

Husker harriers need solid big 8 effort

by Steve Sinclair
Assistant Sports Editor

Nebraska is given a "slight chance" to win the Big Eight cross country championship by Husker coach Frank Sevigne. The conference meet will be held Saturday morning at Kansas State.

"To win we're going to have to have our top five runners turn in good performances," Sevigne said. "In cross country one guy can kill you."

"We could have the top four finishers and still not win if our fifth man comes in fiftieth," he said.

The main roadblocks to a Nebraska title are Kansas and Missouri, according to Sevigne.

"I hate to admit it, but it looks like Kansas again this year," Sevigne said.

The defending champion Jayhawks are led by Doug Smith, third place finisher in last year's conference meet, and Jay Mason, who finished ninth last year. KU's Dave Anderson and Jon Callen are two of the better freshmen in the conference, Sevigne said.

Kansas posted an impressive win at the Kansas State Federation meet last week. The Jayhawks had five of the top ten finishers in a meet which included Kansas State and Colorado.

Missouri was undefeated in dual meets this fall. This includes a 24-31 conquest of Nebraska, which was the Huskers' only regular season loss.

In the Missouri dual Tiger standout Kerry Hogan edged Nebraska's Greg Carlberg by one second to win the individual title. Carl Gans and Mark Wilson, ex-Omaha Central standout, also have performed well for Missouri.

Sevigne indicated the meet could become a four-team race if Kansas State shows some improvement. The Wildcats are led by Jerome Howe, who finished 25th in last year's meet, but is considered a contender for the individual championship this year.

Nebraska chances for the title hinge on the performance of its fourth and fifth place finishers, according to Sevigne.

"We think we have three runners, who have a shot at the individual title," Sevigne said, referring to Jim Lang, Carlberg, and Peter Brang.

He said that the Huskers would be in good shape if the top three runners perform as expected, and the fourth and fifth men finish in the top fifteen.

This means that a second trio of runners (Bob Tupper, Mel Campbell and Dave Bradley) are the keys to the Husker title hopes.

Nebraska will be without the services of a seventh man this week with Tom Snyder sidelined with an ankle injury.

The Huskers produced a surprise fourth place finish last year after placing last the two previous years. Team members believe the Huskers could win this year.

"I think we will be right in there," said Lang, the top Husker runner in recent weeks. Lang was injured last year and didn't perform as well as he would have liked, he said. This year he plans to stick with the leaders, hoping to be in good position to overtake them at the finish.

Assistant coach Dean Brittenham said that the Huskers can't expect any help from other teams in catching the Jayhawks. "If we want to win this, we're going to have to do it ourselves."

Colorado, Iowa State, Oklahoma State, and Oklahoma all have hopes of cracking the first division.

Rick Trujillo is the key to Colorado's hopes. He finished second in last year's meet and took first in the Kansas State Federation meet last week.

Iowa State will be riding on the success of Dennis McGuire. He is undefeated in duals this fall and finished fourth in the conference meet last year.

If the Huskers could capture the title, it would be the second Nebraska crosscountry championship since the meet was started in 1928. The only other title came in 1940.

Kansas has dominated the meet, winning it 18 times. This includes 13 straight from 1947 to 1969.

Kansas to fail again?

Kansas football coach Pepper Rodgers, whose team has won only one game this season, does not grope for words in describing the situation.

"This is somewhat of a different experience for me," says Rodgers, whose club earned an Orange Bowl berth last year after dropping only one Big Eight Conference game. "But it's good to have this feeling because I know I don't want to ever have it again."

Nebraska's freshman football team carries a 1-1 record into a 2:30 p.m. home engagement with Iowa State's yearlings at Memorial Stadium Friday.

KU gets a chance to win its first league test Saturday in Lawrence against Colorado. If the Jayhawks fail this assignment, they may not win a conference game. After Colorado, they must face Oklahoma and Missouri.

This corner felt much like Rodgers two weeks ago after picking only one of four Big 8 games correctly, but it rebounded with a perfect slate last week.

The Husker frosh, who bombed Missouri, 42-19 in their opener, were tripped by nationally-ranked McCook Junior College, 21-13 two weeks ago.

The Cyclone yearlings dropped a decision to a nationally-ranked Iowa Jr. College in their only appearance of the year.

conference loss. Bobby Anderson may even get to carry the ball once in a while.

Thornton said they plan no major lineup changes. They said the team again will play platoon football in which players will perform both offensively and defensively.

Plattsmouth native Max Linder will direct the Husker attack at quarterback. Johnny Rodgers and Bill Olds will man the halfback slots, and George Eiben is slated to start at fullback.

Rodgers paces the frosh in five individual statistical categories, including rushing, receiving and scoring. He also leads the club in punt and kickoff returns.

Frosh cagers small, but talented

The Nebraska freshman basketball team isn't exactly a collection of giants, but new coach Rex Hughes thinks his team has a chance to upset the larger and more experienced varsity in their annual contest on Nov. 21.

"You always think you have a chance to win," Hughes said. "To beat the varsity we would have to play good defense, and we couldn't let them dominate us on the boards."

Hughes comes to Nebraska from Long Beach City College, where he posted a 25-3 record last year in his first year as a college coach. He spent four years coaching at Redondo High School in California before the Long Beach post.

"We have a real quick team with good shooters,"

Hughes said. "We didn't recruit for size this year; we concentrated on getting some good guards and forwards."

Hughes plans to use his assets to best advantage. "We plan to press all the time all over the floor," he said. "Everyone seems to have a good defensive background."

The frosh should be well fortified at guard, according to Hughes. The top candidates have been Randy Watts and Tom Gregory.

senior year at Fullerton, Cal. Bob Matthews and Jerome Riggins have also been impressive in early workouts, Hughes said.

Ambrose Ratcliffe is the largest member of the team at 6-6, 217. Tony Riehl, Cal Christine and Dave Drevo also have good size.

"Practices have been up and down so far," Hughes said, "but on the whole they have gone very well."

"Because of our size deficiency, we will have to outthrust and outsmart our opponents," Hughes said. "With time and a lot of good work we should have a good team."
