Ag Campus horses around

University students are caught up in changing priorities this week as they substitute horses for cars, country-western music for hard rock and bareback bronc riding for motorcycling during Western Days on NU's East Campus through Saturday.

Included in the list of upcoming activities is the University of Nebraska Block and Bridle Club sponsored Quarter Horse Show set for Thursday and Friday, and an Appaloosa Horse Show on Saturday.

The Quarter Horse Show will consist of 27 classes of competition and ranks as one of the largest approved shows in Nebraska. The Appaloosa show features 32 classes.

Events scheduled for the State Fairgrounds Coliseum Thursday at 2 p.m. include English pleasure, junior and senior western pleasure, registered senior and junior cattle cutting. Friday's portion of the Quarter Horse Show, also beginning at 2 p.m., will feature events in pleasure, pole bending, barrel racing, calf roping and daily team roping.

The NU Rodeo Club will hold its National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association (NIRA) sanctioned event Friday and Saturday at the State Fairgrounds Coliseum. Contestants are expected from 20 colleges representing nine states.

Schools in the Great Plains Region of the NIRA will represent Nebraska, Kansas, North Dakota, South Dakota, Iowa, Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota. The Rodeo team, which has gone to the national finals for the past two years, is vying with these schools in a series of NIRA Rodeos this spring, including the two-day Lincoln event.

A returning member and co-captain of the NU team is John Sennett of Mason City. Although in his last year of eligibility for NIRA competition, Sennett currently ranks second as all-around cowboy of the Great Plains Region. He is also first in steer wrestling and fourth in ribbon roping in the region.

Sennett, Greg Phifer, co-captain with Sennett, and Randy Radant are members of the NU team that competed in the national finals last year and will be entered in this year's NU rodeo.

This rodeo season is one of rebuilding for the Nebraska team, according to Sennett. He said the several team members that have competed in national finals in previous years add stability to the team and he's also hopeful about two rookies on this year's team.

Sennett listed Tom Frazer of North Loup and Bill Graff of Ainsworth as first year team members who have given outstanding performances in NIRA competition so far.

Currently the NU team ranks fifth in the Great Plains Region. National College of Business is the leader, followed by Black Hills State College, South Dakota State University, and Iowa State University.

Two individual winners from last year's rodeo will be back to defend their titles this weekend. Tom Miller will return to defend his all-around title and Bob Christopherson of National College of Business will be trying for his second straight victory in calf roping.

Highlighting speakers for the week of western activities is Larry Maha, five-time winner of the Rodeo Cowboys Association "All-Around Cowboy of the Year." Maha will present a film of the National Rodeo finals at the Nebraska East Union at 10 a.m. Friday. He will conduct a rap session at 4 p.m. the same day in the East Union.

The Western Days program was kicked off Monday with the University Round-up, featuring western games like bucking barrel, greased pig chase and tug-of-war. Monday's activities continued with a Bar-B-Que for faculty, staff and students, followed by a free street dance with Norm Sullivan and His Country Rhythm Boys playing in front of the East Union.
