

ASUN execs are eager beavers

Although they don't officially accept the reins of student government until Wednesday afternoon, the newly elected ASUN executives have already begun full-time work on the organization's plans for next year.

President-elect Steve Fowler and first vice president Michele Coyle have been in ASUN's office for several days since the election, running meetings and conferences that last the day and often push on past the Union's closing time.

Coyle explained that they want to start as soon as possible. She said the idea is to get things moving immediately so progress can be made before this semester ends and, even more importantly, so the Senate is ready to work this summer and next fall without having to take time to get organized.

"ASUN will be active this summer," Fowler agreed. All the executives and many senators will be in Lincoln during the summer, he added.

Two plead guilty to conspiracy charge

Two young persons have pleaded guilty to amended conspiracy charges in Lancaster County District Court on charges stemming from incidents at the Lincoln plant of Brunswick Corp. last month.

Appearing before District Court Judge William Hastings were Jason Rice, 19, and Katherine Allen, 20, both of Lincoln. Sentencing was deferred pending an investigation by the adult probation office. Bonds for both parties were continued.

Rice and Allen, along with Dale R. Birkhan, 24, who earlier pleaded guilty, entered pleas to the specific charges of conspiracy to damage the Newly elected. ASUN executives Fowler and Coyle are already meeting with students and planning for next fall.

Hernandez is in Washington D.C. this week working with a Department of Health, Education, and Welfare project.

Fowler's campaign stressed educational reform as its number one priority. Toward that end, either Coyle or Hernandez will devote the majority of their time to changes and improvements in education.

The area of student self-determination, which was already outlined in his platform, will receive an emphasis comparable to the concern with educational reform, Fowler said.

Coyle said this was partly the result of the great student interest in self-determination they found while visiting living units during the campaign. She found that University students were very concerned about their education and freedom to make decisions regardless of where they lived.

Fowler noted that the new Senate has already begun work on a liberalized co-ed visitation policy which has been written and will be presented soon.

Another job to be done as soon as possible is making new appointments to ASUN, Faculty Senate, and special committees. Coyle said committee members would be chosen by interview boards. The times and places will be advertised.

Coyle and Fowler interpret this year's relatively large election turnout as indicative of increased student interest and awareness of ASUN.

Whatever the reason for the vote, it was good to Fowler's party and presumably enhances his chances of implementing programs. Fowler's University Coalition won all three executive positions and 20 of the 35 Senatorial posts.
