

Kurosaki, Stohs open season

by WARREN OBR
Assistant Sports Editor

Veteran Gene Stohs and freshman Ryan Kurosaki are the scheduled starting pitchers as Nebraska opens its 1971 baseball season with a double-header at Houston University today.

The Huskers go into the eight-game series with two of last year's top three pitchers ailing as both Glen Gilmore and Paul Marek are suffering from arm injuries. Both made the trip to Houston, though, and both are slated to see some action.

"Both Marek and Gilmore looked better Saturday," said coach Tony Sharpe referring to the Husker's workout in Stillwater. "It looks like they're back, but I'd hate to say they were all the way back. We'll try to have them throw a couple of innings Monday and then try and have them ready for Thursday's double-header."

Pat Englert, first baseman, is scheduled to start Tuesday's single encounter.

Sharpe received some good news at one position and some bad news at another during Saturday's workout. Catcher Randy Spiels, who had been out with the flu, was back Saturday feeling better and he will start today. But shortstop Peter Bethell, who's been bothered by a sore arm, was still tender Saturday and is a questionable starter. If he cannot play, Tim Harris will take over at shortstop.

Veterans Steve Achelpohl at second base, Pat Englert at first base, and Joe Baker in right field are all scheduled to start today. Footballers Frank Vactor and John Rodgers will play center and left field respectively. Relief specialist Bruce Cramer, who finished with Nebraska's best record (5-1) last year, will see a lot of action in the series.

Sharpe, though, forsee some problems in that the Stillwater workout was the Husker's first outdoor play this season.

"There's no doubt that the workout helped us a great deal," said Sharpe. "We'll have to get used to looking up into the sky for the ball and having balls take bad bounces. It always takes a while to get adjusted outside."

"I anticipate a few early foul-ups, but after a couple of days outside, we should be in fairly good shape," he concluded.

The Huskers open home play on April 12 when South Dakota State visits for a doubleheader. Big-Eight play begins on April 16 with a double-header against Kansas State.

Weightlifters take heavy win

Nebraska weightlifters hoisted their way to victory in both the senior and junior divisions of the first annual Nebraska Weightlifting Tournament Saturday.

It was an easy win as Mike Mulvaney of Peru was the only person other than a Husker to win a division title. Mulvaney finished with a 665 total in the 242-pound senior division.

Doug Dumler, who starts at center for Nebraska had the top total of the day finishing with 735 in the 242-pound junior division. Dumler's total was 70 pounds more than his nearest competitor.

Competition was limited to state colleges and universities in Nebraska.
