 separate programs, such as the college for environmental design, and receive separate accreditation," Lawler said.
 Asked of his qualifications to be a senator, Lawler said he has worked with people in the service, and, as a computer technician, he "understands the problems of an engineer."

architecture, said that the proposed college of environmental design "has everyone's approval" but that it has "bogged down somewhere" and, as a student senator, he would try to discover where.

Scott said that he has been active in the AIA and other architectural organizations so that he "knows people in the college," and has had experience in student government in his residence hall.
 "Since students are the primary beneficiaries of the educational system, they should have some say about this."

OLENBERGER SAID he was appointed to ASUN in March, and is "the only incumbent senator from engineering and architecture."

Olenberger said the decision making role of the student is not as "big as it should be," but will improve when the "Student in the Academic Community" document is implemented by the Committee on Student Life, a 13 member committee of which 7 are students and, according to Olenberger, "answers only to the Regents."

The possibility of an Advisory Board for engineering and architecture, "to give more students a chance to voice their opinions," would be considered by candidate Loren Hanson.

Hanson said that as a senior in engineering, he "knows the scope of the affairs of the college" and now has the free time to devote to serving as a senator.

HANSON SAID that students should serve in an advisory capacity in the making of the University's academic decisions, "but should have the say" concerning extra-curricular activities.

Tony Martinkus, an engineering student, said that ASUN is more concerned with arts and sciences, but as a student senator, he would "have a chance to do something for his college" and "would be available for gripes."

Martinkus said he served on the reapportionment committee and has been active in floor government and on IDA.

"The student attends the University, but the administration tells him what to do," Martinkus said. "If we show the administration that we're responsible, there are a lot of things we could do for ourselves."

JOHN ROSENOW, a student in agricultural engineering, said that he is in favor of a greater student voice in course selection.

"Ag engineering has a new curriculum and some of the courses leave something to be desired," Rosenow said. "Since I'm going through this, I feel I'd have some idea on selecting a good curriculum."

Rosenow said that Student Senate should "provide an official statement of student opinion to be considered by the Board of Regents" hopefully "to bring about trends, taking the place of demonstrations, which have no decision making power to them."

Harry Silver, if elected, said he would "work for more cooperative programs between students and administration."

SILVER SAID he has been in engineering three years, knows the students in his college, and since he has been initiated into two honoraries, feels the students know him and can relay their problems through him to the senate.

On student power, Silver said that he wouldn't be for "complete control" now, but "could see it in a couple of years," adding that "he supports bill 24" and "it could be a useful tool if implemented properly."

Stan Peters, a mechanical engineering student from India, said he is running to "make the voice of the foreign student heard."

"The housing office tells the foreign student to come live in the dorms, overlooking the fact that he is unaccustomed to this type of life," Peters said.

Ask the man who never stops going to school - about Aetna.

We teach school. Seven thousand people each year attend our schools. That's a larger student body than 90% of the colleges in this country. But our training doesn't stop there. We want every Aetna employee to reach his full potential, use all his capabilities, and be the most knowledgeable in the business. So special programs, advanced study and refresher courses go on all the time. After all, it's the caliber of our people that made Aetna one of the leading companies in the world handling all kinds of insurance. They taught us a lot too.

Learn about Aetna. Ask for our booklet, "Your Own Thing," at your Placement Office. An Equal Opportunity Employer and a Plans for Progress company.

This campus is crawling with leg men

Your legs get the once-over every time you turn around. And they'd better look great. Once over with the sleek new Lady Norelco, and they will.

The rest of you will, too. Because the Lady Norelco isn't just a fast, close, comfortable leg shaver. It's a fast, close, gentle underarm shaver too. And it's even an easy-to-handle trimmer that takes off those wispy little neck strands that sneak up on Sassoons between appointments. It's a whole new way to stay great looking. So is the new Norelco Ladyshave pictured at right. It comes in a purple and white travel purse and does a good job of pampering your legs, underarms and pocketbook.

Lady Norelco and Norelco Ladyshave. Two fabulous new ladies' shavers. For the benefit of man.
