time.

SHE SAID that the service is staffed by a dietician, three full-time cooks, a dish machine operator and seven student helpers. It is set up on the same basis as a hospital kitchen except the scale is much smaller.

Though the service has been in existence for some time, last year was the first time it offered full-time service. Last summer marked the first year of full-time service.

Dietician Lehr is a graduate of the University. A licensed dietician must take four years of college work followed by a year's internship.

Films aid teaching ... Children in a silent world helped by Center at NU

Research in the education media at the University of Nebraska is helping deaf children to learn about the silent world in which they live.

Dr. Robert E. Stepp, director of the Midwest Regional Media Center for the Deaf, is particularly interested in the teaching of deaf children because he has a 12-year-old son who is deaf.

It is hard for me to understand what deafness is, even though a member of my family is deaf," he said.

Although he finds deafness hard to understand, Dr. Stepp and his staff of 12 "talented people" are doing much to help educate deaf children.

IN 1964, Dr. Stepp did research in the use of 8mm films as an aid in teaching deaf children how to speak read.

His original research attracted attention and led to the establishment of the Center in 1966. The Center, one of four in the United States, serves a 10 state area.

Since the only means of learning a deaf child has is with his eyes, each child requires individual attention from the teacher. When the teacher's attention is directed to another pupil, the first child stops learning, Stepp said.

The use of films allows a child to practice a speech reading lesson which was started by the teacher. This frees the teacher to work with others.

THE CENTER is concerned with designing and producing instructional material for deaf children which can be used for independent study.

The film cartridges are designed so that even a 3-and-one-half year old child can operate the projector himself.

Other work at the Center includes conducting education media institutes for teachers of the deaf and professors who train teachers of the deaf, holding an annual national conference for administrators of schools for the deaf and conducting workshops at schools for the deaf.

NIA holds panel on families

A table tennis tournament, a panel discussion on family systems and an international food buffet are being planned by the Nebraska International Association (NIA), according to Sam Bioku, president.

The panel will discuss the different husband-wife, parent-child relationships around the world, Bioku said. He felt students would be particularly interested in parental influence on dating and courtship in different countries.

EIGHT FOREIGN students from various countries will be on the panel that will be moderated by Mrs. Ruby Gingles, associate professor of human development and the family.

The discussion will be Sunday, Nov. 24, at 3 p.m. in the Nebraska Union. All students are invited, Bioku said.

After the panel, NIA and Inter-Varsity will have a reception with Dr. Samuel I. Fuening, medical director of the University Health Center at 5 p.m.

FOREIGN AND American students will both compete in the all-international table tennis tournament, Bioku said. The elimination tournament will be in December.

The foreign students will sponsor an international buffet in April. The menu will include native dishes prepared by the foreign students.

NIA, ASUN and other campus organizations will cooperatively sponsor International Week in February, he said.

IN CONNECTION with International Week, NIA will sponsor "Cultures on Campus," which will include exhibits and programs on the countries that are represented on campus.

"The 226 foreign students on campus automatically become members of NIA and membership is also extended to interested American students and faculty members," Bioku said. The executive board includes both foreign and American students, he added.

"Our organization tries to bring students from all countries together to remove some of the boundaries that exist between different peoples," he said.

The next NIA monthly meeting will be Saturday, Dec. 7, in the Nebraska Union.

Widely-known soprano plans concert in Lincoln

The Lincoln Symphony Orchestra will present a concert on Nov. 26, Tuesday, which will feature soprano Phyllis Curtin.

Miss Curtin, who now lives in New York, has sung in opera and concert at the Metropolitan Opera, La Scala, the Vienna State Opera, Teatro Colon and many other leading opera houses. She has appeared in twenty countries as a recitalist and symphony soloist.

LIFE MAGAZINE has described her as "the country's best and busiest singer of contemporary music, and she has premiered more new opera than any American soprano going and has had 53 works written especially for her."

Miss Curtin is a native of Clarksburg, West Virginia, and a graduate of Wesleyan College, where she majored in political science while studying music as a side-line.

Open housing 'straight talk' scheduled

The Human Rights Committee will meet Thursday to plan an "Open Housing Talk-In" which will feature leaders in human rights activities in Lincoln, according to Dan Looker, chairman of the ASUN committee.

Looker said that the speakers will be announced at the meeting. "They will include people from the poverty program, the University, and city hall," he added.

"WE HOPE to have four panels speaking at four dorm complexes Monday, December 9," he said. "The talk-in will explain housing prejudice the way it really is in Lincoln. I don't expect our speakers to pull any punches," Looker continued.

"Members of the human rights committee will also explain what students can do in this area," he added.

Looker said the planning meeting would be held in the Union at 7:30.

