J-school prof to South Africa

UNL Professor Albert C. Book of the School of Journalism will lead the first television seminar in South Africa, one of the world's few industrialized nations without television.

The seminar will deal primarily with advertising and television commercials. Book will deliver a number of papers on production, research, creativity and craftsmanship, and ethics and standards.

According to book, the seminar originated from an announcement several months ago that the South African government has approved the introduction of television service to the country.
