

Friday 20-year-olds can register to vote

By the end of the week 20-year olds who satisfy Nebraska residency requirements will be able to register to vote.

Nebraska voters approved in the November elections a constitutional amendment lowering the minimum voting age from 21 to 20. The amendment will become effective upon its official proclamation — scheduled Friday — by Gov. Norbert Tiemann.

The exact number of 20-year olds made eligible to vote is uncertain. But it is estimated that the number may approach 35,000.

If the U.S. Supreme Court upholds a recent Congressional act, setting 18 as the minimum voting age, the 20-year old vote in Nebraska would be invalidated. Then persons in all states would be able to vote upon reaching their eighteenth birthday.

Ag College studies control of ecological problems

Controlling harmful insects and water pollution from feedlot run-off are ecological problems being studied by the College of Agriculture.

A joint research project by the College and the State and Federal Agriculture departments is studying the control of corn root-worm without harming other forms of life. Corn rootworm destroys hundreds of acres of corn every year.

A short life insecticide is being sprayed over a two mile test area. The insecticide is active for seven days and is not harmful to other life forms, he said.

"This short life insecticide is less effective than the previous insecticides we've used," McGill said. "But with wide application, we should be able to stop the rootworm without polluting the environment.

Nebraska farmers are also becoming aware of pollution and are more sensitive to the proper use of herbicides and insecticides. Because of this increased awareness, they are maintaining a high quality in their products and high concern for their environment, McGill added.

Water pollution by feedlot run-off is another area being studied by the College. One solution for the treatment of this waste is the channeling of waste material into purifying lagoons like a city would use.

"Nebraska is a healthy place to live relative to other places in the nation," said McGill. "We still have great concern over the ecology and the source of its pollution."

High number?

Send your draft board a letter

Washington (CPS) The national headquarters of the Selective Service System has issued a memorandum clarifying the situation of registrants with high lottery numbers.

The memorandum instructs all local draft boards to place any registrant with a lottery number higher than the highest number called by the board during 1970 into a second priority 1-A group — if that registrant is 1-A or has requested 1-A status in a letter dated before Dec. 31.

Newly established this fall, the second priority group is a pool of 1-A registrants who are considered by the Selective Service to have completed their year of exposure to the draft.

In effect then, if a registrant is 1-A on the last day of the year, he will be considered to have been through his full year of exposure.

In other words, these changes make it possible for a deferred man to drop by his local draft board around Christmas time, find out whether the highest number which his board reached during the year is lower than his, and, if it is, mail a letter to his board requesting reclassification to 1-A.

For young Nebraska men, the highest number taken this year will probably be 190. But to be sure, men should check with their local boards before giving up deferrals.

Even if the letter is postmarked as late as Dec. 31 — it need not arrive at the draft board until the next month — the reclassified men will be placed in the second priority group and, for all practical purposes, be free of all draft worries Jan. 1.

If a deferred man with a draft lottery number that has already been called by the draft board were to request reclassification to 1-A status in the same way, he would be placed in an "extended priority group" and would be in the first group of registrants inducted during the first three months of the next year.

But those men in the second priority group are safe, unless a full scale war erupts or some other national emergency ensues.
