

Frazier retains title

Few, if any, left the Fairgrounds Coliseum disappointed Monday night. Disappointed, possibly in the final outcome, if Muhammed Ali fans, but not disappointed in the show.

It was billed THE FIGHT. The simplicity of the name made it dramatic. And it was dramatic.

A heavy-weight champion, stripped of his title outside the ring, failed in an effort to regain it his own way. A sell-out crowd at Madison Square Garden in New York City and possibly two million spectators viewing by closed-circuit television witnessed the event.

Included was approximately 2,500 persons at Nebraska's Fairgrounds Coliseum. The crowd began to gather at 7 p.m. The surroundings had an atmosphere of its own. Beer was being sold for 50 cents a cup. Cigars were being lit and there was the last minute friendly bets being wagered.

The black and white show started at 9:15 p.m. Recaps of former heavy-weight bouts were viewed. Then the main attraction, Ali revealed his prediction. It read "Flash" and predicted Joe Frazier's fall in the sixth round.

The fight began. Ali shook his head "No" as Frazier landed minor blows in the first round. But Ali danced only once. That was the fifth round. In the tenth Frazier had gained control.

But Ali fought back...until the fifteenth round. Frazier landed a crushing left to Ali that sent the former champion to the canvas. Ali could at best hang on for the final and unanimous decision.

Joe Frazier is heavy-weight champion of the world. He won THE FIGHT.

Missouri loses; Oklahoma wins

Kansas won its second straight game by overtime Monday night. Missouri lost its second straight outing. And the Nebraska Cornhuskers can gain a three-way tie for second place with a win over Kansas at Lawrence Saturday.

The Jayhawks defeated Missouri, 71-69, in overtime at Columbia. Oklahoma defeated Oklahoma State 80-74 at Stillwater to make it a two-way tie for the runner-up spot in the conference.

Both the Tigers and Sooners finished the Big Eight season at 9-5.

The Cornhuskers, who are 8-5, can make it a three-way tie with a win Saturday.
