

Carpenter wants ETV delay

State Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff has opened a new front in his battle against the Nebraska Educational Television Building, now about 75 per cent completed.

Carpenter Thursday introduced in the Legislature a resolution requesting the State Building Commission to take "all necessary steps to delay further construction on, and purchase of materials for" the ETV Building until the Legislature makes a decision if the building should be used instead for a new College of Law.

The resolution noted the "immediate and pressing need" for a new building for the College of Law and that it would be most economical to delay further construction on the building until a final decision is made on its use.

Discussion on the resolution was held over until Friday afternoon.

The Scottsbluff lawmaker earlier introduced a resolution proposing that the building be used for the College of Law.

Carpenter two years ago was instrumental in getting approved a new ETV building on the East Campus. However, he has now switched sides saying ETV is "not as important as I once thought it was."

"ETV would be in a devastating position if we were barred from occupying the building in this eleventh hour," Jack G. McBride, ETV general manager, has said. "There is no money to renovate any other quarters."

McBride has claimed Nebraska's ETV network is seriously threatened if ETV is not allowed to consolidate ten buildings into one.
