

Organizations to hold interviews in near future

Several University organizations will hold interviews for members in the near future.

Red Cross will interview students for committee chairmen assistants in the Nebraska Union on Saturday. Applications should be picked up and returned to the panhellenic bulletin board in the Union basement by Friday afternoon, according to Linda Jeffrey, vice-president.

AUF will interview board applicants Saturday from 1 to 5 p.m. in the Union, said Tom Wiese, president. Applications are due Friday at 5 p.m.

Builders will interview students with previous Builders' experience for chairmen and vice-chairmen spots on Sunday, February 9, in the Union. Applications should be returned to the Builders' office, according to Cricket Black, vice-president.

The Nebraska Union Forums Committee will conduct interviews at 7 p.m. on Wednesday, February 5, for a four member delegation to represent the University at the Midwest Model United Nations. The model UN is to be held in St. Louis February 19-22, said Wally Dean, chairman of the Forums Committee.

Interfraternity Council will conduct interviews for six committee chairmen on Sunday, February 1, at 1 p.m. Applicants must have application and sign up for office, according to Leon Polokov, vice-president.

Struggling for the basketball are Nebraska's Lee Torrens (32) and an Oklahoma State opponent during Monday night's 76-52 Cowboy victory at the Coliseum. The Huskers entertain Missouri at 7:35 p.m. Saturday at the Coliseum, seeking their first Big Eight win.

Husker sub-par record no surprise to Cipriano

By Mark Gordon
Sports Writer

Nebraska basketball squad's sub-par 7-9 record, following Monday night's 76-52 loss to Oklahoma State at the Vine Street barn, has not surprised NU coach Joe Cipriano.

"This is about what you expect when you play so many new faces," he said, in adding that NU fans may have been spoiled the past three years when the then experienced Huskers finished 16-9 and 15-10.

NU will have a chance to break its inconsistency problem at 7:35 p.m. Saturday at the Coliseum when the Missouri Tigers invade Lincoln hoping to avenge an earlier 76-70 loss at the Big Eight pre-season tournament. But even if the Huskers score their first Big Eight victory in five tries, Cipriano will lament the loss of Tom Baack and Stuart Lantz, players (Baack and Lantz) who could score 40 points together, while this year we don't have three players who together can score 40," he said.

Baack and Lantz, who were graduated last June were NU's two-leading all-time scorers, while this year's current top three Huskers are averaging 36.5 between them.

Cipriano said Nebraska followers have been somewhat impatient with the offense and added that opposing teams always adjust to the offense a team employs in December by January. He added that Nebraska could just as easily own a 2-2 Big Eight.

"Last year, we had two record instead of its current last place 0-4 slate. "We played well enough to win against Kansas and Iowa State," he said. "In the past when we played like that we won, but experience has made the different this year."

Nebraska, with no seniors, dropped a last-minute 56-52 decision to the nationally-rated Kansas Jayhawks in Lincoln and beat 99-93 in overtime to Iowa State at Ames last Saturday.

Claiming that Aaron Jenkins, who scored 33 points for the Ames crew, made the difference in NU's third loss of the league season, Cipriano said Nebraska would not play much better than it did on the road against Iowa State. But he added that practices have been spirited despite the below .500 per cent pace.

He credited the team's leading scorer Jim Brooks with improvement and said sparkplug guard Sam Martin has been one of the team's more consistent performers.

Blaming turnovers for the worst Cipriano loss ever at the Coliseum Monday, Cipriano said Nebraska previously has controlled matches with its patented press, but inexperience has plagued NU this year.

"We just hope the errors and problems won't continue," he said. "But we aren't giving up yet as we still have 11 league games left."

HUSKER BRIEFS — N. S. Hurd apparently has been drafted into armed forces, according to a team spokesman. The spokesman added that Hurd, a transfer from Odessa Junior College in Texas who came to NU for track, did not officially inform the team of his intentions before leaving.

Twirl for fame and field fortune

WANTED: A young lady talented in baton twirling, with beauty, poise and musical ability.

