

Fairy lovers are just family-type fun

A fairy tale about pairs of lovers who get fouled up because some well-meaning fairies put love dust in the wrong eyes opens Wednesday at Howell Theater.

Shakespeare's comedy, "A Midsummer Night's Dream," should be a sellout, according to Mrs. Judy Buckles, theater business manager. The play will run March 11-14 and March 18-21.

It's designed to be just family-type fun with no moral dilemmas to worry about, Mrs. Buckles said.

The main parts will be played by Roni Meyer, William Wallace, Jan Van Sickle, Linda Varvel, Rick Marsh, Laura Ursdevenicz and Chris Stasheff.

Directing the production which has been rehearsing over a month, is Harvey M. Miller, assistant professor of speech and drama. Jerry Lewis, assistant professor, constructed the set and designed the lighting, which will employ color and color patterns to create most of the effects including change of scene.

The set changes minutely, and the scene changes from forest to court are achieved mostly through lighting techniques, according to Rich Schroeder, technical assistant.

Royal Eckert, speech and drama instructor, designed the 42 costumes used in the play. The colorful, flowing gowns and blousey jackets took five weeks to make with two part-time students meaning the sewing machines along with other volunteers. The drama department's stage craft class built the props.

If the stage had a curtain, it would go up at 8 p.m. on performance nights and at 2 p.m. for the matinee March 14. Prices are $1.75 for students, $2 for adults and $1.25 for groups for evening performances. Matinee prices are students, $1.25, adults, $1.50 and groups $1.

Hruska in Senate race; applauds GOP youth

U.S. Sen. Roman L. Hruska filed for re-election to the Senate Friday and said that the Republican party has given its younger members a "full partnership" in the development of party policies.

Despite all the attention lavished on a few, most young people have demonstrated that they are mature and responsible, the 65-year-old Republican said.

Hruska contrasted this to trends in the Democratic party which he said are showing that young voters are abandoning the Democrats because of their inability to lead.

The Democratic party is also wrought with "hopeless dissension," Hruska charged. It is bankrupt, he added, from the standpoint of effectively representing the ideals of the young people of the 1970s.

Hruska, a Senator since 1955, will probably face no opposition in the Republican primary.

University of Nebraska economics professor Wallace C. Peterson intends to file for the Democratic nomination for U.S. Senate.

Moratorium announces goals

The use of civil disobedience as a possible tactic for furthering the anti-war effort at the University was discussed at the organizational meeting of the "new Moratorium" Thursday night.

Members of the group defined civil disobedience as non-destructive civil action but decided the implications of using this type of action in Lincoln needs further study.

The new organization, which has not yet been officially named, will not be anti-Moratorium but will work in conjunction with it, according to Jack Stout, a member of Rural Nebraskans for Peace. The organization will be decentralized in structure with no leader.

The ultimate goal is to set up a central office to coordinate and facilitate the activities of smaller interest groups, he explained. The interest groups will consist of six to eight people concentrating on one specific area of concern.

"People who want to help will be able to contact the central office to find out what needs to be done and will be put in contact with people concerned with the same interest," Stout said.

The group will meet again at 8 p.m. Thursday at UMHE.
