Downeast Smile-In'—Yankee humour series on ETV

Perkins' privy, Ed Grant's flying stove, or the unusual funeral of Aunt Mehitable? These and other tall tales of Maine are part of a series of three programs in color, "A Downeast Smile-In," with storyteller Marshall Dodge. The first of the series will be seen Sunday, August 16 at 7:30 p.m. on the Nebraska Educational Television Network. Filmed in rugged Maine, "A downeast Smile-In" brings to public television the unique character and humor of the downeast Yankee, humor which has made Marshall Dodge famous with collectors of interesting records through his albums of "Bert and I" stories. Maine's rocky coast is used as a backdrop for stories of sailing ships, lobstermen, and the funeral of poor Aunt Mehitable, who turned out to be an admiral in full dress uniform. It's humor with a poke, not a punch, when NETN viewers one position during their high duced by the Maine ETV Network under a grant from the Corporation for Public Broadcasting.

Outstanding Nebraska high school basketball players from across the state will be seen Saturday, August 22 at 8 p.m. when the Nebraska Educational Television Network presents coverage of the Second Annual Nebraska High School All-Star Basketball Game.

The game, which is sponsored by the Nebraska Coaches Association, takes place at Pershing Auditorium in Lincoln on Friday, August 21. It features a North and South squad comprised of top high school basketball players. Over 4,000 spectators attended the event last year and a record crowd is expected this Versatility may be the key for the South squad in that half of the members of the 12-man squad performed at more than watch this new series. "A school careers, Commenting on Kropp of Aurora and assistant coach Bill Ramsay of Cozad said they are looking for a pretty mobile club."

Height, and plenty of it, marks the North squad selected this year by the Nebraska Coaches Association for its second All-Star Game. The North averages 6-3; an inch per man taller than last year when the North dropped a 60-45 contest. North coach Gene Kruger of Elkhorn says "the size of the squac is impressive." He is assisted by Bob Morris of Alliance.

Chet Atkins is nationally known as "Mr. Guitar," and he takes the nickname seriously. On Sunday night, August 16 at 9 p.m. Atkins joins Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops on "Evening at Pops" in a night of the best guitar music in or outside of Nashville.

Although Atkins is considered a country-western artist, he is comfortable with any kind of music. On the "Evening at Pops" colorcast, he is soloist in historian George LeRoy about the team, South head coach Bill a medley of American traditional songs and in the lively "Battle of New Orleans" and 'Sugarfoot Rag.'

> Again with the Pops, Atkins performs Cobb's "Alabama Jubilee," and the perennially whistled, "Colonel Bogey March." On his own, whistled, Nashville's Mr. Guitar will play a selection of romantic themes, including "Autumn Leaves," "Lara's Theme" (from the film "Dr. Zhivago") and the brisk theme from "Zorba the Greek."

Also on the program as performed by Arthur Fiedler and the Pops, are Sousa's sprightly "Washington Post sprightly March," and Copland's "An Outdoor Overture," Anderson's "Irish Suite," and a Pops arrangement of last year's superhit "Those Were The

Ag College grads stay in Nebraska

Almost 60 per cent of the students who graduated with a graduates classified themselves Bachelor's Degree from the University of Nebraska College of Agriculture in 1964 still reside in the state, and 80 per cent of those who have left Nebraska would return if comparable jobs were available, a recent survey reveals.

Assistant Director of Residence Instruction Stanley Matzke, Jr., of the NU College of Agriculture, announced that the survey - taken annually of the Ag College class which graduated five years previously - revealed 23 of 106 replying graduates (22 per cent) farming in 1969, with 42 (40 per cent) employed in business and industry, and 14 (13 per cent) working for governmental agencies. Others were distributed in educational work, military service and graduate Cambridge, England -Brazil, South America - San Francisco, California. These are several of the cities, near and far, that are serving as onthe-job classrooms for University of Nebraska College of Home Economics food and nutrition majors.

Seven recent food and nutrition graduates are fulfilling a one year internship requirement before they are recognized as dietitians by the American Dietetic Association (ADA). Three women taking internship appointments at including the universities, University of Nebraska, are including graduate work in their internship program. The NU program leads to a master's degree as well as ADA certification.

The Externship Program gives dietetic undergraduates a salary, college credit and relevant work experience before graduation. The 21 women enrolled in this program are working at hospitals and universities throughout the country and overseas. Two women are taking their externship with the People To People Program in Europe.

Almost 75 per cent of the 1964 as having an agricultural or agrelated occupation in 1969, and about 50 per cent of the graduates noted that they had vocational agriculture in high school, Matzke said. "Those actually engaged in production agriculture operated an average of 1,778 acres in 1969 a sizable operation in most areas of the state."

Students graduating in 1964 realized incomes in 1969 ranging from $1,300 (military service) to $35,000, with an average for those working full time of $10,623, Matzke pointed

Also of significance was the finding that more than three of every 10 students who graduated in 1964 have attained an M.S. or Ph.D. Degree, or are currently working towards that goal. Thirty-five of the 106 students (33 per cent) furthered their education at the University of Nebraska or at one of 18 other graduate schools across the nation.

"The College of Agriculture is constantly being made aware of the needsreflected through our graduates so that the College's education programs can be adjusted accordingly. We make the findings and criticisms on the annual surveys available to our faculty so that changes can be implemented as needed," Matzke
