

Centennial seeks new upperclassmen

The Centennial Education Program is now receiving applications from students who would like to join the program as upperclassmen next fall.

There may be as many as 30 openings, according to Centennial Fellow Scott Morgan. Acceptance will be determined primarily by random selection, and applicants who have been accepted will be notified either in late May or sometime during the summer.

Application forms can be picked up in the Centennial College front office in Love Hall, 540 N. 16th St.

Why ever accept less than the best? Always choose Keepsake.

YOUR KIND OF STYLE

Keepsake
REGISTERED DIAMOND RINGS

Classic, contemporary or in-between... whatever your style, we have it in our Keepsake collection. Come see for yourself.

JUDD $300 WEDDING RING 150
CALYPSO $175 WEDDING RING 50

KAUFMAN'S
Credit Jewelers
1332 "O" St. HE2-5126

HRIL...

Continued from page 1.

Albert Hill, a black University student, gave the longest and most irate testimony against the Elks saying that their "liquor license... should be yanked out from under them."

Most of the HRIL witnesses, including Willey, noted and commended the charitable work of the Elks Lodge but deplored the race policy.

"We don't equate benevolence and booze," Willey stated. "The Elks should not require liquor to continue their charitable works."

READ NEBRASKAN WANT ADS!

Fight air pollution.

VOTE YES for BUS BONDS on May 4.

By WARREN OBR
Associate Sports Editor

Nebraska's first year in organized soccer has been a successful one. They've tied Colorado, last year's Big-8 and national soccer champion. They didn't lose to a Big-8 team in the fall. Yet this weekend when the Big-8 soccer tournament gets under way in Stillwater, Okla., Nebraska will probably be the only Big-8 school not represented.

The reason is that the soccer team has no money.

The soccer team has been incorporated into the recreation department of student activities and receives no financial support. And if they do go to Oklahoma this weekend, they will have to pay out of their own pockets.

"I've had enough people say they would pay for their food and the gas so that we could go, but I've made it a matter of principle," said head soccer coach Franz Blaha. "A lot of our foreign players, who live on very little money, couldn't have gone."

Blaha wrote two letters to student activities requesting money for the trip, but as of last Sunday had not received a response. The athletic department cannot help because the soccer team is not on their budget and thus not in their jurisdiction. Blaha was still trying to contact student activities late Tuesday evening.

"Part of the problem is that we're not supposed to have any money that does not go through student activities' accounting," explained Blaha.

"We charged a $2.50 club fee at the beginning of the year which would have paid for the gas, but the money has to be kept in a student activities voucher.

"Thus we have to ask them for our money back," he continued. "We had expected some money for this weekend, but..."

Another variation of this problem came up earlier in the year when the club had to wait a week before it could pay a referee.

But despite the money problem this weekend, the soccer team has had some help. Corn Cobs, men's spirit organization, gave the team a donation.

"We greatly appreciate the cooperation of the athletic department and especially Jim Ross," said Blaha. "We're allowed to play and practice on the Astro-Turf. And we received portable nets and goals from the athletic department last year."

Blaha first came to the University from Austria in 1969, but it wasn't until last fall that he realized there was a soccer team. Since then, the literature instructor has organized them into a unit that went through nine fall games with two victories, two defeats, and nine ties. But then in their first game this spring against Kansas State, they lost badly.

"After that game, people were making fun of us, saying they'd do that to our football team also. But then last Sunday, they beat us 2-1 on a stupid play in a game we should have won. I think our improvement surprised them."

Blaha feels there will be more improvement.

"This is not an NCAA sport, so we are not bothered by eligibility," he said. "We have two faculty on the team, and some of our other players will continue to pay while they go to graduate school."

An embarrassing moment for the team occurred last Sunday, according to Blaha. The Kansas State game started late because of football practice, and after the game, the field house was closed. Blaha had to take them to a dorm to shower.

"It's still hard to compete with these teams because of money," said Blaha. "Teams such as Kansas State, Colorado, or Iowa State, who have budgets of $1800-2500, can come for a game a day early, practice, and stay in a motel that evening. When we go to Iowa State for our game we'll leave, play the game, and come back on the same day."

Blaha, who played 12 years of semi-pro soccer in Europe, looks toward a bright future for his international team of players from Mexico, South America, Africa, England, and America.

"We could get to be a very decent team," said Blaha. "We were an excellent team when we lost unluckily to Kansas State last week. And we could do decently in the near future, but not if I have to pay their way."

Earn Extra Credit Through
1971 SUMMER READING COURSES
INFORMATIONAL MEETINGS through April 30
INSTRUCTIONAL MEETINGS May 3 thru 10
Check Campus Bulletin Boards for Complete Listings
REGISTRATION OPENS MAY 3
For complete information, Visit or Call
University Extension Division
511 Nebraska Hall
477-2171

T. J. Enterprises WATERBEDS

Lowest Prices in Lincoln
10 year guarantee
T.J. Enterprises
488-0459 PO Box 81466

Don't miss these bargains!

We've added new dresses and pantsuits to our sale room... also shoes up to 60% off.

quentins
1229 'R' on the campus

EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES
CALIFORNIA, ARIZONA, HAWAII

Professional, training positions currently available in all fields. For 1 month's subscription containing hundreds of current openings and complete job search information package including sample resumes, salary & cost of living comparisons & area executive recruiters direct adv. participation guaranteed send $9.95.

JOBS IN THE SUN
Box 133, La Jolla, Calif. 92037

Stop in after the show Or any time...

We're always open
5121 O St.
Mister Donut

CAMPUS BOOKSTORE SUPER SALE!

50%-75% OFF!

also see the TUNNEL SHOP