

OSU point total is no joking matter

by JIM JOHNSTON
Associate Sports Editor

Bob Devaney doesn't have a special post-game ritual.

He doesn't light up a victory cigar like John McKay from Southern California. The Nebraska coach doesn't even munch on ham sandwiches like Pepper Rodgers from Kansas.

Devaney simply enters the Nebraska exercise room, cracks a joke with reporters and begins discussing the game. But following the Cornhuskers' 65-31 win over Oklahoma State Saturday, Devaney forgot about telling jokes.

A Bob Devaney-coached team giving up 31 points was nothing to joke about.

"I've been defense oriented as long as I've been in coaching," explained Devaney. "And I take a very dim view of anybody scoring 31 points on us."

Devaney shook his head in disgust as he looked over the statistics sheet on his clipboard. Oklahoma State had rattled off 393 total yards.

He realized that the majority of this yardage was accumulated against the number two and three Nebraska defensive units, but even this provided little consolation for the Husker boss.

"I was disappointed in the play of our alternate defensive units," said Devaney. "We expect our defensive unit to play as one. It shouldn't be just the top 11 men."

But Devaney could find little to fault in the Black Shirts, the Huskers number one defensive squad.

The Cowboys could manage only 17 yards passing and 26 on the ground during the first half against the Black Shirts. But it was a complete reversal against the reserve units in the second half.

"It shouldn't have been any psychological thing," explained Devaney in reference to the Huskers 41-13 halftime bulge, "not with new guys in there. They should have been raring to go to show that they should be playing instead of reaffirming the fact that they should be over there on the bench with the coaches."

The Husker coach did admit, however, that he even used some of his scout squad on defense. "The only defensive scrimmage they get is Monday," he said. "But that still doesn't excuse their performance."

"I hope that the fellas in there learned a lot, because if they didn't they sure wasted a lot of people's time."

Devaney realized that OSU stayed with its number one offense the entire game. "I'm not blaming them for that. But when a number two or three defense is playing against the number one offense, there's bound to be some scoring."

And the 67,822 Band Day fans that packed Memorial Stadium obviously saw some scoring. It was a display of Nebraska's offense at its best.

The Husker offense, quarterbacked for the second week in a row by Van Brownson, piled up 270 yards on the ground and 275 through the air.

But Devaney knows that it will have to be a defensive show against Colorado this week in Boulder. Not many teams can give up 31 points against the Buffs and come home winners.

"Where has all the defense gone? . . . long time pass-

Co-op's Dvorak third intramural player of week

Quarterback-halfback Dale Dvorak of Cornhusker Co-op has been named the Intramural Player of the Week.

Dvorak assisted in 10 of the touchdowns his squad scored against Delta Sigma Phi and Sigma Alpha Mu.

The Co-op team defeated Delta Sigma Phi 25-20 after being behind 20-0 at one point. Dvorak threw four touchdown passes in the game.

Against Sigma Alpha Mu Dvorak led the Cornhusker squad to a 51-6 victory. His longest pass was a 45-yard bomb to Jim Mallatt.

"The offensive line gave me a lot of time," Dvorak said, "and the pass receivers made some fine catches."

Dvorak is a senior majoring in business administration. He plans to go to graduate school following graduation.

Series starts with Everglades film

the State Museum, 106 Morrill Hall; and the Service Desks at Miller & Paine stores.
