

Brauer: Veterans not political, military

UNL Students Veterans Organization President Ken Brauer says he wants to change the image students have of his organization.

He said one of the biggest problems has been misinterpretation of the Vets organization. "Students have a right wing idea of our club. Our organization is strictly non-political and non-military."

"We welcome veterans of all political views to our organization," he said. "We have people here who take opposing points of view on the Viet Nam War."

"Our main purpose is to help our guys, and by banding together we can accomplish that better. If a veteran has been out of school quite a while, we can help him get his paper work organized and get him back into the swing of things," Brauer said.

Recently the UNL organization has inaugurated a Student Veteran Loan Fund in the University Foundation. Brauer said donations to the University Foundation can be earmarked for this fund. He said the Vets organization contributed what it could to the Fund and a former member has donated $75.

He said one of the student vets' goals this year is to increase membership. There are 100 student members of the organization now. He estimated the veteran enrollment here to be up to 1,400.

Brauer said there is one vet in the Club who was in the Army 20 years and then there are those that have been in the service the minimum time. "The Club has had female members but there are none at the present time," said Brauer, "but they are always welcome."

Brauer said a national beer distributor donated $2,000 to the Vets' national organization. The money was passed down to member clubs in the form of lower dues. He said the brewery gave UNL's vets a discount on beer for their recent smoker.

ASUN will attempt 'student economics'

Though student co-ops and non-profit stores, ASUN's Student Services Committee will attempt to keep student money among students, instead of among Lincoln stores.

By providing on-campus services, in time the University may be able to exist as an economic community, said

ASUN Sen. Roy Baldwin, assistant committee chairman.

At the committee's first fall meeting this week, members were given a list of possible programs for the year. The group will establish specific projects within the next few weeks.

Student Services was allotted $2,250 in the ASUN budget passed Wednesday.

WORK HAS been started on gasoline and grocery store co-ops, Baldwin said. Some committee members are seeking possible locations close to campus and will contact distributors.

The committee might be able to help the Freebee Bicycle Co-op which will open in the rear of Blue Sky Books on Q Street, Baldwin continued. The purpose of the shop is to supply needed repair equipment which would be too costly for an individual to purchase. Student Services might be able to provide a larger workshop and location closer to campus, Baldwin said. "The committee would rather help people with programs than have to motivate them to start programs," he added.

THE COMMITTEE also will consider a better way to operate the ASUN book exchange, he said, and is "interested in arranging a book Turn to page 7.
