Is There Life After Commencement?

If you are looking for the adorable whimsy which has made this column such a popular favorite among my wife and my little dog Spot, you will not find it today. For this is my last column of the school year and therefore a leave-taking, an occasion of sweet solemnity. I will not try to be funny in this final column. (I've been told I often achieved this goal in earlier columns, but those were only lucky accidents. Today it's on purpose.)

Further, because of the gravity of the occasion, there will be no commercials today for my sponsor, the brewers of Miller High Life Beer. In this decision the brewers of Miller High Life concurred readily—nay, enthusiastically!—an act of industrial statesmanship totally typical, you would say, if you knew the brewers of Miller High Life as I know the brewers of Miller High Life; I mean here are gentlemen gray at the temples and heavy with honors who still rush to the brewery as eagerly every morning as if they were youngsters only just beginning; I mean all they care about in the world, the brewers of Miller High Life, is to put the best of all possible beers inside the best of all possible cans and bottles and then go, heads high, into the market place with their wares, confident that the inborn ability to tell right from wrong, good from bad, meritorious from shoddy, which is the proud heritage of every American, will result in a modest return to themselves, the brewers of Miller High Life, for their long hours and dedicated labors—not, it goes without saying, that money is of any consequence to the brewers of Miller High Life; all these simple men require is plain, nourishing food, plenty of Miller High Life, and the knowledge that through their efforts the lives of beer drinkers everywhere have become a little more relevant—an attitude which I, for one, find heart-wrenching; indeed, so moved am I that I wish to state right here and now—I declare it publicly and proudly—that as long as there is breath in my body, I shall have only the highest regard for the brewers of Miller High Life, no matter how my lawsuit for back wages comes out.

(I am only having my little joke. Of course I'm not suing the brewers of Miller High Life for back wages. They have always paid me promptly and in full. True, they have not paid me in money, but I'll bet you never met anyone who's got as many Miller bottle caps as I do.)

But I digress. As I was saying, there will be no commercial today for Miller High Life because of the solemnity of the occasion. This is goodbye for many of you, especially those who were unable to avoid graduating. To these unfortunates I say, be of good cheer. It will accomplish nothing to slink home and assume the fetal position. Remember, there are other good things in the world besides going to college. I admit they don't spring to mind at the moment, but there must be. And if not, here's an easy solution: just dye your hair, shave your beard, change your name, and start over again at some other college.

And so in these last lambent moments, let me say to all of you, my gentle readers, it has been a great pleasure writing this column through the school year. Believe me, pleasure is not a common commodity in the life of a writer. There are an appalling number of hazards in this game—a drought of ideas, for one; catching your necktie in the roller of your typewriter, for another—so when a writer is blessed, as I have been, with an audience as alert and intelligent as you, he must take his hat in hand and his necktie out of the typewriter and make a thankful bow. This I now do.

Au revoir, gentle readers. Stay happy. Stay loose. And as you travel down life's highway, remember these lines from Shakespeare's immortal Pajama Game:

*Up your beer enjoyment, fellow.
Raise your pleasure quotient, neighbor.
Switch to Miller, bright and mellow.
You'll enjoy its groovy feighbor.*

Now that the year is over and the brewery has survived, we at Miller High Life would like to say that we have thoroughly enjoyed bringing you this column, no matter how Mr. Shulman's lawsuit comes out.
