

Twenty coeds chosen as semi-finalists

Twenty semi-finalists have been chosen for the Best Dressed Coed contest sponsored by AWS and the Union hospitality committee, according to chairman Sherri Housewright.

Forty-two nominees were selected by living units. They were interviewed by a panel consisting of Robert Hillestad, instructor of Textiles, Clothing & Design; Mary Pack, buyer for Quentin's; Neal Stack, a senior design student; Bill Bures, employee of Ben Simon & Sons.

The panel chose 20 finalists who interviewed with them again. The ten finalists will be presented at a Fashion Show Monday, Dec. 9 at 8 p.m. in the Union Ballroom.

Entertainment will be given by Jim Weaver and Sandy Phillips. The twenty semi-finalists will model clothes in the style show sponsored by Quentin's.

"The contest has been changed to eliminate it from being a popularity contest," Miss Housewright said. Previously, the winners were chosen by popular vote of submitting names.

Burt Lectures Friday at Cotner

Dr. Gustave Ferre will present two lectures Friday at the Cotner Chapel as a part of the M. T. Burt Lectures sponsored by the Nebraska School of Religion.

The lectures will be at 10:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. They are entitled "Analytic Philosophy and Language About God" and "The Moral Response."

One more threat... Exams could all be surprises

This directive is still in force, although the College of Arts and Sciences is trying to change the policy, Bruning said.

"Personally, I do not think we should evacuate," he continued.

In his opinion, students and teachers should remain in classrooms when a bomb threat occurs. Reliable building personnel and police would search certain areas of the building.

THIS POLICY is followed in Lincoln high schools when a bomb threat occurs, he said. Bruning is not directly in-involved in attempts to change the present directive and he would not speculate whether or not it would be changed.

Several other plans have been proposed, Bruning said.

One possibility would be to schedule hour exams in large lecture sections (Where bombing out seems to occur most frequently) in a particular week rather than on a particular day, he said. Students would have to be prepared on one day of that week, with the exact date unknown.

"I believe that this plan would be quite fair to the students and also eliminate interruption in our academic programs," he said.

HOPEFULLY, the students will remedy the situation themselves and no further administrative measures will be necessary, he said.

"I realize the unannounced exams are tremendously unfair and I hope they do not have to be used," Bruning said. But the College is desperate and has to continue its academic operations.

Pershing Rifles will present 'other side of campus opinion'

"Tell it like it is, but tell it better."

This was the essence of the opening statements made by Brigadier General Clifford P. Hannum at the annual Little National Convention of the National Society of Pershing Rifles.

The convention was held over Thanksgiving vacation at the Nebraska Center. In attendance were 45 representatives from P-R regimental headquarters throughout the country and members of the organization's national staff whose headquarters are at the University.

GENERAL HANNUM, who is one of the PR's national advisers, told the delegates that University students should not be taken in by the "illogical rhetoric and play on words that various campus subversive groups use to draw a following."

He said that it is time for Pershing Rifles members to stand up and let University students know where the organization stands.

Pershing Rifles is one of the organizations that can best provide the "key communicators" to counter-balance the campus subversive groups, he added.

ROTC instructors cannot get involved in controversial campus issues because of their positions as Army faculty members, he continued.

However, individual officers can provide moral support.

IN CONCLUSION he urged the P-R commanders to "get out and join the fray." "You might be surprised at how many supporters you have," he said.

As a result of decisions made at the convention—the P-R National Headquarters is currently planning to "present the other side of radical opposition to ROTC," according to National Public Information Officer Kent Cockson.

"The purpose of the program is to concentrate the leadership of pro-ROTC sentiment on one level," Cockson continued.

THROUGH THE use of the P-R national newspaper, the National staff hopes to generate an active pro-ROTC sentiment in PR units throughout the country, Cockson said.

"It is our hope to extend this feeling through a common front," he continued. One of the devices used will be a question and answer sheet replying to arguments used against ROTC.

"It's time that someone took a unilateral stand against the reckless rhetoric of some of the campus subversive organizations," Cockson said. "What is really needed is for someone to expose what these people really stand for."

He said that the PR's are in an excellent position to do this because of their standing as an extra-curricular organization. This is a movement to be conducted by students and not by some organization outside the University, he added.

Foreign students

NU foreign students will perform skits and songs at the Nebraska International Association meeting Saturday, Dec. 7, in the Nebraska Union.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m., and a social hour and dancing will follow the entertainment.

Phi Mu grasps WAA first place

Phi Mu captured first place in the Women's Athletic Association, and Delta Gamma swept first in the WAA swim meet in results announced this week.

Live-in scheduled

Another "Live-in" will take place on Omaha's north side this week-end, according to Mike Shonsey, one of the program's organizers. The object of the program is to gain an insight into conditions on the north side.

Participants will leave from the Wesley Foundation at 6 p.m. Friday and return Sunday afternoon, Shonsey said. While in Omaha the group will talk with community leaders and citizens. Cost of room and board for the week-end is $16.

He continued that there is still space available for interested students. Anyone wishing to attend should contact the Wesley Foundation immediately.

Sandoz 7 placed second and Smith 10 third in the volleyball tourney. Alpha Phi and Sandoz ranked second and third, respectively, in the swim meet. Lyn Ruser, Delta Gamma, scored 15 points to top volleyball point-makers.

Gymnasiums in the Womens Physical Education Building will open at 4:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday for intramural team practices and individual sessions.

Volleyball games are scheduled for Thursday, 7:30 p.m. against Doane at the Womens PE Building and Sunday at Nebraska Wesleyan.

Jazz n' Java slated Friday

Jazz 'n Java will be held Friday, Dec. 6, in the remodeled Crib in the Nebraska Union.

The Gang Greene will play from 3:45 until 4:45 according to Nancy Griffin, chairman of special events.
