

Save the world on Earth Day

Films, speakers and panel discussions are planned for Earth Day next Wednesday in an attempt to inform University students of the pollution, overpopulation and environmental problems.

One of the highlights of Earth Day will include a discussion on ecology involving Gov. Norbert T. Tiemann, Mayors Eugene Leahy of Omaha and Sam Schwartzkopf of Lincoln and State Sen. Maurice Kremer of Aurora.

The panel discussion will be broadcast on the Nebraska Educational Educational Television Network, according to Robert Frangenberg, Nebraska representative on the Student Council on Population and Environment (SCOPE).

telephones on college campuses throughout the state to enable viewers to question the panel.

Activities will begin with a 5:15 a.m. sunrise service on East Campus and conclude with a 10:30 p.m. candlelight march from the Nebraska Union to the Capitol.

Frangenberg said that film on resources and pollution will be shown throughout the day at the University.

Some of the films to be shown in the Nebraska Union on April 22 include: "Cities in Crisis: What's Happening", "Down Friday Street," "The Rivers Must Live" and "The Myths and Parallels."

All the films are provided by the Citizens for Environmental Improvement.

There are also about 50 speakers scheduled to discuss various aspects of the problems of pollution, according to Frangenberg.

Speakers include Federal government spokesmen, state government spokesmen and University professors.

In addition to the films, a campus cleanup is also planned, he said.

State high schools are also encouraged to turn local attention to environmental problems, according to Frangenberg.

The Citizens for Environmental Improvement, an anti-pollution group based at the University, plans to coordinate activities with SCOPE.

They have constructed a fenced pen on the North side of the Union to collect aluminum cans.

The cans will be processed and sold, and the money will be used to further the objectives of the organization, according to a spokesman.

Our Far East policy brings people together.

The Jade East manifesto. Its aim: to bring men and women all over the world closer together.

Our policy would allow for all sorts of skirmishes, territorial gains and conquests. And still keep the peace.

Just put some Jade East on your face and neck. And anywhere else. If you've got a girlfriend, take her out as planned. If you're seeing a few girls, do whatever it is you're doing.

Now comes the best part. Since all girls are different, all reactions will be different. Some will be aggressive. Others, submissive. But whether our policy leads to final agreement or not, one thing's for sure.

The negotiations alone will be worth the price.
