New theater dimensions provided by 'Viet Rock'

by Dave Landis Entertainment Editor

Theater at the University of Nebraska takes on new dimensions with the Speech Department's production of "Viet Rock" by Megan Ter-

First, the play is avant-garde in conception and production.

Second, all performances are outside the Temple Building, in the rest of the University community.

The play espouses no dogma or plot. The author suggested a scenario to actors and then transcribed their improvisations. Juxtaposing and editing the material, Terry produced the 1966 topical play.

"The impact is just as great now and may well be in thirty years," stated Bernie Clark, one of the four directors of the show. Chris Stasheff, Linda Varvel and Dana Mills complete the directorial corps. This braintrust style of directing is new in itself.

A hard rock band, a slide show and destruction of the a u dience-actor relationship contribute to the production. It is hardly traditional theater.

Performances are being held at the Hungry Id. 640 N. 16th. on Jan. 9th and 10th at 8 p.m. On Jan. 11th the play will move to the Centennial Room in the Nebraska Union. The time is the same. Admission for all performances is $1.

The story is a life cycle of a new recruit. There are 14 actors and over one hundred characterizations.

"The result of the continuous role-changing is strong personal involvement with the person rather than the actor's role," according to Miss Varvel.

There are no props and the actor's often sit in the audience and converse directly with them.

"This isn't musical comedy, but we occasionally sing on key," mused director Clark. Three Centennial College students provide hard rock, blues and even a waltz to augment the action.

The play combines black humor, anti-war sentiment, hard rock music and an avantgarde script. What else do you need to get hip?

Play tryouts January 6-8

Tryouts for A Midsummer's Night Dream will be held Jan. 6 through 8 at 1 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. and also at 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. on Jan. 8.

"We need all types," commented Director Harvey Miller. "Students with musical and dancing abilities as well as actors are invited to attend." he added.

Miller stated that he looked for the ability to respond to director's suggestions rather than polished performance at the tryouts.
