. . . pops through tight-playing Missouri linebackers

. . . gets caught from behind by Tigers' Stuckey

. . . and is brought down by three Tigers on the Missouri 15 after a 41-yard run gain which set up the go-ahead touchdown in the fourth quarter.

Orduna sets up TD

When asked who made Orduna's 41-yard run which set up Nebraska's tie-breaking score, Husker quarterback Van Brownson replied: "Joe made the Orduna run. He found a little opening then just managed to stay on his feet."

The run was the biggest play from scrimmage for the Huskers throughout the game. But Nebraska coach Bob

Devaney was expecting such a play anytime in the second half.

"Missouri had so many men close to the line of scrimmage in the second half, that we thought we could pop somebody through there almost anytime."

Brownson went on to score the tie-breaking TD on a one-yard dive over right guard Donnie McGhee.

Big Red.

Big Red won't smoke. No matter how much he looks like a fat cigar. His thing is to write. He's a pen. And inside that funky red case, he's all heart. With lots of ink. And a big soft tip that writes like he means what he says. On walls, or foreheads, or balloons, or even paper. When he does run dry, you refill him with a cartridge. Big Red from Parker, yet. Take all of him for $5. Give him and cause a furor. Just don't put him down near an ashtray.
