Editor,

An open letter to all SOB's (Students Opposed to Batchelder) on campus: We wish to congratulate you on a talent many pressure group members can only hope to achieve: fierce pride in your demand for special legislation designed to help you at the expense of others. Most unions and corporations are sly about such legislative favors; you not only demand a free education but also ask to take control of the University from the people who pay for it and from their elected representatives, the Regents.

However, if you have only been practicing around other University students, we suggest you attempt not to turn red in the following situations:

(1) Tell one of you high school classmates who found a job instead of going to college that you have the right to a new library and home ec building even though his wages are lowered by state income taxes and all his purchases cost more due to state sales tax.

(2) Tell the same story to a Nebraska couple who save to send their own children to private school, but must also pay for most of your education.

(3) Tell a Nebraska businessman or industrialist that he must pay for your degree so that you can find a job in another state.

Of course living in an educated society is beneficial and for that reason individuals and organizations have supported universities for generations. However, you have no right to force such support. Clifton Batchelder is not opposed to education; he was a teacher for six years. He is only trying to do what Ronald Reagan did in California; put the cost on the shoulders of those who benefit most. And when we are paying for our education, we will have the right to determine its nature.