Director of deaf center to speak

Dr. Robert E. Stepp, director of the Midwest Regional Media Center for the Deaf, will be the speaker for the 7 p.m. Thursday meeting of Sigma Alpha Eta.

The organization is the professional honorary for speech pathology and audiology majors. His topic will be "The Deaf Student as an Independent Learner."

All interested persons are encouraged to attend.

Age, experience for nought? ... Freshman squad tagged 'trouble' in Friday clash

by Randy York
Assistant Sports Editor

Friday night's Nebraska varsity-freshmen basketball clash is likely to be a close game, according to Joe Cipriano, the Huskers' head coach.

Tip-off time is set for 7:35 p.m. at the Coliseum.

The varsity suffered two setbacks in practice sessions this week. First, Jim Brooks, the Akron, Ohio, junior who has been starting at the center post in fall drills, was sidelined with mononucleosis Tuesday.

THEN TOM Scantlebury, who has been alternating at a starting guard slot, underwent hand surgery Tuesday. Scantlebury, a starter last year, had a pin taken out of his hand but participated in Wednesday's workout.

Brooks is working on shooting only this week, Cipriano said. He added that Brooks would not be ready for full-scale workouts until next week.

"Losing Brooks really hurts," Cipriano said. "We had been setting a lot of things up around him, and now we're going to have to change some things. But it does give some others a chance to move up."

CIPRIANO SAID Scantlebury would be the sixth man, pending recovery. Sam Martin and Marv Stewart will man the guard spots while veteran Bob Gratopp and sophomore Tom Bryan will start at forwards.

Soph Leroy Chalk will probably open at center, Cipriano said, and Dale Von Seggern, a 1967-68 starter, may see early duty.

"We have not had a great week of practice with so many people gone," Cipriano said. The Husker boss said team defense is Nebraska's biggest problem this season.

"WE ALSO make too many mistakes," Cipriano said.

"We give the ball up too much. I guess this can be expected with so many new faces, but I think if we just spend some time and get used to each other, it will get better."

Cipriano's second five consists of guards Cliff Moller and N. S. Hurd, forwards Tim Allmond and Ken Cauble or Lee Torrens and center Von Seggern or Chalk.

"This year's freshmen group," Cipriano said, "has more finesse than any freshmen team we've had since I've been here. If this group gets hot, its going to give us trouble."

Stanford president criticizes draft law; sets student communication objective

Palo Alto, Calif. — (I.P.) — Kenneth S. Pitzer, Stanford's president-elect, has criticized the draft law, backed student involvement in education reform, and set open communication with students and faculty as his most important immediate objective.

Scheduled to take office Dec. 1, Pitzer went directly from his first news conference to confer informally and privately with Student Body President Denis Hayes and six other students.

ON A long-run basis, he told newsmen, Stanford's "aim and ambition should be a university second to none in the world," the equal of Harvard and MIT combined in the distinction and range of its academic programs.

He said he was "all in favor" of Stanford's recent commitment to double its minority group enrollment by 1970. "We should digest what we've already promised before making more promises," he added. The University has estimated its costs for the change may reach approximately $1 million annually, mainly for increased student financial aid.

As President of Rice University, Pitzer gave top priority to removal of racial restrictions on enrollment, securing a court order to do so in 1964.

QUESTIONED about the role of students in picking university presidents, Pitzer said students "certainly should have an opportunity to put information into the process. How it goes in will vary at each institution. What's right now may not be right 10 years from now."

Asked about demonstrations, he said "in many cases, disturbances are a matter of getting attention," which might be avoided with adequate communication among various campus interest groups. The University is now in the act of developing new policy guidelines to help maintain the rights of free speech, peaceable assembly, and freedom of movement on campus.

FRESHMEN COACH Bill Harrell said, "We're big, but not slow." He said the freshmen possess good mobility and added that rebounding is the team's main strength.

The freshmen line-up will have a Husker accent as four Nebraskans are slated to start. Schuyler's Chuck Jura, Hastings' Jim White, Omaha's Mike Peterson and Lincoln's Curt LeRossignol, Al Nisson, a Miller, S.D., native, is the other starter.

Harrell labeled the freshmen outfit as an "average shooting team" and said outside help will come from 6-5 Don Wilson, 6-3 1/2 Tom McCowan and 6-1 Kevin Reagan.

All-sports tickets now on sale

Nebraska ticket manager Jim Pittenger said this week that all-sports student athletic tickets are on sale at the Coliseum ticket office.

Pittenger said students must purchase their own tickets, with one ticket per person and two for married couples. Tickets are priced at $5.25 each.

They will remain on sale until the first of the year, or until the supply of 3,000 is exhausted, Pittenger said.