Professor Jack Snider, director of the marching band, is conducting a search for a replacement for Susie Kunc, who has performed with the Cornhusker Band for four years and is graduating this spring.

Miss Kunc is only the band's second twirler since the tradition was begun in 1961 when Joyce Burns Thingan was selected to add color to the football halftime programs.

"There is no scholarship involved in this position and it entails some hard work practicing with the band, but there is ample recognition," Snider said. Miss Kunc for instance, performed before national television several times and in the Cotton and Orange bowls.

Will reading assignments be a problem this year?

THESE SKILLS WILL HELP YOUR STUDIES

RAPID READING . . . In Reading Dynamics you learn to read faster naturally—without mechanical devices and without losing the enjoyment or flavor of reading. Nor do you skim or skip. You triple your present rate by taking in entire thoughts at one time.

FLEXIBILITY . . . You learn to adjust your reading speed, according to the difficulty of the material, your background in the material, and your purpose in reading the material. Different techniques are taught for novels, texts, journals, newspapers, magazines, etc.

CONCENTRATION . . . Concentration while reading and studying is very difficult for many people who read slowly. Rapid reading requires close attention, and concentration quickly improves so that students are not easily distracted.

COMPREHENSION . . . As concentration increases, comprehension improves. In addition, you learn to read expectantly for the author's concepts to which important facts and details may be attached. The result is greater depth of comprehension.

RETENTION . . . A very important measure of your reading ability is how much you remember. Retention is improved by reading for concepts, by using recall patterns, by maintaining a high level of concentration, and by remembering by association.

ORGANIZATION . . . The first vital step in studying is organization. We teach the student how to organize and use varied texts, supplements, suggested readings and class notes.

CONCISE NOTE TAKING . . . Recall techniques organize a conference or lecture as it occurs, eliminating voluminous notes and reorganizing. Recall patterns are especially valuable if the presentation is not concise and if your mind wanders.

SUPPLEMENTAL READING . . . Many people limit their education because they barely have time for required reading. Being able to read widely adds interest and depth to your understanding.

INDEPENDENT STUDY AND RESEARCH . . . The real reward of education is the accumulation of knowledge. Our techniques allow you to continue your education at your own pace.

A Lifetime Reading and Study Program

After completing the basic course, you continue to attend weekly practice sessions as often as you wish without cost. Students bring their homework to the sessions and get a head start on each week's school assignments.

Businessmen bring their "in-boxes" and periodical reading and get some of their work out of the way.

Many people work on their Independent Study Projects. Others attend these sessions for the pure enjoyment of reading new books and discussing the author's ideas with members of the class.

Special counseling is available where necessary. These sessions provide a stimulating environment which will help you discover your potential for learning.

Find out why we have over 400,000 graduates Attend a FREE one-hour MINI-LESSON

The best way to find out what the course is all about is to attend an hour-long mini-lesson. The mini-lesson will introduce you to our classroom procedures. It'll show you how we extend your retention and recall. It'll give you a glimpse of our sessions on new study techniques. You might even leave the mini-lesson reading faster than when you came in.

MINI-LESSONS will be held at 1601 "P" Street

Friday, Jan. 31 4:00 PM and 7:00 PM

Saturday, Feb. 1 11:00 AM and 2:00 PM

Think selfishly about your own career before you decide on one with Du Pont.

Many have found career enrichment at Du Pont. This comes from being handed a ball and being expected to run with it. From working with top people, from growing in a company where the opportunities are always wide open and the projects are often way out.

Many have found professional fulfillment and have built a very full, varied and happy life as "Du Ponters."

Others have found, after working at Du Pont, that their professional interest lay in teaching, in further study or in an industry that offered even wider scope in their particular discipline. All of these men left Du Pont far better qualified professionally than when they came.

Be selfish. But be honest. You've put in a lot of tough years to get your degree. Your allegiance lies with a professional discipline. Why, then, must you decide now to plight your trust to a company for life? Don't. Join a company first. If it doesn't advance you within that professional discipline, well, you're not married to it.

So talk to the Du Pont recruiter. If he offers you something, think of it as a professional challenge, not a proposal of marriage.
