

Intramural board suspends Phi 'Gams

members, Niemann, the referee who was assaulted in the Oct. 5 game, to vote on the suspension question.

The Council's constitution reads: "In the event a regular member (of the Council) is an interested party to a protest . . . an alternate will be appointed to take his place at the meetings."

Niemann said he attended but did not vote at the first Council meeting. He said he did vote at the second and third meetings, and no alternate was ever chosen to attend any of the meetings for him.

When asked if his voting violated the provision of the Council Constitution, Niemann replied: "That's a good question."

Freed said he will appeal the case to the Office of Student Affairs by early next week. However a spokesman for that office, Dean of Student Development Russell H. Brown, said an intramural case conflict had never been appealed to him before. He said he will probably appoint a committee of students to investigate and make recommendations in the case. Currently the University is without a Dean of Student Affairs.

Intramural Director Ray Chatfield commented: "If we let things like this incident slide past, the whole intramural program will suffer. We have to put a stop to this abuse of referees."

The year's suspension is not too severe, Chatfield asserted.

"You play not as an individual but as a team. The team managers have the responsibility to control all their players."

Intramural rules have been altered since the two PGD incidents.

Concerning disciplinary action, an organization will be given one year's probation "for striking an official or other unsportsmanlike conduct (fighting, abuse of an official, threatening an official, etc.)." If another offense occurs during the probation, the organization will be suspended for one year.

The intramural department is also changing its system of assigning referees to football and basketball games, according to Chatfield.

In the past a team was responsible for securing a referee outside its own organization to officiate a game. This practice often led to conflict since teams would retain the same referee for an entire season.

In the future, Chatfield said, the intramural department will assign referees at random to basketball and football games.

Alternatives for CO's . . .

in volunteer programs to be equivalent and acceptable because they feel that this would not be fair to other men in the programs who volunteer to serve and then get drafted when they get out. The fear is that an awareness of this situation will create tensions between the CO and non-CO volunteers.

Draft officials are definitely concerned about the possibility that there may be insufficient jobs to meet the flood of CO registrants resulting from this Summer's Supreme Court ruling which extended recognition for CO status to non-religious moral objectors. The rate of new CO classifications doubled in the first month following the court decision and doubled again after Tarr issued his memo clarifying the standards for CO registration.

But the increase is almost negligible when compared with the potential onslaught of COs which could result from a Supreme Court ruling which upholds the right of COs opposed to a specific war on moral grounds to perform alternative services.

When one asks the question about the possibility — the Court will rule on at least three cases this term which confront this issue — the response one gets indicates that many people in national headquarters feel that this would be a death blow to the system.

Tarr admitted, "We haven't figured out what we would do if the Supreme Court upholds selective Conscientious Objection. We really haven't given serious consideration to preparing for it . . . we would probably be caught completely by surprise."

One college does more than broaden horizons. It sails to them, and beyond.

Now there's a way for you to know the world around you first-hand. A way to see the things you've read about, and study as you go. The way is a college that uses the Parthenon as a classroom for a lecture on Greece, and illustrates Hong Kong's floating societies with a ride on a harbor sampan.

Chapman College's World Campus Afloat enrolls two groups of 500 students every year and opens up the world for them. Your campus is the s. s. Ryndam, equipped with modern educational facilities and a fine faculty. You have a complete study curriculum as you go. And earn a fully-accredited semester while at sea.

Chapman College is now accepting enrollments for Spring and Fall '71 semesters. Spring semesters circle the world from Los Angeles, stopping in Asia and Africa and ending in New York. Fall semesters depart New York for port stops in Europe, Africa and Latin America, ending in Los Angeles.

The world is there. The way to show it to inquiring minds is there. And financial aid programs are there, too. Send for our catalog with the coupon below. s. s. Ryndam is of Netherlands registry.
