

Ten coeds were named Friday as finalists for the title of 1971 Homecoming Queen.

The queen will be selected by a student body vote Oct. 13 and will reign over homecoming festivities Oct. 16 when the Cornhuskers meet the Kansas Jayhawks in Memorial Stadium.

Theme for the 1971 Homecoming is "Make Love (Library) No. 1," an effort by Tassels and Corn Cobs, student pep organizations, to raise funds for Love Library through contributions by living units, students, alumni, and other

Del Martin, who along with Lyon is one of the founders of the Daughters of Bilitis—an international lesbian organization—told the crowd that the lesbian acts according to an inner compulsion to be freer than society allows her to be. "This brings her into very painful conflicts. She is in a state of continual warfare.

"I AM A lesbian," said Martin. "These words are the result of months of soul-searching and being afraid to admit it in this hostile, self-righteous, Judeo-Christian society. These words have profound ramifications.

"These words separate the lesbian from society," continued Martin. "The measure of the person in the sight of her peers drops. Her worth is questioned and she is called a pervert and a degenerate.

"She cries out with alienation. She could write poetry but she dare not show anyone. She's always living with the terrible fear that she will be found out and punished."

MARTIN SAYS that most lesbians go underground. The lesbian lives a quiet life, going through the motions of the heterosexual. "Only at night can she let her hair down and be herself."

According to the speaker, the laws in many states prohibit certain sexual acts which could be performed in a heterosexual or homosexual relationship. She said there are no laws in any of the states which mention lesbians by name.

Women want autonomy and independence, said Martin. "All women are sisters. The women's movement is searching for a solution to the nuclear family. You may not believe it now but sisterhood is powerful."

At the end of Martin's talk the floor was opened to questions. Queried as to their purpose in coming to the conference, Martin answered that they were trying to get people to understand who lesbians are and that they are human beings like anyone else but with a different life style.

She denied that they were coming to recruit people. "I believe that heterosexuality is here to stay."

Volunteer orientation set

Excellent topics and informed speakers are two valid reasons to attend the All University Volunteer Orientation, Saturday, Oct. 9, at the Wesley Foundation, according to Janet White, Volunteer Council chairman.

The orientation program organized by the Volunteer Council will feature outstanding community resource people, White said. Among them, Cindy Fleischer and Marty Goodban, social workers for public schools; Gene Harding, director of NOVA; Lana Balka, director of Lincoln Action Program, and Bea Richman, head of Lincoln City Tenants Organization.

These community resource persons will be attempting to answer such questions as Why am I interested in volunteer work? Where is it in my priorities? and What are my expectancies for myself and my experience?

The program begins at 9:30 a.m. with a warm-up which includes self-discovery, led by Peter Wirtz, coordinator for student activities.

Because open communication is facilitated by small groups, morning discussion groups of 12-14 have been organized. These discussions will cover general volunteer problems. Each group will be led by one community resource person and one student.

These groups will discuss situations involved in volunteer work, the causes of breakdown in Volunteer service, and experiences perceived by volunteers relating to their roles and problem solving and decision making behavior under diverse circumstances.

The afternoon session will be conducted in panel discussion form, discussing the feelings of recipients of volunteer work, the quality of volunteer work, needs being met and various acceptable and unacceptable volunteer attitudes. These panel discussions with experienced community resource people hope to create community feedback which is essential to the volunteer program, White said.
