

Protestors

Threaten to close draft board

A group of University students plans to meet Monday, April 6 to complete plans for an April 9 draft protest in the Lincoln.

About 20 students, meeting Monday night at the United Ministries in Higher Education (UMHE), vowed to "close the Lincoln draft boards down for a day."

According to Mike Richardson, one of the organizers, the group plans no illegal tactics during the April 9 protest.

"We just want to make it impossible for them to operate for one day," he said after the Monday night meeting. "We don't want to break the law or get arrested."

As one tactic, the students plan to ask to inspect the selective service files of various young men registered with either draft board 57 or 58. Both of those boards are in the same office on the ninth floor of the Terminal Building at 10th and "O" Streets.

A man's files can, with written authorization, be inspected by anyone. Selective service officials must supervise the inspection, however.

In an attempt to keep selective service officials even busier, the students plan to telephone the draft boards with various questions.

"We're going to carry signs telling about our protest," Richardson said. "We know these tactics are ridiculous, but we just want to show how ridiculous the selective service system really is."

Wally groups forming

Students on every college campus in Nebraska are uniting to support Wallace C. Peterson for U.S. Senate.

The new organization, Nebraska Students for Peterson, will operate on a statewide basis, according to Sid Logemann, student.

"The purposes of the organization will be to actively involve students in campaigning and to provide information for student thought," Logemann said.

Logemann said that since the main activity will be in Lincoln, University of Nebraska students will serve as an advisory board to the organization.

These students are: Bill Chaloupka, Diane Theisen, Randy Reeves, Lynn Gottschalk, Christy Schwartzkopf, Linda Alexander, Joe Orduna, Steve Tiwald and Dave Buntain.

Peterson's campaign manager, Gene Pokorny, will be in charge of coordinating the activities of Nebraska Students for Peterson.

Students interested in joining the Nebraska Students for Peterson should contact Steve Fowler at Centennial College or Diane Theisen at the ASUN office.

Regent action

The new dean is an authority on anti-cancer drugs and author of more than 100 technical articles in chemistry journals. He has received a number of grants and awards for his research work.

The Regents approved a study of the Omaha campus proposed by Chancellor Durward B. Varner. It calls for establishment of a commission from all portions of the state to "recommend a program which will make it possible for UNO to make its maximum contribution to the people it serves."

He said the commission would consist of around 30 Omaha citizens and 15 from out of state as well as UNO faculty and students. It will work with five or six national consultants in the study.

"It has occurred to me that we may very well have a unique opportunity to develop a program in urban education that could serve as a national model," Varner said.

In other action the Board accepted a gift of $80,000 from an anonymous donor to purchase a pipe organ for the Kimball Recital Hall. The organ, built specially for the hall, should be ready for operation within eight or nine months.

The Board voted to take bids for razing of the old child development lab on the East Campus. The 40-year-old frame building has been vacant since the completion of the new Ruth Staples Child Development Laboratory.

An agreement was approved by the Board allowing a maximum of eight South Dakota residents to enter the University Dental College each year as Nebraska residents. South Dakota will pay the balance of these student's tuition.

Lincoln Campus President Joseph Soshnik assured Regents that qualified Nebraska students would not be displaced by the South Dakota students.

Concerning the University at Omaha, the Regents approved the establishment of a Bachelor of Science degree in physical therapy. Funding for the program is to come from funds allocated by the last Unicameral.

UNO campus President Kirk Naylor said ten students will be admitted to the program next fall.

Gabelhouse wins wildlife award

Don Gabelhouse Jr., president of the University of Nebraska Wildlife Club, was presented the 1970 Outstanding Wildlife Conservationist Student award by his fellow club members.

Robert Dahlgren, wildlife biologist from Brookings, S.D., spoke to the club Friday.
