Time out for social issues

Speakers from across the country and award-winning films from the Fifth National Student Film Festival highlight the ASUN Time Out program Friday and Saturday.

The films are to be shown Friday at 7 and 9 p.m. and Saturday at 3 p.m. All showings are in the Sheldon Art Gallery Auditorium and cost is 50 cents.

"The Education Revolution" is the topic of a speech by Larry Magid, director of the Center for Educational Reform in Washington D.C. Magid, who has also served as coordinator of the Center for Participant Education (Berkeley's student-run experimental college), is scheduled to speak in the Nebraska Union Ballroom Friday at 10:30 a.m.

A panel discussion on "Women — A Local Emphasis" is scheduled for 11:30 a.m. in the Union Small Auditorium. Florynce Kennedy, black feminist and New York civil rights attorney, is moderator.

Michael Lierhen, director of the National Student Association Legal Rights program, will speak on "Students and the Law" in the Union Ballroom at 1:30 p.m. Friday.

Florynce Kennedy will speak on "Institutional Oppression of Women" in the Union at 3:30 p.m. Friday.

A discussion of "Ecology as a Local Issue" is scheduled for 1:30 p.m. in the Union Ballroom Saturday.

At 3:30 p.m. Saturday there will be a panel discussion of people involved with the poverty problem in Lincoln and Nebraska. The discussion will be in the Union Ballroom.

Devaney: no Miami offer

Nebraska head football coach Bob Devaney Thursday denied a published report in an Omaha newspaper that the University of Miami was seeking him as a coach.

"There's nothing to it what-so-ever," Devaney said Thursday night. "I don't know where they're getting their information, but I haven't been contacted by the University of Miami and I won't be. I'm not even interested. This is strictly a fantasy as far as I'm concerned."

According to former Lincoln sportswriter Norris Anderson, who writes the Miami Confidential column in Football News, Miami is interested in hiring Devaney at about $100,000 a year.

YAF plans legal action against mandatory fees

Legal action against the policy of mandatory student fees at the University is being planned by the NU chapter of the Young Americans for Freedom (YAF).

Terry Cannon, YAF president said Thursday his chapter plans to seek an injunction to put a freeze on all student fees at the University. He said any YAF legal action would probably not come until after the November elections.

"We have a good chance to win the suit, since there are precedent cases," remarked Cannon.

The planned YAF legal action is intended to establish "voluntary fees and to end the abuse of student fees for political purposes by a small minority of radicals," according to a YAF statement. "The project is being carried out in Lincoln as part of a national offensive by YAF."

Cannon said he got the idea for the suit from the national YAF office.

The proposed YAF action could greatly affect such campus organizations as the Nebraska Union, student government, and The Nebraskan. Through fees, students annually pay $18 to the Union, $2.50 to The Nebraskan and $.80 to ASUN.

"We feel students fees are extravagant and are not used for the best purposes of students," noted Cannon. "In light of recent proposed tuition hikes at the University the elimination of student fees could help many students stay in school by reducing their costs."

YAF would like to see voluntary student fees be established according to Cannon. Under this plan students would pay just for the services they want.

A recent court decision in New York concerning mandatory student fees may set a precedent for all state universities.

The independence of the student government at the New York State University at Albany was declared illegal, and its operation effectively shut down in a Sept. 17 by New York Supreme Court decision.

The decision was the outcome of a suit brought by two Albany State students over the student government's expenditures for "political" matters such as transportation to Washington for the Vietnam Moratorium, creation of a free school, and a black cultural weekend.

The decision enjoined the University from permitting the student government from making further expenditures until the University's Board of Trustees had reviewed and approved the budget.

The New York decision was widely regarded as a landmark. The decision makes it possible for any student in any state supported school to move for a restraining order against his own student government if the government funds itself through mandatory student fees.

Thone—Nixon Republican

A self-proclaimed "Nixon Republican" promised to "see that President Nixon's programs get a fair hearing in the House of Representatives" if he is elected to Congress in November.

Charles Thone is the Republican candidate for Nebraska's first congressional district. Thone spoke to about 35 people at a Young Republicans meeting in the Nebraska Union Thursday night.

He gave assurance that being a staunch Nixon supporter would not make him "a rubber-stamp congressman" as far as the first district was concerned. "But let's face it," said Thone. "Republicans just are not going to control the House next term." Thone believes this makes it imperative that Republican congressmen try to force the House to give maximum consideration to the President's proposals.

In Thone's opinion world peace is the priority issue of the time. He supports the President on Vietnam. "He inherited a lousy, rotten war," said Thone. "He's doing the only sensible, practical thing he can do to get us out of it."

Domestically, "a congressman from this state has to be very sympathetic to agriculture. It is the industry in Nebraska," according to Thone.

On broader national issues,

Thone supports Nixon doctrine on the issues of drug abuse, ecology and the volunteer army.

On the super-sonic transport: "I have kind of a pioneer spirit. As long as it's not too god-awful expensive I'm for it."

On direct election of the President: "I'm definitely against it. (The electoral college system) goes to the very heart of the federal system in America." Thone added that he was for smaller-scale electoral reform.

Vice president Agnew is nothing new to Thone. "He's just doing what left-wingers have been doing for years," he said. "Except he takes the Republican side on issues. McGovern and those people have been splitting the country just as much as he has."

Thone said he was "extremely liberal" in his attitudes
